Although rainy skies forced cancellation of most outdoor Easter activities, including Cape Henry Sunrise Service and the Easter Promenade on the boardwalk, hundreds of youngsters took advantage of a bit of sunshine Saturday and combed Princess Anne Park during the Easter egg hunt sponsored by the Department of Parks and Recreation. Clay Rodgers, 3, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dan Rodgers, 4600 Tony Lema Lane, Virginia Beach, found his share of goodies.

Schools ask increase

Board okays budget

By MARY RODA
Sun Staff Writer

Skyrocketing enrollment and stiffer state requirements for educational programs have pumped the proposed 1975-76 budget for Virginia Beach schools more than $6 million over last year, according to Sept. Dr. E.E. Brickell.

Brickell, who told the School Board Thursday his proposed $48.2 million budget is basically a "hold-the-line document," reported that the budget reflects "rapidly accelerated pupil growth, the highest in over 10 years" combined with inflation and an increasing number of educational requirements by Virginia.

The School Board, which adopted the budget in a 6-0 vote, must turn to the city for the bulk of the increase, Brickell noted, because only $900,000 of the proposed 14.5 per cent increase will be offset by companion increases in state and federal revenue.

The schools absorbed an enrollment increase of 2,400 during the past year, and because of the jump, Brickell said, "we have to employ more than $1 million worth of professional personnel without added help from the Commonwealth."

Not surprisingly, instructional costs took a $3.7 million bite of the proposed increase. Brickell told The Sun that three-fourths of the increase represented salary hikes for professional staff, while proposed hiring of new professional staff, including administrators and teachers, is responsible for one quarter of the proposed instructional cost increase. Cost of instruction alone will reach $32 million in 1975-76.

Of that, $28 million will be used to pay salaries of 2,665 teachers, including 93 new classroom instructors.

$100 million - plus

City anticipates landmark budget

The Virginia Beach City Council today is expected to receive a proposed budget that will go down as a landmark of sorts - the city's first $100 million-plus spending proposal, although City Manager George Hanbury indicated that the only major increase will be the School Board's request for a $5.3 million increase in funding.

In an interview with The Sun this week, Hanbury refused to reveal the particulars about the first budget he has prepared as city manager.

Would it surge over the $100 million mark? "Well, it was $93 million last year," Hanbury observed.

The city manager was locked in last-minute budget drafting last week in an effort to meet the city's budget deadline. The Council has scheduled a 9 a.m. special meeting to receive the document.

Hanbury, who was burning the midnight oil this week drafting his budget message, said the proposal was conservative, "but city managers are traditionally conservative."

He reported that there will be "no great increases" proposed with the exception of the school budget, which leaped 14.5 per cent this year - with most of the increase expected to come from local money (see related story).

Hanbury is expected to recommend a 1 per cent increase - from 2 to 3 per cent - in the city's hotel-motel tax.

The tax, which Council may approve hand-in-hand with the construction of a proposed $16 million convention center complex, would bring approximately $1 million in additional revenue to the city in 1975-76, Hanbury reported.

The city manager declined to say whether the proposed tax would be included in his budget without the convention center project.

"Now you're getting into my budget message," he chided. He indicated that the document would not be released until the City Council sees it.

However, during an informal Council session March 24, Hanbury told councilmen that even with a hotel-motel tax increase, Virginia Beach would "still be competitive" with other Tidewater cities.

"I think it would be a good recommendation," he added, "but it will be the Council's prerogative to impose the tax."

Hanbury had proposed a convention center as a "carrot" along with the proposed tax increase as incentives would not oppose the 1 per cent hike. Over a 20-year period, Hanbury predicted that the tax would more than pay for a convention facility.

The budget, which sets the city's spending priorities for the year, will indicate Hanbury's philosophy as city manager, and his proposals could show shifts in emphasis from the administration of former City Manager Roger Scott.

"I consider it the most important document I write during the year," Hanbury said. "It establishes a base point for the City Council to agree with or be critical of," he explained, but it is only a recommendation.

Beach rape may set case history

A Virginia Beach rape case may be on the brink of settling a controversial courtroom issue throughout the Virginia: whether the past sexual conduct of a rape victim may be used as evidence in a trial. Commonwealth's Atty. Andre Enns will represent Virginia Beach in Commonwealth vs. Wynne this month when the case appears before the Virginia Supreme Court.

According to Asst. Commonwealth's Atty. William Drinkwater, who wrote the brief for the case, the issue involves the defense attorney's contention that the rape victim's past should be an issue in a rape trial.

Surprisingly, it's an issue which has never reached the Supreme Court level before, he noted.

Drinkwater said other states have settled the question, with about half ruling that past sexual experiences of a rape victim are irrelevant in rape trials, while remaining states have ruled that rape suspects may draw on victim's past in their courtroom arguments.

Women's rights leaders in Virginia Beach and in other parts of the state have clamored for a change in the law which they say ruthlessly invades the privacy of a rape victim while it protects the past of the rape suspect.

In Virginia, previous sex offenses committed by the rape suspect cannot be introduced as evidence unless the defendant agrees to take the stand, Drinkwater said. In those cases, defense attorneys advise their clients not to speak in their own defense.

In Commonwealth vs. Wynne, a 1973 case in which the Beach prosecutors won a conviction, the defense "tried to bring out the fact that the girl had sexual relations with other individuals," Drinkwater said.

The defense hoped to discredit the victim's character by "purging individuals" before the jury who had had sexual relations with the victim in the past, Drinkwater said, but their testimony was not allowed. Wynne is appealing.

In Drinkwater's opinion, such evidence is irrelevant. "It's like saying a prostitute cannot be raped, but she can be just as brutally and maliciously raped as anyone. Does that make her any less of an individual or lessen her rights under the Constitution? That's what we're trying to protect."

Statistics err

Virginia Beach's Commonwealth's attorneys have a better batting average when it comes to rape convictions than the national average - even the Police Department's central files.

When a Sun reporter checked police statistics to determine the number of rape convictions in 1974, the figures showed a sorry tale: one conviction in 12 cases.

According to Asst. Commonwealth's Atty. William Drinkwater, that's just not so.

The attorney, responding to a Sun article on rape which reported the incorrect figures, said that convictions resulted in nine of 14 rape cases which were tried in Virginia Beach Circuit Court last year.

Five suspects were convicted of rape, and received sentences ranging between five and 10 years, while four were convicted of assault and were sentenced from one to two years in prison.

In three cases, the jury delivered "not guilty" verdicts, and evidence was struck in a fourth trial. In the final case, the Commonwealth's attorney submitted a not prosecuted, meaning that the charge would not be prosecuted, when the victim could not be located.

Better than the incorrect 12 in 1 average, Drinkwater said the Commonwealth's attorney won rape convictions in 35.7 of his cases, and the rape suspect wound up in jail 64.3 per cent of the time, including assault cases.

Mayor J. Curtis Payne of Virginia Beach (right) shakes hands with Tidewater Community College president George Pass after reading his proclamation declaring this week Tidewater Community College Week. The college's new campus off Princess Anne Road in Green Run will be dedicated Sunday. Ceremonies begin at 2 p.m.

TCC dedication set

Although its official dedication will be Sunday, the $3.7 million Virginia Beach campus of Tidewater Community College has been a bustling center of educational activity since September.

In fact, the newest addition to the Tidewater Community College (TCC) system at Princess Anne Road and the proposed Rosemont Road extension, already has a full enrollment exceeding 3,900.

Gov. Mills E. Godwin Jr. will be the guest speaker at the dedication ceremonies at 2 p.m. Sunday, and the campus will be open to visitors who want to roam through classrooms and laboratories in the four-building complex.

TCC officials say the Virginia Beach campus is the fastest growing of the system's three campuses. It opened with 750 students in 1971, when old buildings at Camp Pendleton served as classrooms.

The campus is designed to accommodate 1,700 full-time students, but with its enrollment more than doubling that, TCC plans to continue offering classes in eight other Beach locations, including Camp Pendleton.

Facilities at the 115-acre campus, located on the site of Green Run Farm, include a science and technology building, administration building, the learning resources building, which includes a library and a small auditorium, and the social sciences building.

The City of Virginia Beach provided site preparation and maintenance at a cost of $1 million.

TCC's buildings are designed to enable the college to build additions later on, but that will come under the campus' Phase II funding.

When that will occur and how much will be allocated depends on the General Assembly.

TCC faculty at Virginia Beach includes 90 full-time instructors, with another 93 working part-time. In addition, the staff includes seven counselors, eight learning resources staff members, 10 administrative staff members and 35 support employees.

Construction, which began two years ago, was completed by W.B. Meredith II using a design by Williams and Tazewell Architects.

Budget

Brickell reported that the proposed budget includes the School Board's first negotiated master contract with the Virginia Beach Education Association (VBEA). VBEA members will vote on the agreement today, and the School Board called a special meeting 8 p.m. Thursday in the School Administration Building to consider the package.

Although details of the agreement will not be disclosed until this afternoon, it reportedly includes a salary increase of approximately 10 per cent for teachers.

Brickell also recommended approval of a salary and benefit package averaging between 10 and 11 per cent for classified employees, and a pay increase of 8 per cent for bus drivers with group life insurance benefits which will bring their total increase to 10 or 11 per cent.

Under the proposal, school administrators would get a 5 per cent across-the-board increase in addition to a step advancement on the school system's salary scale, along with life insurance benefits. Brickell said the package represents increases ranging between 8.5 and 10.5 per cent for administrators.

The cost of opening three new elementary schools, North Landing, Fairfield and Green Run, are included in the budget under operating and instructional costs.

Brickell also noted that special education, which cost the schools less than $1 million three years ago, will approach $2.5 million this year.

Despite the 14.5 per cent increase in the overall budget, Brickell predicted that Virginia Beach's cost per pupil of $850 would be one of the lowest of 36 Virginia cities for the 1975-76 school year.

In comparison, last year Norfolk spent $1,000 for each student, while Newport News spent $923. The closest city to Virginia Beach in 1973-74 was Chesapeake, with an $801 average, still higher than the Beach's cost per pupil last year.

"This situation cannot be expected to continue ad infinitum," Brickell warned. "For us to be able to furnish quality educational programs at less cost than cities one-tenth our size, in a deflating economy, is simply not going to go on."

The superintendent also noted that his budget could not accommodate a request from the Council of PTAs to staff each school with a nurse. However, he said the budget requests funds for three additional nurses, which will provide a nurse for every three schools instead of asking each nurse to cover four schools.

Although there are all are schools with full-time nurses, Brickell explained that they are designated Title I facilities and federal funds pay for most of the nurses' salaries.

Brickell said the 1975-76 proposed budget recommends "very few new programs" except for those required by Virginia or by the regional accrediting association.

He added that he cut department requests "by as much as 75 per cent" before preparing the final budget proposal, "even though most requests were quite reasonable."

"We have attempted to take into consideration the times in which we live," he added, "and the ever-increasing burden being placed on our taxpayers... I believe we have succeeded in preparing a budget that is realistic in the extreme."

School Board Chairman Robert DeFord Jr. praised Brickell's work on the proposed budget, which was forwarded to City Manager George Hanbury to be included with the budget package the City Council will receive today. He remarked, "This is almost an unbelievable budget to come up with."

Beach schools now have 54,000 students Brickell said, "and if we get a 2,400 increase one more year, my guess is we'll have to go to the City Council and ask for another appropriation."

Ft. Story meet set

An April 23 public hearing has been scheduled on the Navy's plan to build 600 housing units at Ft. Story in Virginia Beach.

The meeting will be held from 7 to 11 p.m. in the auditorium of Princess Anne High School.

Copies of the Navy's environmental impact statement are available at Virginia Beach libraries. Information on presentation of oral or written statements is available by calling R.L. Warren, Atlantic Division, Naval Facilities Engineering Command, 444-7131.

Speakers will be limited to five minutes, and group presentations will be allotted 10 minutes.

Delay threatened

Construction of the Atlantic Treatment Plant will be delayed for more than a year if the Hampton Roads Sanitation District (HRSD) does not get $4 million for construction of the sewage treatment facility in Dam Neck by August, according to HRSD general manager Col. William Love.

Love reported that the State Water Control Board has promised the needed funding for the Virginia Beach plant, although it was not included $49.6 million the district received in federal funds for seven other projects.

Love reported that delays in construction of the Atlantic Treatment Facility, which HRSD hopes to complete by 1979, could result in inadequate capacity to absorb new connections from developing areas of Virginia Beach.

Carrington leaves

Charles C. Carrington, Virginia Beach's on-again, off-again, planning director, officially resigned as city planning head March 25, this time for good.

City Manager George Hanbury had instructed Carrington to begin looking for another post full-time March 12 shortly after the planner submitted a resignation effective April 15. However, the planning director protested the quasi-dismissal and returned to work March 24 to finish up some unfinished planning duties.

But the next day he submitted a resignation effective immediately, which was accepted by Hanbury. The planner's annual salary of $27,250, which would have continued to April 15 even though he was relieved of duties earlier, also stopped as of March 25, Hanbury said.

Incumbents file

Virginia Beach's three incumbent Democratic state legislators filed for re-election to the General Assembly during the first two days of filing Thursday and Friday.

Del. Glenn McClanahan filed for his third term in office on the opening day for filing. McClanahan reportedly has fallen out of favor with Democratic Party leaders and there had been speculation that he might run as an independent.

Del. Owen B. Pickett also filed for a second term in office during the first day of filing, while Del. Donald Rhodes filed Friday.

The three will be running in the June 10 Democratic primary. April 11 is the filing deadline.

Beth Borough Councilman Robert Callis is expected to try for the Democratic nomination to oppose Virginia Sen. Joseph Canale (R-Virginia Beach) in the November elections. John Fahey has already announced that he intends to run for the Senate seat as an independent candidate.

Collection begins

Virginia Beach residents who want to earn a little extra cash can start saving aluminum cans and trays.

The scrap aluminum drive will bring 15 cents a pound Tuesday and April 22 when a Reynolds Aluminum truck will visit Virginia Beach for aluminum pickups at the Virginia Beach Dome 19th Street and Pacific Avenue, and at the Naval Offices Beach Club, Atlantic Avenue and 64th Street.

E. J. Kelly Jr., manager of Reynolds Mid-Atlantic region recycling operation, said Reynolds will pay cash for all-aluminum cans, TV dinner trays, pie pans and foil from 1 to 3 p.m. at the dome and from 10 a.m. to 12 noon at the beach club.

Car kills boy

A Virginia Beach youngster was killed as he ran across the Virginia Beach Expressway the night of March 24, just three weeks after his family moved to the city.

George Rose, 12, was playing a game of "chicken" with friends when he was hit by a car driven by Anthony E. Smith of Norfolk as he dashed onto the freeway to retrieve his ball. The youngsters were trying to see who could run closest to cars on the toll road.

The youth, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Rose Jr. of Great Lake Drive in the County View mobile home park, is also survived by a 14-year-old brother and a sister, 9. He attended Kempville Elementary School.

Rep. William Whitehurst (R-Virginia Beach) will be spending the next week in Geneva, Switzerland, as one of two members of the U.S. House of Representatives acting as a congressional advisor for governing military conflicts.

The Swiss government is sponsoring the meeting, which is officially the second session of the Diplomatic Conference on the Resumption and Development of International Humanitarian Law Applicable in Armed Conflicts: 1949 Convention by states which refuse to treat captured soldiers as prisoners of war, which use civilians as targets to gain military advantages and incidents of terrorism and use of hostages in bargaining.

According to Whitehurst, the conference is a test of the ability of nations to create universal law for armed conflicts.

Tomorrow meets

The scene of Virginia Beach Tomorrow's first meeting looked something like a kindergarten class for grown-ups.

Disgusted-looking men in coats and ties were sprawled on all fours, working diligently drawing scrambled figures on huge sheets of paper.

The assignment: draw a map of Virginia Beach as you know it, noting areas which indicate your view of the city.

Not everyone's map looked the same. "I don't know about the rest of you," joked Kempville Borough Councilman Dr. Henry McCoy as he took a pencil to paper. "But I'm just drawing Kempville."

Councilman Dr. Clarence Holland, taking a peek at Lynnhaven Borough Councilman John Griffin's handwork, remarked, "John Griffin already put in Old Donation Parkway!"

One of the first landmarks on McCoy's map was the Southern Norfolk Railway. "I know where that railroad track is," he said with a grin. "You can't beat up there," he added, pointing to the area of the city north of the track, which marks a hunting boundary under a city ordinance proposed by McCoy.

Griffin's map showed huge fingers of Broad Bay, Lynnhaven Bay and Western Branch, while the waterways were hardly noticeable on some other maps.

Dr. John Osman, director of the Brookings Institute urban policy conferences, said he will analyze maps drawn by the 82 Tomorrow Committee members to determine each person's perception of Virginia Beach.

Urban specialist Leo Molinaro, president of American City Corp., was guest speaker for the first Tomorrow session.

Molinaro said American cities have been shaped by the industrial revolution as well as the free market system which resulted from the American Revolution.

The industrial revolution dictated that labor forces and consumers congregate in cities to provide mass markets and for mass produced goods.

The free market system has posed a dilemma for municipalities when it comes to zoning, Molinaro observed.

"If zoning does nothing else," he said, "it restricts land on the open market" and cities must determine how they "can keep the free market system alive" while imposing land use controls.

Another dilemma is that how cities can encourage self government in such complicated areas as beach erosion, flood control "and even issues such as education and health," Molinaro said. For example, "do we really let people decide when their kids are educated?"

He told committee members that they must learn to "understand growth and change well enough to incorporate it in a community development process" that creates prosperity for citizens, expands equity by harnessing private dollars to shape the community and by stabilizes growth so it can be planned for properly.

"What is happening," he added, "is that we're growing too fast to plan in some places and too fast for community services," and in other areas "too slow to build an economic base."

List revised

Response to the Tomorrow Committee, a group which will map out the best course for Virginia Beach's future, has been overwhelming.

Of 50 Beach "policy makers" invited to join the group, more than 82 have agreed to dedicate one full day a month for 10 months to the committee, which will create a policy for the city's future development. Organizers hoped to limit the body to 70 persons.

The Sun printed a list of committee members in its March 26 issue, but five more had been added since then.

William J. Vaughan, Virginia Beach Association;

Dick Cockrell, Virginia Beach Polytechnic Institute Extension;

Bill Eagen, Virginia Beach Inspectors, and

E. Bradford Tazewell Jr., Virginia Beach Association.

The list provided by the Virginia Beach Tomorrow also erroneously listed Elizabeth McClane as president of the League of Women Voters. Mrs. McClane is the first vice-president of the league, and she is also vice president of the Witchduck Civic League.

Rape

Past sexual conduct of the victim is an issue which is brought up "all the time," Drinkwater said. "That's the defense lawyer's job."

But the Commonwealth's attorney's office wouldn't mind seeing the rules of the game interpreted in their favor.

Because evidence in rape cases is sometimes difficult to find, a lot of determinations are made by the believability of the victim, Drinkwater explained. That is why the defense must attack her credibility.

Credibility would still play a major role in rape trials, he added, but it would not be based on the previous conduct of the victim with other men or even with the suspect himself.

As an example, Drinkwater outlined a sticky possibility: what if a newly-divorced woman claimed that her ex-husband raped her? A case probably would boil down to her word against his, the attorney noted.

Although it is an extreme example, often the jury's reaction to the victim's story will make the difference between a conviction and a "not guilty" verdict.

Drinkwater doesn't believe that a woman's past sexual conduct unrelated to the crime should be used against her.

If Virginia Beach wins the case at the Supreme Court level, Drinkwater said it will have an impact on rape trials throughout the state.

A-4 - The Sun, April 2, 1975

An editorial:

A.R.E., TCC Beach boon

With Easter and the promise of spring, come the back-to-back dedications of facilities which will greatly enhance cultural opportunities available to for Virginia Beach residents.

Tidewater Community College (TCC) will dedicate its $3.8 million Virginia Beach campus at Green Run Sunday. On Easter Sunday the Association for Research and Enlightenment, Inc. (A.R.E.) dedicated its $1 million library at 68th Street and Atlantic Avenue.

The new TCC campus has been open since September, and the overwhelming community response to the facility only points out the need for post-high school education.

The college gives high school graduates an opportunity they might otherwise have to continue their education, and it also serves as a source for personal enrichment for individuals who join TCC's continuing education program.

The only problem facing the Virginia Beach campus now is that its enrollment is already double the facility's capacity.

TCC officials have continued classes at its make-do Camp Pendleton Campus as well as seven other Beach locations, but eventually the campus must be expanded.

That will take more money, and in the face of a tight economy, the Virginia General Assembly may not be ready to shell out more hard cash for education.

The A.R.E. Library, which most certainly will become known as a Beach landmark, contains one of the most extensive collections of parapsychological work, including materials on extrasensory perception and extensive readings of clairvoyant Edgar Cayce.

The attractive building overlooks the Atlantic, and Beach residents are welcome to tour through its rooms of books, auditoriums, meditation room and rooftop garden overlooking the ocean.

Although the A.R.E. has made Virginia Beach its home for years, ever since Cayce originally opened the hospital which overlooks the library site, the new building will mean that the organization will be able to include the public in more of its activities, including free daily afternoon lectures on Cayce's readings.

Quality of water threatened

Agency eyes pollution

Any Virginia Beach resident out for a Sunday afternoon drive can appreciate the beauty of the city's network of lakes, channels and bays. Water is an integral part of the Beach lifestyle.

But as the area develops, the system of waterways is constantly threatened by pollutants, whether they are generated by sewer lines and septic tanks or highway runoff and agricultural fertilizers that find their way into a water system after a heavy rain.

Although pollutants are generated locally and have an impact on the environmental quality of life in the area -- for both man and wildlife -- water pollution and its solutions are regional problems that any one city could not possibly tackle on its own.

That's where the Hampton Roads Water Quality Agency (HRWQA) steps in.

To Tom Wood, HRWQA assistant project manager, one of three young planners who will attempt to plan the water quality needs of southeastern Virginia for the next 20 years, the tidewater area is a challenging project.

"It's one of the most diverse and complex mixes of urban, recreational and agricultural uses I've ever seen packed into this small an area," Wood observed. Rapid development near ecologically valuable waterways calls for sensitive planning.

The agency, funded to the tune of $1.6 million under the federal Environmental Protection Agency, will attempt to work out a plan to improve water quality in the southeastern Virginia region.

It is not the first time the water system has caught the eye of regional planners, but Wood said the HRWQA, created in July, has a different approach.

Previously, water quality plans were seriously hampered by their failure to incorporate the local interests, Wood explained.

"We're set up to permit local control and input," he added, and the federal government has emphasized that the plan the HRWQA develops be implemented.

Although the plan could take many shapes, it will attempt to find ways to eliminate water contaminants at their sources, possibly through protective zoning of environmentally sensitive areas, and outline the types of water treatment facilities that will be needed in southeastern Virginia through 1995.

For example, the plan could call for low density residential development near lakes and bays that are prominent in Tidewater's topography to prevent heavy runoff and erosion that could carry pollutants into the water system.

The agency might also call for the construction of holding basins to control the flow of storm waters and permit some of the more damaging pollutants, such as petroleum and metallic compounds to settle to the bottom of the basin.

"It's not enough to say what we think," the water quality planner said, but the agency staff must determine how much their plan will cost and how it will affect different economic interests in the community, from developers to local government.

HRWQA must also determine who should administer any regional water quality plan, whether it is an existing regional agency, a completely new one or possibly confining the existence of the HRWQA after its planning work is done.

"It's important to see something come out of this and see something done," Wood emphasized. "Pollution problems in this area are quite serious," he added, as evidenced by annual mysterious fish kills along the James river and the contamination of the famous Lynnhaven shellfish beds in Virginia Beach.

In many cases, water quality experts are not even sure what pollutants are responsible for the damage or where they come from.

HRWQA Project Administrator Paul Fisher hopes that the agency will be able to take extensive water samplings throughout the region to determine the extent of pollution and possibly pinpoint its source.

What the agency can do, he added, will depend on the federal government's response to a request for a $1.5 million grant to provide money for the needed testing.

The data would be fed into a computer, Fisher said, which would give water quality planners a picture of the sources of pollution contaminating the water system.

It's a complicated process, because pollutants can be generated from diverse sources, including agricultural chemicals, toxic materials carried in runoff from streets and roads such as metallic elements and petroleum wastes, as well as erosion from construction.

At the same time, planners will attempt to predict the impact future development will have on water quality, and hopefully convince local governments to adjust their zoning to protect critical environmental areas, Fisher said.

But at the same time, the water quality agency must consider the economic effects of any plan it recommends, according to Wood, who holds an economics degree from Virginia Polytechnic Institute.

"These are important decisions," he said, "and they really affect the cost of development and the cost of building and running a city."

In fact, the water quality plan has the potential to impair the economic growth of the community, so it is important that environmentalists, as well as citizens, business interests and city officials have a clear understanding of the agency's work.

"Trade-offs are not things water quality programs addressed well previously," Wood noted, because they looked at pollution from a narrow environmentalist's standpoint without considering other factors.

In the end, those other considerations made former plans impossible to implement.

The HRWQA also will delve into "nonpoint" sources of pollution, agents primarily carried by runoff. It's an area where environmental quality states have neglected in the past.

Controlling point sources of pollution, such as industrial and residential wastes, has been "pretty effective" up to now, Wood noted, but the runoff is more difficult to evaluate and control.

Fisher said the agency has formed a committee including representatives from groups stretching west to Franklin and north to Williamsburg.

There are 20 members now, and eventually the committee will include 30 members, Fisher said. HRWQA is trying to get a cross-section of representation from both urban and rural interest groups, from developers to environmentalists. Members presently include the Volvo Corp., the Virginia Beach chapter of the League of Women Voters and the Inspectors.

In addition, the agency plans a series of public information meetings throughout the project area to brief citizens on its work. All materials prepared by the agency will be available to citizens at the office in pembroke Three, Virginia Beach, in an information bank.

Whatever plan the agency prepares, Fisher said it probably will be controversial.

"Obviously a plan of this magnitude will be controversial," he said, and the agency hopes to hear opinions about its proposals during public meetings before its recommendations reach the public hearing stage.

That way, Fisher explained, the final draft plan will reflect the feelings of the community.

"Virginia Beach is one of the most diverse and complex mixes of urban, recreational and agricultural uses I've ever seen packed into this small an area."

Project administrator Paul Fisher said the water quality agency will try to determine the extent of water pollution in the area.

It's called lacrosse

You play it with war clubs and a feather ball . . . no?

By STEVE BIONDO
Sun Staff Writer

The first thing that novices learn about modern ice hockey is that it's derived from a crude North American Indian game that was played in centuries past with war clubs and a ball of tightly-woven feathers.

The celebrated Ottawa Indian Chief Pontiac, during the French and Indian War, devised a takeover of a British fort by having his warriors play one such game before the fort gates, luring the curious soldiers from behind the walls. At a pre-arranged signal the Indians rushed the fort, overwhelming the guard and slaughtering the inhabitants.

But while hockey took to the ice and naked Indians were replaced by Canadians who attached their steel blades to their shoes, that nameless but inherently American sport survived, and still flourishes today.

They call it lacrosse.

The game's devotees are called "crazy."

"It's just a lot of fun," says Tinsley Van Durand, English instructor and lacrosse coach at Norfolk Academy. "I've never seen anything like the paternal spirit that you have in lacrosse." Van Durand, who has been in and around the game for most of his 27 years, adds, "The thing that frustrates me most is the complete drought of lacrosse you have in this area."

For the uninitiated, the game of lacrosse consists of fast-breaking, hard-hitting action - somewhere between basketball and hockey. Van Durand insists between two teams of 10 men each.

'If there's a loose ball look out. I teach my players that on a loose ball, one should go for the ball and the other for the man. You can hit anybody within 15 feet of a loose ball. You're supposedly going for his stick, but if you hit his arm or shoulder they won't usually call it.'

Norfolk Academy lacrosse coach Tinsley Van Durand

The field is roughly football-size and the goal nets are 6 feet high by 6 feet wide. The ball has progressed from sparrow feathers to a baseball-sized hard rubber sphere.

Players, divided into four basic sections on the field, wear helmets and occasional padding and carry sticks with a leather-thonged basket on one end. The stick's main purpose is for catching and carrying the ball, and also comes in handy for (illegally) annihilating an opposing player.

"If there's a loose ball, look out," warns Van Durand, who says that contact is one of the main attractions in the sport. "I teach my players that on a loose ball, one should go for the ball and the other for the man. You can hit anybody within 15 feet of a loose ball. You're supposedly going for his stick, but if you hit his arm or shoulder they won't usually call it."

Ironically, the game seems to be changing much more rapidly than it has been accepted in many parts of the country. Tidewater, for one.

"The thing that has changed the game more than anything else, I'm convinced, are these new STX sticks," says Van Durand. He points out that the new sticks are lighter, with mesh webbing rather than the old-style leather. "You can really wing the ball with those, real darts." Fifty-foot shots have become common, the coach adds.

Along with his Norfolk Academy team, Van Durand has taken on the added responsibility of coaching the Little Creek Lacrosse Club, a private club open to anyone willing to shell out the cash needed for equipment.

"It's an expensive game to play. Everybody buys their own equipment," the coach says, adding that with Navy cooperation - his club players can outfit themselves for anywhere from $60 to $80.

"Offensive players usually have to get shoulder pads, at least arm pads," says Lt. Cmdr. Bob Fegan, who began his playing days at the Naval Academy. "If a guy puts out that kind of money, then he wants to play. That's the way we feel."

'It's just a lot of fun. I've never seen anything like the paternal spirit that you have in lacrosse. The thing that frustrates me most is the complete drought of lacrosse you have in this area.'

Both Van Durand and Fegan are watching the game from the sidelines right now. Van Durand because he says he is too "out of shape" to play. Fegan is currently nursing a knee injury suffered in a recent practice.

"You really need someone to run the show," adds Van Durand. He doesn't rule out the possibility of being a player-coach, but he stresses the intricacies of lacrosse. "We run a double high-post offense. Your offense and defense are going to change with penalties, so you've got to be on your toes."

Asked how they got the Norfolk Academy mentor to take the coaching job, Fegan laughs. "It wasn't too hard. We needed a coach and he was the obvious choice."

Van Durand prepped at Gillman School in Baltimore, then went to Randolph-Macon College where he and some friends organized the school's present intercollegiate lacrosse program. While working on his English masters at Old Dominion he was offered a position at Norfolk Academy. Besides teaching English and economics, and coaching lacrosse, he assists with the Academy's football and basketball programs. Lacrosse remains his passion.

"Lacrosse is his thing," says Van Durand's wife, Linda. "He's from Baltimore. They grow up with lacrosse sticks in their hands up there." Adds Mrs. Van Durand, "He really gets upset when he doesn't see anything in the newspapers about it."

Attention, armchair lacrosse enthusiasts!

If the rough-house game of lacrosse appeals to your aesthetic senses, both Norfolk Academy and the Little Creek Lacrosse Club play ball schedules throughout the months of April and May.

Norfolk Academy, located on Wesleyan Drive off Northampton Boulevard directly across from the Lake Wright Hotel, will play its next home lacrosse game April 15 against St. Christopher's Academy of Richmond. Starting time is set for 4 p.m. Norfolk Academy's final three home games of the season are: May 2, against Fork Union Military Academy; and May 9, versus Hampton Roads Academy of Newport News.

Both games begin at 3:30 p.m. On May 17, the Bulldogs play their final home match of the year against top-rated Blue Ridge Academy of Lynchburg. Starting time is 2 p.m.

The Little Creek Lacrosse Club plays its home games at the lacrosse field off 6th St. at the Little Creek Amphibious Base. April 19 will see Little Creek take on visiting Hampton - Sydney, scheduled to begin at 8 p.m. On May 17, the Columbia Lacrosse Club will play Virginia Beach a visit. Starting time is set for 5 p.m.

For those hardy souls who have the time, money and desire to play, contact Bob Fegan at 444-5736 or Jim Courtney 444-3453 for further information.

Van Durand exults with his Bulldog players after Norfolk Academy scored the go-ahead goal to tie the match 4-4

Lack of sports publicity for the game is one of the coach's pet peeves. "The real shame is the newspapers, they bury me up," grumps Van Durand. "We've got four nationally ranked teams in Virginia but you'd never know it."

Lack of enthusiasm is no problem for Van Durand at Norfolk Academy or with the Little Creek team. Fegan points out, however, that the main problem has not been getting the people out there but "getting them to show up" for practice.

In a situation like ours there's no limit to the number of bodies we have," Fegan states. "The problem is the people who show up are the ones with less experience." The 16-year Navy veteran adds that the squad had 40 candidates trying out for positions, and he says, "we'll carry all of them."

At Norfolk Academy, Van Durand has virtually the job, molding players into inexperienced boys. Additionally, the Little Creek Bulldogs under the tutelage of heavy graduation losses off last year's team.

"I lost my whole mid-field," he mourns, but adds that this year's team is "decent" and has its bright spots. Team co-captains Bobby Reed and Ed Semmlerwith minutes remaining in the second half.

both Virginia Beach residents - spearhead the Bulldog attack. Semmler was leading scorer on the 1974 squad.

"We'll never have great lacrosse here until they get it in the (public) schools," Van Durand predicts. But with soccer - a distant cousin to lacrosse - beginning to take hold in Virginia Beach elementary schools and junior highs, can the Indian sport of war club and feather-ball be far behind?

With professional box lacrosse catching on up north, the future of both sports on a scholastic, intercollegiate and even community level looks good. Physically, the game is limiting. You must be strong, quick and in good shape, but age is really no factor. The prime prerequisite, however, is enthusiasm.

Asked what the attraction was in a game that requires constant running, contact, mental alertness and hard muscle tone to take the planted trunks and occasionally detached "head" of the ball.

"That's kind of hard to answer. But I think as long as I can hack, and beat out guys 10 years younger than I am, I'll continue to play."

PA, Cox and Bayside post early season track triumphs

Virginia Beach outdoor squad smother Booker T. Washington, 97-38, on a school record jump by Jeff Henry in the triple jump of 44-9 1/2. The mark broke Henry's old personal record of 44 feet Kirk Harrington boosted Keilman to win in at least two other events, the high hurdles and intermediate hurdles. Harrington ran the intermediates in a time of 42 seconds flat, good enough for first place, then completed the high hurdles in a time of 15.4.

Other Kelman victories in individual events included a 125-4 discus toss by Mark Delaney, and first-place finishes by the Knight's 880 relay and mile relay teams. In the 880 relay, Laverna Forbes, Josephus Godfrey, Alvin Holley and Margie Dixon posted a winning time of 1:32.6. In the mile relay, Brian Conley, Godfrey, Dixon and Tim Bright won with a time of 3:32.7.

On March 26, Cox jumped all over Granby to post an 85-46 win over the Comets while Princess Anne defeated Lake Taylor, 91-60, and Bayside ran over Kemperville by a 92-44 score.

Cox senior Herman Brockett paced the Falcons to their win over Granby by coping first-place finishes in three events. In the long jump, Brockett went 20-6, then won the triple jump with a leap of 37-8. He rounded out his day by going 5-10 in the high jump competition. Chris Reich won the high hurdles with a time of 11.1.

Princess Anne's Jesse Williams paced the Cavaliers in their March 26 meet with Lake Taylor by taking two first places in the 100-yard dash and the 220. Williams won the 100 with a time of 10.4, and finished in the 220 timed at 23.5.

Powder Mill Bayside swept Kemperville off its feet in the opening meet of the season for the schools. The Martins piled up the points on two first-places by Bobby White in the 100 and 220 events. White won the 100 with a run of 10.3, then copped the 220 in a time of 24.1. Bayside's Steve Bishop won the high hurdles, finishing in 15.8, while teammate Jerry Mosley won the 440. He won with a run of 52.6.

For Kemperville, senior Mike Crabtree finished first in the high jump and broad jump. He won the former with a leap of 6-0, then went 20-7 1/2 in the latter event. Miller Steve Sawyer paced two more wins away for Kemperville. Sawyer ran the mile event in a time of 4:31.

In the 880 he placed first with a time of 2:04.2.

Marine's Bice looking for all-service title

"Some of the toughest come from Virginia," replied the 35-year-old Marine who walked away from the 1975 All-Marine boxing championships March 20th with the All-Marine heavyweight title.

Staff Sergeant Sonny Bice took the title after defeating Marine Irving Taylor by a decision in the 1975 All-Marine Championships held at Camp Lejeune, N.C. Bice, a resident of Norfolk, was flown from Okinawa to represent his command in the competition.

"It was a tough fight," said the rather short and stocky champion, "but my confidence and will power were up that night."

The sergeant's wife Jackie, a resident of Richmond and mother of two, says, "It's a goal he's had for a long time."

"As far as I can remember my husband has had the desire to go to the top," she explained, "and if he won't in the Marine Corps I believe that he'd be the heavyweight champion of the world."

Bice, who takes his boxing seriously, says he began developing a strong interest in the sport while attending Norview High School.

"Sure, I was interested in other sports," said Bice, "but there's nothing like getting in the ring and knowing your win or loss depends strictly on you. When it's over, regardless of whether you win or lose, you still feel you've accomplished something."

Graduating from high school in 1958, Bice enlisted in the Marine Corps the same year. He found he didn't have as much time to box, so he ended his short period of service rather quickly in 1962.

"Don't get me wrong," said Bice. "The Marine Corps is my way of life, but at the time I was young and I wasn't sure of what I wanted. I did know I wanted to box."

After choosing boxing over the Marines, Bice fought in the Golden Gloves where he earned a heavyweight title. After three years he made up his mind and re-enlisted in the Marine Corps in 1965. He's been there ever since.

"Even though I didn't want to give up my professional career as a boxer, I got married and I knew I'd have to give up something if I was to be a family man," explained Bice, "so with some influence from my wife, I gave up my short-lived career to enlist in the Marine Corps."

But, according to Jackie, that didn't end his boxing career; it only prolonged it.

"Like I said, he wanted to go to the top," Mrs. Bice explained. "So he adjusted himself to a Marine career with boxing as an alternate, and before I knew it he was coming home with boxing titles. On occasions he was even assigned as boxing coach at many duty stations, but boxing was then, and is now, only an off-and-on event."

Even though Bice's boxing experience has been an off-and-on affair he accomplished what his wife feels is a goal, for he holds the heavyweight titles for Okinawa, International Far East, Western Pacific and now the All-Marine crown.

The sergeant only extended his boxing career, and he says he's hanging up his gloves. But will he?

Bice will be competing in the interservice boxing heavyweight championships set for Tuesday, 9 and 10 in the Rickwell Hall gymnasium at the Little Creek Amphibious Base. Matches begin at 7:30 each night.

Bice blocks a punch delivered by Irving Taylor during the All-Marine heavyweight championship bout at Camp Lejeune, N.C., March 20. Bice won the match on a decision.

Knocks off Bayside, FC

PA off to surprising start

Don van Benschoten's Princess Anne baseball nine have had things their own way so far in the non-district season this spring, knocking off defending district champ Bayside and 1975 contender First Colonial last week.

Junior transfer Billy Capps pitched a no-hitter against the Patriots March 24, striking out four FC batters en route to his first win of the season. As a sophomore last season at Kellam, Capps finished 5-1. FC's Mike Gurley was stuck with the early loss.

Then March 25 the Cavaliers struck again, disabling Bayside by a 2-1 score in a game that went 11 innings. The pitching duel between PA's David Anderson -- another Kellam transfer -- and Bayside's Marty Moore finally ended on a wild throw by Marlin shortstop Buddy Miller that scored PA's Terry Sawyer.

Anderson shut out the Marlins for four consecutive innings in relief, while Moore recorded 14 strikeouts, allowing the Cavaliers a single hit in seven innings. Bayside's Artie Bueche was stuck with the loss.

The same day saw Coach Tom Fisher's Cox squad celebrate the brilliant spring weather with a 3-1 decision over Ted Phelps' visiting First Colonial squad. Falcon junior pitcher

Jack Ferrell gave up but one hit to the Patriots while his FC counterpart Carl McDonald surrendered two to Cox batters in the defensive struggle. Each team recorded four errors in the contest.

The Falcons exploded on those Patriot errors in the sixth inning, jumping on McDonald for all three of their runs for the afternoon. The junior FC hurler is 0-1, while Cox's Ferrell is 1-0.

March 26 saw both Cox and First Colonial again playing, the Falcons against Norfolk rival Mury. But the Commodores unleashed a first inning flurry of runs that saw them take a quick 5-0 lead before Cox had a chance to regain its composure. The Falcons started a modest rally in the fifth inning and again in the seventh, but three costly errors prevented them from overtaking Mury. Senior Mark Hodges was stuck with the loss.

Kellam met First Colonial March 26 and the Patriots recorded their first win of the season by a 2-1 score over the young Knights. Despite eight hits and two Kellam errors, the Patriots were hard-pressed to total two well-spaced runs in the contest.

Gurley evened up his pitching record at 1-1 for First Colonial. Junior southpaw Jim Henley got the loss for Kellam.

Rifle club has 'sighting-in' day

The Virginia Beach Rifle and Pistol Club is sponsoring a sighting-in day April 12 and 13 at the club's rifle range in Pungo to assist area sportsmen in properly adjusting their firearms' sights.

The service is part of a nation-wide effort on the part of the National Rifle Association to promote public interest in gun safety. Club members will be on hand at the range from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. April 12 and from 12 p.m. to 5 p.m. April 13 to provide sighting in assistance. Detailed information on sighting techniques and firing points for scoring in will be available at the range. Shooters are requested to have all firearms unloaded when actions open when entering the range area.

The club range is adjacent to the Pungo Fair Grounds. A donation of $2 per rifle to defray range expenses will be requested.

Softball tourney set

Virginia Beach's annual Spring Warm-up Softball Tournament will be April 19 and 20 at Princess Anne Park on Princess Anne Road.

The tourney, expected to include competition among as many as 36 city softball squads, will be double elimination. Teams will compete in either the open division or Class B competition.

To Mrs. B., it was more than a 3-alarm job. It was home.

Last year, in addition to giving emergency care to almost a quarter million Americans, we helped over 30 thousand families replace their households again -- households lost through flood, fire, and other disaster. Households like Mrs. B's.

Sometimes we help by locating a new home. Or even buying the household necessities that families so desperately need when they find themselves with nothing.

Hardly anybody thinks about what he'll do in a disaster -- until it hits home.

That's why we think it's so important that we're always thinking about it.

Every year, you know, Red Cross touches the lives of millions upon millions of Americans. Rich. Poor. Average. Black. White. Christian and Jew. With support. With comfort. With a helping hand when they need it.

So when you open your heart, with your time or your money, you can be certain it's in the right place.

Virginia Beach Seahawks retain city gymnastics title

The Virginia Beach Junior High's girl's gymnastics team, tutored by first-year coach Dede Motley, claimed their second consecutive city gymnastics crown March 26 by defeating Independence Junior 137 to 113.

Seahawk 9th grader Teresa Karnitschnig paced her team to its sixth win of the season by taking five first-place finishes and two second-place finishes in compulsory and optional routines.

The Seahawks came into the contest -- their last of the season -- with a perfect 5-0 record and carrying an 11-0 record over the past two years. Coach Gayle Blue's Independence squad, which finished up its season today against Plaza Junior, had previously not lost in four gymnastics meets this season.

Virginia Beach Junior had clean sweeps in the optional bars and compulsory vaulting events. Lorraine Knapp took first-place in the former while Karnitschnig finished first in the latter event.

Compulsory beam competition, as well as bars, floor exercise and vaulting, all saw Karnitschnig in the winner's circle. She also earned a first-place finish for her optional beam routine.

In optional vaulting, Knapp, a 9th grader, copped first, followed by teammate Karnitschnig and Independence's Carol Belcher. On the optional beam, the Eagles placed two girls, Maura Calian and Monica Springer, in the second and third spots.

In the optional uneven parallel bars competition, Virginia Beach's Cathy Hassler completed the Seahawks' sweep of that event with a third-place finish. The final event of the meet, optional floor exercise, saw Independence's Vicki Anglin take first. It was the only first-place finish Coach Blue's team recorded in the afternoon.

While most of Coach Motley's team this season are 9th graders and will be attending First Colonial next year, she is confident that 1976 will see another strong Virginia Beach Junior squad in contention for its third straight city title. "Our chances look very good," says Coach Motley, noting that her roster carries a number of promising 7th and 8th grade girls. "We should be undefeated next year."

Miss Motley, who admits that she had "never seen a whole meet" before taking the coaching position this year, is equally hopeful that junior high girls' gymnastics will expand past its regular season program. "We're going to get the coaches together for a meeting the second week in April," she says, so that plans for a post-season city-wide tournament may be discussed.

Salt water fishing tourney to open May 1

When the 18th Annual Virginia Salt Water Fishing Tournament opens May 1, it will take a heavier fish to earn a citation in at least two of the contest's 22 classes. There will also be one change in the list of eligible species.

A marked increase in the number of citation-size speckled trout and tautog has raised the minimum weight required to earn a tournament citation. Minimum citation weight for speckled trout has been raised from 4 to 5 pounds, and for tautog from 6 to 9 pounds.

Of the 4,250 citations awarded in the 1974 tournament, better than 25 percent were for tautog weighing for more pounds, nearly double the number of citation-size tautog taken in 1969.

The increase in large speckled trout has been no less amazing. In 1972 360 citation-sized speckled trout were taken by Tidewater anglers, while 434 were taken in 1973 and 433 last last year.

Sailfish, once rare on the Virginia coast, are being caught at the rate of 10 to 20 each year. The minimum citation-size for sailfish has been raised to 50 pounds. The state record for sailfish is 63 pounds.

One species removed from the eligible list was whiting, a fish that had replaced croaker on the list in 1971. But that year nine whiting were nabbed over the two-pound minimum, and the number has been on a steady decrease ever since. Three were taken last season.

All in all, four species have been dropped from the eligible list since the tournament was instituted in 1958. They include whiting, porgy, croaker and white perch.

The tournament, sponsored by the state of Virginia, will continue until Nov. 30. Citations are awarded for fish taken above the minimum weight set in 18 of the 22 classes. Blue and white marlin, sailfish and tarpon are worth a citation to the angler regardless of size.

There is no tournament entry fee. Fishermen may weigh their catches at any of the more than 100 weighing stations located throughout Tidewater.

Teresa Karnitschnig performs on beam. The Seahawk 9th grader garnered five first-places and two second-places in the March 26 meet with Independence. Virginia Beach Junior thus took the city girl's gymnastics crown.

To contain epidemic Beach in pilot VD program

Virginia Beach is part of a pilot program to stamp out gonorrhea, a venereal disease (VD) which has approached epidemic proportions in the city. The target is the source of the disease -- the contact.

While reported cases of gonorrhea doubled in Virginia Beach during the last six months of 1974 compared to the first half of the year from 228 to 406 cases, officials in the venereal disease program devised PROTECT, a program in which individuals who have contracted the disease are asked to alert their sexual partners that they have been exposed to the virus.

Dick Graham, VD program supervisor for an area including Virginia Beach, Chesapeake, North Hampton and Accomack, is one of two investigators who interview contacts for the Health Department from the North Carolina border to Maryland.

The Health Department has managed to control syphilis, which has an incubation period up to 90 days, but Graham said it is impossible to keep up with the spread of gonorrhea.

He explained that a person can pass the gonorrhea to a sexual partner three days after contracting the disease, and by the time a contact investigation can be made, it is too late to stop the spread of the virus. Instead, the VD program has asked physicians to supply gonorrhea patients with the PROTECT brochure, which includes two cards the patient is asked to give to his last two partners.

Doctors are asked to treat an individual holding a card for gonorrhea immediately -- without waiting for results of VD tests -- to prevent further spread of the disease. PROTECT, a double acronym, stands for Physician Referral Option to Encourage Contact Treatment, and for the patient it serves as a slogan: Please Remember Others Tell Each Contact Today.

If the program works the way Graham hopes it will, PROTECT will expedite treatment of gonorrhea and lag time between contraction of the disease and treatment will be shortened.

Graham emphasized the need for early treatment of gonorrhea, and he said that one of the reasons it spreads so rapidly is that individuals who contract the disease don't consider it a serious medical problem.

Although gonorrhea can be cured easily if it is treated in the early stages, symptoms are difficult for women to detect, and some men may also have the disease without knowing it.

Graham said the VD program is encouraging doctors to include gonorrhea cultures as a part of routine medical check-ups for women of child-bearing age.

Without treatment, gonorrhea can cause sterility, arthritis, a pelvic inflammatory disease which could require surgery, and infection and blindness in babies who are exposed to the disease at birth.

Graham estimated that the Health Department treats only 15 per cent of VD cases at its three Tidewater clinics, while the remaining 85 per cent of persons treated for VD go to their private doctors.

Although it is required by law, not all doctors report cases they treat to the Health Department, Graham said.

"But the more cases that are reported and tabulated," he added, "the more funds will be available for research and treatment."

Graham said most doctors have cooperated with the VD program, and he hopes they will encourage their VD patients to participate in PROTECT.

"We're interested in reaching incubating gonorrhea," he said, "in an effort to snuff it out before it becomes a case."

Virginia Beach operates a walk-in VD clinic Tuesday mornings at 19th Street and Arctic Avenue. Because of staff limitations, Graham said gonorrhea patients interviewed in an effort to reach contacts.

He said Virginia Beach could use a full-time clinic, and added that the present clinic will treat from 25 to 30 persons during the single morning it is open.

There is no stigma to the VD clinic, Graham added, because it is used as a center for family planning, immunization and other tests.

Pedding for TARC

Richard Pomnitz, 13, checks out a bicycle for his sister Theresa Pomnitz, 15, before the Youth Tidewater Association for Retarded Citizens (TARC) Bike Hike 1 p.m. Sunday.

The youth group has organized the fund raiser to help relieve TARC's $250,000 deficit. Bicyclists will peddle from Military Circle to Kellam High School to raise money from sponsors who pledge to donate money for each mile of the hike.

The Pomnitz youngsters, children of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Pomnitz of 237 Dillon Drive, Virginia Beach, are among 20 Virginia Beach members of Youth TARC. Bike hike coordinator Audrey Fritzell said the project still needs volunteer help to man refreshment stands and the Bike-Hike check points.

Individuals can volunteer by calling her at 853-1958 or 855-3083. In case of rain, the Bike Hike will be rescheduled April 13.

Sanitarian asks disability benefits

Virginia Beach's chief sanitarian and a city employee for 27 years is appealing to the State Retirement Board to receive disability retirement in the face of dismissal action.

Matthew J. Owens, recently was dismissed from his post as chief sanitarian, but actions against him are being held in limbo while the state waits for the results of the retirement hearing.

According to the sanitarian's lawyer, Nathaniel J. Cohen, his client has applied for medical disability retirement because he has been unable to perform duties. The attorney charged that harassment on the job caused nervousness which interfered with the sanitarian's performance.

Owens has been on sick leave since November. He had been criticized by the health department officials for approval of inappropriate septic tank lots, for attending City Council meetings and contacting councilmen personally opposing direct orders from Dr. Samuel A. Graham Jr., director of local services for the State Health Department, and for incompetent performance in a lake pollution study.

Registration for the classes, which begin at different times through the month of April, may be by mail or in person at the YWCA office. Fees for the classes range from $6 to $20, according to the type of supplies each requires.

Neptune seeks court beauties

The search is on for a bevy of seven princesses who will surround King Neptune II during the 10-day Neptune Festival Sept. 26 to Oct. 5, but candidates have only two more days to apply.

Application blanks for would-be princesses are available in the principals' offices of seven Virginia Beach high schools, including Cox, Kellam, Princess Anne, First Colonial, Kempsville, Bayside and Tidewater Christian.

Wills Duffield, deputy aide for youth events at the festival, said candidates must be juniors and plan to graduate in 1976. Applicants must be Beach residents in 1975-76 and maintain a "C" average or better in school.

Because one of the seven princesses will receive a $1,000 scholarship in January, entrants should plan to continue their education.

The application asks candidates why they want to be members of Neptune's court, and on April 14, the festival organizers will announce the names of 21 semi-finalists, according to festival executive director Frankie Abourjile. Three semi-finalists will be selected from each of the seven schools.

Judges, including Mildred Alexander, Vicki Randall, owner of Victoria Randall Modeling and Career Academy, King Neptune I, James Suller, Chamber President James Fletcher and Del. Don Rhodes (D-Virginia Beach), will select the seven princesses following private interviews with the semi-finalists.

The winners will be introduced at a teen fashion show scheduled in mid-May.

Princesses will receive a festival wardrobe. In addition, the Randall Academy will award two scholarships of $500 and $300, and the princess who is voted most congenial by members of the court will receive a gift certificate from Willner's Fashion Stores.

The judges will evaluate the scholastic achievements and community service activities of the princesses before selecting the scholarship recipient.

Frogs and things: Environment for biology

Learning is different things to different people. To some it's exciting and fun; to others it's serious business. In the Cox High School biology classes of Robert Rode and Arthur Koeppen, it's a little of each.

Using as many real-life and artificial biological samples as possible in their teaching program, the two instructors have created a classroom atmosphere which they feel helps their students learn the intricacies of biology.

Despite the fact that the students seem to enjoy being surrounded by climbing plants, hanging models of molecules, aquariums, animal cages, life-like reproductions and bottled specimens, many say it is still difficult to "get in the mood" to dissect a frog.

TCC offers new outdoor courses

Courses designed to catch the fancy of outdoorsmen will begin this month at the Virginia Beach campus of Tidewater Community College (TCC).

Philip Hohart will teach an eight-week course on backpacking. Classes will begin 7 p.m. April 14, and will include six classroom meetings as well as two field trips. Fee is $20, plus trip expenses.

Students will learn to read maps, to select proper equipment as well as actual backpacking techniques, first aid and safety. Field trips are planned May 3 and 17. For an additional $10 fee, students will set out on a three-day trip over Memorial Day weekend.

For students who would rather ride than walk, Hohart will also lead a class in bicycle touring. The group will begin meetings 7 p.m. April 17. Class fee is also $20.

Students will learn about bicycle touring techniques, safety, equipment selection and maintenance. The course includes a visit to a bicycle shop and bicycle tours on April 19 and May 3.

For Beach residents who want to get outside, but who prefer less activity, can dig into a landscaping course which will start 7 p.m. under the instruction of Carol Kasper. The first meeting will be in Room C-179. Fee for the nine-week course is $18.

Ms. Kasper said the course is planned for students who want more of a view of more food, but don't have a lot of time or money to devote to gardening.

The course will cover plant anatomy, physiology, propagation and pruning, landscape elements, ornamental gardens, soil and fertilizers, and food gardens.

For information on the classes, call the TCC Office of Continuing Education at 427-3070, Ext. 114.

Lyric Theatre: Search is on for Beach talent

A group of Virginia Beach artists are sounding the first notes in the life of the Lyric Theater of Virginia Beach, an organization which hopes to develop American opera and operetta productions.

The group's 19-man board recently elected officers, and President James Morrison said the first production may be scheduled as part of the Beach's Neptune Festival this fall.

Although the Lyric Theater intends to draw talent from adjacent cities, "We're a Virginia Beach group," Morrison said.

"We really think there is a great deal of interest in the arts here. Morrison said the theatre will combine most of the arts, from staging and singing, to dancing and drama.

He is presently recruiting volunteers. "There are one million and one jobs that need to be done in something like this," he explained, but he believes that finding talented artists in the area won't be a major problem.

"I think we can find the performers," Morrison said. "Our problem will be trying to finance it."

The theatre has applied for a grant from the Virginia Commission on the Arts and Humanities, but even if it is approved, the group will need support from individuals and the business community.

Another hurdle is finding an appropriate auditorium.

Morrison said the group will need room for audiences of 700 to 1,000 to be financially successful, which rules out the Virginia Beach Little Theatre building. He also said the Dome would be too small to be suitable for an opera.

Possibilities are use of high school auditoriums, but Morrison said the group may have to perform in Norfolk until Virginia Beach builds an auditorium.

Such a move was proposed recently by the Virginia Beach Development Council, a citizens' advisory committee which recommended that the city build a $4 million cultural center and auditorium if it undertakes construction of a $12 million convention complex.

The project has the support of City Manager George Hanbury, and councilmen have appeared to be favorably impressed with the convention center proposal, but no action has been taken to make the $18 million project a reality.

The Lyric Theater of Virginia Beach productions would include full staging and orchestras and organizers hope to sponsor three to four operas and operettas a year. Emphasis will be on American composers, Morrison said.

"We're hoping that both the use of the English language, which people can understand, and works by American composers dealing with contemporary situations will be a source of appeal," he explained. "I feel this is an area that needs to be heard more, and we hope there will be support for it."

Morrison

There is no lack of American material, Morrison added, and the theatre board includes the expertise of Dr. Harold Hawn, a specialist in American opera who teaches at Old Dominion University.

The theatre president said he anticipates that the orchestra will be paid, and eventually he hopes performers will also receive some salary for their work.

"I feel rather strongly that performers ought to be paid," and "but it's a hope and not a policy."

Morrison said the theatre is working on a membership program and it probably will conduct auditions soon to see what talent is available in the area.

However, he said performers will try out for individual productions, too, and he doesn't expect the same persons to appear in each opera.

The group also will bring in an occasional outside artist, he added, although most performers will be Tidewater residents. "We're just starting," he added, "and we have some hard thinking to do before we have a plan."

Officers in Lyric Theater of Virginia Beach include Anthony Rossi, vice-president; Maria Weber, secretary, and Edgar Komer, treasurer.

Board members include Mildred Alexander, G. Stafford Balderson, Athena Bassili, Sen. Joseph Canada, Henry Clarke, Joyce Clarke, David Clayton, Charles Grandy, Harold Hawn, James Hines, J. Charles Oliver, Charles Pitts, Dora Short, Vianne Webb and Charles Williams.

Individuals who are interested in the Lyric Theater may contact Morrison by calling 428-0587.

Rail rates revised

Elimination of an archaic rate system by Southern Railway means that Virginia Beach shippers will pay $40 to $50 less for each carload of materials traveling into the city by rail.

Virginia Beach Economic Development Director James De Bellis said the city worked for nearly a year for the reductions, which could have as much as an impact on construction firms which depend on the railroad for supplies, such as aggregate, sand, cement and asphalt, as well as lumber.

The discriminatory rates, which forced shippers to pay an increased fee from Norfolk to Virginia Beach, was a holdover from railroad earlier days. De Bellis explained, when "out of the way cities" were charged more for service.

The rail line serves the city-owned Airport and Oceana West industrial parks as well as Naval Air Station (NAS) Oceana. De Bellis said businesses along the rail line will also benefit from the lower rates.

The economic development director also noted that some truck rates also include arbitrary increases for goods shipped to Virginia Beach, and he said he is working to lower the rate structures of trucking firms which are detrimental to the development of the city.

Pair attends Paris meet

Richard and Sondra Cuppett of Rodgers Organ Studios in Virginia Beach recently attended a series of sales meetings sponsored by Conn Organ in Paris, France.

The sessions, which included educational demonstration techniques, also briefed organ dealers on sales, advertising, public relations, servicing, financing and engineering.

John A. Pemberton, a Navy management specialist chief petty officer, receives a Navy Achievement Medal and a Gold Star from Capt. W.D. Knutson, Naval Air Station (NAS) Oceana commander. Pemberton, recently transferred to NAS Oceana after two extended submarine deployments on the USS Finback, was commended for generating "excellent morale and racial accord for minority group members" as minority affairs representative on the submarine. In addition, he was cited for the performance of duties as NAS Oceana's human resources development officer.

Project revived

An upturn in the economy has convinced Terry Corp. to resurrect plans for $150 million Timberlake, a 600-acre residential tract which the firm had designed to include 2,500 homes.

Terry Corp., one of Virginia Beach's largest developers, had put the property on the market to raise money for other projects, according to a Terry spokesman, but the firm's board of directors reversed the decision this week.

Some banks reportedly have expressed interest in financing Timberlake, so Terry has decided to continue to develop the project.

The firm will concentrate on land development, he added, while other building firms will perform actual residential construction. Some homes have already been built on the property, including 50 townhomes and 90 single family homes.

Within thirty days after the acceptance of this franchise, the grantee shall deposit with the City Treasurer and maintain on deposit through the term of its franchise, the sum of $10,000 in cash and in addition shall post a construction performance bond in favor of the City of Virginia Beach in the amount of $500,000. The cash deposit shall serve as security for the faithful performance by the grantee of all of the provisions of this ordinance, excepting those pertaining to construction of the system, and compliance with all orders, permits, and directions of any agency of the City having jurisdiction over its work and construction performance bond, and the payment by the Grantee of any claims, fines, and taxes due the City which arise by reason of the operation or maintenance of the system. The construction performance bond shall serve as security for the faithful performance by the Grantee of all provisions of this ordinance pertaining to the construction of the system and shall be in such form and with such surety as approved by the City Attorney. The construction performance bond shall (Continued on next page) be reduced in pro rata increments as construction requirements are completed. Upon completion of construction as required by the franchise, the Grantee shall maintain an operating performance bond in the amount of $90,000 for the duration of the franchise. If the Grantee has made all required payments and shall have complied with all provisions of this ordinance, the City Treasurer shall be required to pay annually to the Grantee all interest earned from the investment of the cash deposit at a rate of one and one half percent above the average quarterly prime rate on or before July 1 of each year in which this franchise is in effect.

B. Within thirty days after notice to it that any amount has been withdrawn from the security fund deposited pursuant to paragraph A of this Section the Grantee shall pay to, or deposit with the City Treasurer a sum of money sufficient to restore such security fund to the original amount of $10,000.

C. If the Grantee fails to pay to the City any compensation within the time fixed herein; or fails after ten days notice to pay to the City any taxes due and unpaid; or fails to reply to the City within such ten days any damages, costs or expenses which the City shall be compelled to pay by reason of any act or default of the grantee in connection with this ordinance or its franchise or fails after three days notice by the City Manager of such failure to comply with any provision of this ordinance or its franchise which the City Manager reasonably determines can be remedied by an expenditure of the security, the Treasurer may immediately withdraw the same amount thereof, with interest and any penalties, from the security fund. Upon such withdrawal, the Treasurer shall notify the Grantee of the amount and date thereof.

D. The cash deposit and the construction performance bond and operating performance bond post-dated pursuant to paragraph A of this Section shall become the property of the City in the event the franchise is cancelled by reason of the default of the Grantee. The cash deposit shall be retained by the City and returned to the Grantee at the expiration of the franchise provided there is then no outstanding default on the part of the Grantee.

E. The rights reserved to the City with respect to the security fund are in addition to all other rights of the City whether reserved by this ordinance or authorized by law, and no action, proceeding or exercise of a right with respect to such security fund shall affect any other right the City may have.

14. Foreclosure

Upon the foreclosure or other judicial sale of all or a substantial part of the system or upon the termination of any lease covering all or a substantial part of the system, the Grantee shall notify the City Manager of such fact, and such notification shall be treated as a notification that a change in control of the Grantee has taken place and the provisions of Section 16 of this ordinance governing the consent of the City to such change in control of the Grantee shall apply. However, any order or agreement of sale of all or a substantial part of the system, which is made expressly subject to City Council approval of the transfer of the franchise, shall not be deemed a "sale" hereunder, unless and until such City Council approval is granted, provided the Grantee or a duly constituted receiver or trustee remains in operational control prior to such City Council approval.

15. Receivership

The City shall have the right to cancel this franchise one hundred and twenty days after the appointment of a receiver or trustee to take over and conduct the business of the Grantee whether in receivership, reorganization, bankruptcy or other action or proceeding, unless such receivership or trusteeship shall have been vacated prior to the expiration of said one hundred and twenty days, or unless:

1. Within one hundred and twenty days after any election or appointment, such receiver or trustee shall have fully complied with all the provisions of this ordinance and remedied all defaults thereunder; and,

2. Such receiver or trustee within said one hundred and twenty days shall have executed an agreement, duly approved by the court having jurisdiction in the premises, whereby such receiver or trustee assumes and agrees to be bound by each and every provision of this ordinance and the franchise granted to the original Grantee. Appointment of a receiver or other transfer of control pursuant to this Section shall be governed by and be in compliance with applicable rules and regulations of the FCC. To the extent that FCC or other approvals are required, Grantee shall assist and cooperate in the obtaining of such approval.

16. Restrictions Against Assignment

A. No transfer of control or assignment of the franchise, the cable television system, or any part thereof shall be effective without the prior written consent of the City Council, which consent shall not be unreasonably withheld.

B. The consent or approval of the City Council to any assignment, lease, transfer, sublease or mortgage of the franchise granted to the Grantee shall not constitute a waiver or release of the right of the City in and to the streets.

C. The Grantee shall promptly notify the City Manager of any actual or proposed change in or transfer of or acquisition by any other party, of control of the grantee. The word "control" as used herein is not limited to majority stock ownership but includes actual working control in whatever manner exercised. Every change, transfer or acquisition of control of the grantee shall make the franchise subject to cancellation unless and until the City Council shall have consented thereto. For the purpose of determining whether it shall consent to such change, transfer or acquisition of control, the City Council may require into the qualifications of the prospective controlling party, and the Grantee shall assist the City Council in any such inquiry. If the City Council does not schedule a hearing on the matter within sixty days after notice of the change or proposed change and the filing of a petition requesting its consent, it shall be deemed to have consented. In the event that the City Council adopts a resolution denying its consent and such change, transfer or acquisition of control has been effected, the City Council may cancel the franchise unless control of the grantee is restored to its status prior to the change or to a status acceptable to the City Council.

D. The Grantee may mortgage or pledge the grant, system, or any part thereof for financing purposes, and may engage in the sale of its stock publicly and in accordance with applicable laws. Any mortgage or pledge shall be subordinate to the rights of the City under this ordinance and applicable law, and shall be subject to the prior written consent of Council, whose consent shall not be unreasonably withheld.

17. Cancellation and Expiration

A. The City shall have the right to cancel the franchise if the grantee fails to comply with any material and substantial provision of this ordinance or of the grant of the franchise or any reasonable order or direction or permit issued by any City department or agency pursuant to such material and substantial provision or any rule or regulation promulgated by the City which is reasonable in light of, and consistent with any provision of this ordinance or the franchise; or if the grantee persistently fails to comply with any provision of either, or any reasonable order, direction or permit issued. Cancellation shall be by resolution of the City Council duly adopted in accordance with the following procedures:

I. The City Manager shall notify the grantee of the alleged failure, persistent failure of compliance and give the grantee a reasonable opportunity to correct such failure or persistent failure or to present facts and argument in refutation of the alleged failure or persistent failure.

II. If the City Manager then concludes that there is a basis for cancellation of the franchise pursuant to paragraph A of this Section, it shall notify the grantee thereof.

III. If within a reasonable time the grantee does not remedy and/or put an end to the alleged failure or persistent failure, the City Council after a public hearing by the City Council on notice, may cancel the franchise if it determines that such action is warranted under paragraph A of this Section.

B. If for ten consecutive days, the system or any part thereof, is inoperative, or if the same is inoperative for thirty days out of any consecutive twelve months, the City Council may cancel the franchise.

C. The Grantee shall not be declared in default or be subject to any sanction under any provision of this ordinance or the franchise in any case in which the performance of any such provision is prevented for reasons beyond its control.

D. If all or part of the streets within the City are closed or discontinued as provided by statute, then the franchise and all rights and privileges hereunder with respect to said streets or any part thereof so closed or discontinued, shall cease and desert with the date of the adoption of the ordinance closing and discontinuing such streets and the same shall not be entitled to damages from the City due to the closing or discontinuance of such streets, or for injury to any part of the system in the streets or for the removal or relocation of the same.

E. If the system is taken or condemned pursuant to law, the franchise shall, at the option of the City Council, cease and desert on the date of the vesting title pursuant to such law, or condemnation and any award to the grantee in connection with such taking or condemnation shall not include any valuation based on the franchise.

F. Upon cancellation or expiration of the franchise, the City shall have the right to purchase the system in accordance with paragraph G of this Section. If the City Council may direct the grantee to cease operation of the system. If the City elects to purchase the system, the Grantee shall promptly execute all appropriate documents to transfer title to the City, and the grantee shall assign all other contracts, leases, licenses, permits, and any other rights necessary to maintain continuity of service to the public. The Grantee shall cooperate with the City, or such agency or person authorized or directed by the City Manager to operate the system for a temporary period in maintaining continuity of service. Nothing herein is intended as a waiver of any other right the City may have.

G. If the franchise:

1. is cancelled by the City Council by reason of the Grantee's default, the system shall, at the election of the City, become the property of the City at a cost not to exceed 90% of the fair market value of the system as a going concern, including physical assets and intangibles. Such fair market value, if not agreed upon, shall be determined by arbitration as provided in Section 18 of this ordinance.

2. terminates by expiration of its term, the purchase price to the City of the system shall be its full fair market value as a going concern, including physical assets and intangibles. Such fair market value, if not agreed upon, shall be determined by arbitration as provided in Section 18 of this ordinance.

3. terminates by the assumption of ownership of the system by the City, the City Council shall make every effort to secure the sale of the system to a person satisfactory to the City. In seeking such a person, the City Council shall advertise for bids and use such other reasonable and practicable means to secure a purchaser as may be available.

18. Arbitration

A. Matters which are expressly arbitrable under the provisions of this ordinance shall be determined by an Arbitration Panel which shall consist of not more than three members to be named by the City Council and the Grantee. Where arbitration is expressly authorized by this ordinance, the decision of the Arbitration Panel shall be a condition precedent to any cause of action based on such expressly arbitrable matters.

B. If the City Council and Grantee agree on a three member panel, the membership shall be one person named by the grantee, one member named by the City Council, with the third member or presiding officer to be named by the grantee's representative and the Council's representative acting jointly. If they fail to agree as to the presiding officer, the presiding officer shall be named in the same manner as provided in paragraph D of this Section.

C. If the parties choose to name a single member panel, such member shall be named by the grantee and the Council acting jointly.

D. If the parties cannot agree as to the third member of the three member panel as described in paragraph B of this Section or as to the single member panel as provided in paragraph C of this Section, then after ten days notice on motion of either party, the court having jurisdiction of the matter in dispute shall appoint the member necessary to complete the Arbitration Panel.

E. Each party shall bear the expenses of its own representative. The expenses of the third representative shall be borne equally by the grantee and the City Council. The expenses of the arbitration shall be borne as determined by the Arbitration Panel in its award or finding, but no event shall the City be obliged for more than one-half of the expenses.

F. The determination of the single member panel or a majority of a three member panel shall be binding on the parties.

19. Day to Day Regulation

A. The City Manager after affording the Grantee a reasonable opportunity to be heard, shall devise, promulgate and administer such reasonable rules, regulations and procedures as may be required to implement the provisions of this ordinance and the franchise ordinance, or any subsequent ordinance, ruling, contract, or agreement adopted or entered into by the City Council with regard to the CATV system. Such rules, regulations, and procedures shall be reasonable and confined to matters pertaining to the day to day enforcement of policies adopted by the Council.

B. In cases where requests for service or adjustments have been ignored or unfilled for other than just cause, the City Manager shall have the power to require the Grantee to provide service in response to all reasonable requests as the City Manager may determine.

C. The Grantee may appeal any decision made pursuant to this section as provided for in Section 23 of this ordinance.

D. Nothing in this section shall be construed to act as a waiver of any other rights or powers the City might have against the Grantee, for any of the situations described in paragraphs A-D of this section.

20. Liquidated Damages

For non-compliance with any of the foregoing material provisions of this ordinance, there shall be assessed as liquidated damages the following:

i. for failure to submit plans indicating expected dates of installation of various parts of the system as provided for in Section 10-A, $100 per day;

ii. for failure to commence operations in accordance with Section 6-B, $200 per day, or at the discretion of City Council, for each three (3) months delay in commencement of operation the term of the franchise may be reduced by one (1) year;

iii. for failure to complete construction and installation of the system as provided for in Section 6-C and 6-D, $350 per day, or at the discretion of City Council, for each three (3) months delay in the completion of construction and the installation of the system, the term of the franchise may be reduced by one (1) year;

iv. failure to provide data of Sections 6-10 and 10-50 per day;

v. for persistent failure to comply with reasonable recommendations of the City Manager relating to rules or services as provided for in Section 19 and such reasonable requests or recommendations as may be made pursuant to authority granted by this ordinance - $50 per day;

vi. for failure to restore the cash deposit as required in Section 13B within the specified thirty days, the entire cash deposit remaining (if any) and the full amount of the operating performance bond shall be forfeited.

B. The Grantee shall not be liable for any failure to meet any and all of the above requirements due to Federal, State or local action, statute or ordinance, act of God, riot or other civil disturbance.

C. The Grantee may appeal any penalty which it considers unreasonable as provided for in Section 23 of this ordinance.

21. Hiring and Employment Practices

The Grantee shall not refuse to hire or employ, nor bar or discharge from employment, nor discriminate against any person in compensation or in terms, conditions or privileges of employment because of age, race, creed, color, national origin or sex.

22. Appeals

In the event the Grantee questions the reasonableness of any order, requirement, decision or other action taken by the City or shall be of the opinion that the City lacks authority to take such action, the Grantee shall be allowed to appeal the order, requirement, decision or other action to the City Council. The notice of objection and request for an appeal shall be made in writing to the City Manager within two weeks of the objectionable order, requirement, decision or other action. The effectiveness of such order, etc. may be stayed by the action of the City Council upon its receipt of the notice of objection, pending the Council's final determination of the appeal. This stay shall not affect any retrospective application of Councils upholding any such order, etc.

23. Sundry Provisions

A. Every direction, notice or order to be served upon the grantee shall be sent to its office in the City by registered mail as established by Section 11A of this ordinance. Every notice served upon the City shall be delivered or sent by registered mail to the Office of the City Manager, Municipal Center, Virginia Beach, Virginia 23466. The delivery or mailing of such notice or order shall be deemed to have been given at the time of delivery.

B. All provisions of this ordinance shall apply to the grantee, its successors, and assigns, as such may be approved by City Council in accordance with this ordinance.

C. The rights granted by this ordinance are subject to all franchises and permits heretofore or hereafter granted by the Council or by the Council of the former City of Virginia Beach to use the streets of the City by other public utility or public service corporations. It is not intended by the grant of this franchise to abridge the exercise of the police power heretofore or hereafter granted to the City by the General Assembly. The grant of this franchise is subject to all ordinances and resolutions of the Council of the City as the same now exist or may be hereafter amended, revised or codified, in the lawful exercise of any other power granted to the City by the General Assembly.

D. Specific mention of the materiality of any of the provisions herein is not intended to be exclusive of any others for the purpose of determining whether any failure of compliance hereunder is material and substantial.

E. If any particular section of this ordinance or the particular application thereof, shall be held invalid, the remaining provisions and their application shall not be affected thereby. Further, if any particular section of this ordinance or provision of the franchise award is determined by the FCC to be improper in any respect, the franchise grantee is hereby prohibited from negotiating changes thereto with the FCC without first obtaining specific approval to do so from City Council. Where such approval has not been obtained, the City Council requests deferral by the FCC of its Certificate Award process and a return of the matter to the City Council for its review and appropriate action.

F. The Grantee, upon its acceptance of this franchise, shall be bound by the provisions of this ordinance and all responses, statements, and information contained in its bid.

G. The Grantee should conform to any minimum standards adopted by the Virginia Public Telecommunications Council pursuant to Section 15.1-23.1 of the Counties, Cities and Town Statutes (Code of Virginia), especially those referenced in Chapter III of the "Master State Plan for Public Telecommunications" which refer to the jurisdiction of Committee(s) of Educational Interests and/or leased "Commonwealth Channels" (access), except to the extent that such standards are pre-empted by rules, regulations, and policies of the FCC.

H. All new FCC rules that are applicable to each and all of the operations of any franchise granted under the terms of this ordinance, shall be adopted by City Council and made a part of this ordinance, within one (1) year of passage by FCC.

24. Landlord-Tenant Relationships

Abstract agreements to the contrary:

A. If a tenant wishes to obtain service from the Grantee and the landlord of the premises does not desire service, the tenant may, upon furnishing written permission from the landlord and upon payment of all costs and assumption of liability for future payment of all costs and service, receive service from the grantee.

B. If a tenant does not desire service and the landlord wishes to have an outlet installed in the premises, the landlord may have such outlet or outlets installed in the premises upon the giving of notice to the tenant of the time and place of the actual installation, with all costs to be borne by the landlord.

There were queens galore at the 1975 Annual NJROTC Military Ball, including a half dozen from Virginia Beach. The queens, each representing the high school NJROTC unit, reigned over 400 couples at the Wheelhouse at Naval Amphibious Base Little Creek.

Sex crimes lecture slated

Virginia Beach Police Sgt. Willie Haden will present a program on sex crimes Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. in the City Council Chambers of the Administration Building.

The session is the fourth in a series of monthly public awareness lectures sponsored by the Virginia Beach Police Division.

Lt. Milton Beane said the lecture will delve into the criminal aspects of sex crimes, such as rape and assault, including discussion of past Beach cases. There will be a question-and-answer period following the program, he added.

Beane, who planned the awareness program following public response to police lectures on self-defense and it's successful anti-burglary HIT program, said attendance was good for the first two lectures, with 65 persons attending the session of self-defense for women and 48 sitting in on the program on burglaries.

However, he said only 10 persons showed up for last month's program on self-defense for women and 48 sitting in on the program on burglaries.

Beane indicated that he felt the poor response was partially caused by inadequate publicity about the program.

Peoriasis to meet

The Tidewater chapter of the National Peoriasis Foundation will meet today at 8 p.m. at the General Hospital of Virginia Beach. The meeting is open to the public.

Navy band clinic canceled

The 19th Annual All-Eastern Band and Instrumental Clinic, sponsored yearly by the Little Creek Naval Amphibious Base's School of Music, has been canceled. Naval spokesman recently announced.

The clinic, scheduled for Thursday, Friday and Saturday at the base's School of Music, was canceled because of recent cuts in funds available to military personnel for travel. The clinic in the past attracted bands and military bandmasters from all over the East Coast.

"One of the purposes of this program is to train military bandmasters," said a Navy official, "and if they can't attend it defeats the whole purpose." The official added that invitations are sent to bases and bandmasters located everywhere east of the Mississippi River. Past programs included shows by Virginia Beach high school bands and nationally popular show bands.

Navy officials expressed hope that the clinic may be re-instated next year.

Beach residents tour with choir

Seven Virginia Beach residents will be part of Virginia Wesleyan College's 32-voice choir scheduled to begin its spring tour Sunday with concerts in Hampton and Virginia Beach.

Kathryn Anderson, Carolyn Cox, Brenda Diggs, Sheila Escalada, Angela Godwin, Norman Johnson and Robert Lindsay, all of Virginia Beach, will tour with the college choir, directed by assistant professor of music Dr. David Clayton, on a 12-concert circuit beginning Sunday at the Thalia Trinity Presbyterian Church in Virginia Beach and the Bethany United Methodist Church in Hampton.

The choir will also be performing in McClean, Arlington, Chesapeake, Highland Springs, Chincoteague and Norfolk throughout the month of April.

Seven city artists win in Beach show

Seven Virginia Beach residents were among 10 Tidewater artists who received certificates of excellence at the Virginia Beach Art Center's members' show this weekend. The four-day exhibit, held Friday through Monday at the Civic Center, included more than 400 works from 200 area artists. The works were judged by Dr. Herbert Burgar, dean of the School of Arts at Virginia Commonwealth University.

TARC offers book

Virginia Beach parents of handicapped youngsters can request a guide to education from the Virginia Association for Retarded Children, according to Carolyn Brickland, executive director of the Tidewater Association for Retarded Children.

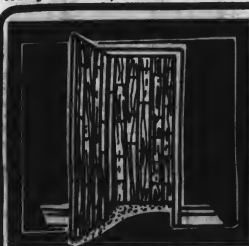

The 17-page booklet, "You Can Get Your Child Into School: A Guide for Parents of Handicapped Children," is available by writing the association at 827 East Main St., Suite 1801, Richmond 23219.

Lewis Zieske, director of the state association, said the guide describes the handicapped child's right to free public education under Virginia's special education mandate.

It explains what steps a parent can take to get his child into school. By the 1976-77 school year, Zieske reported that Virginia public schools will be required to provide an educational program for handicapped children between the ages of 2 and 21.

Residents oppose Sandbridge park route

By MARY RODA
Sun Staff Writer

Sandbridge residents who say they do not want 25,000 motorists driving through their community each day to reach False Cape State Park this week threatened to fight a northern route through the Back Bay Wildlife Refuge in court if necessary.

The proposed route, known as Corridor 1, is one of three alternatives which will be studied in an environmental impact statement by the Virginia Division of Parks.

More than 300 persons filled the Plaza Junior High School auditorium Monday night to hear 26 persons respond to a preliminary access study prepared by Howard, Needles, Tammen and Bergendoff, Alexandria consultants.

In most cases, speakers disagreed about the best access routes to the park, although two groups -- the Sandbridge residents and property owners of Outer Banks resort property -- found themselves strongly for or against Corridor 1.

The park is 'for all the people, not just a few.'
- Sen. A. Joseph Canada

Sandbridge homeowners favored the southernmost route, while Outer Banks property owners, who have been fighting for access through the Back Bay Wildlife Refuge, the most direct route to resort property in North Carolina, favored Corridor 1, which crosses Sandbridge Beach.

In the preliminary evaluation of nine alternative access routes to the park, consultants indicated the three best routes included the road through Sandbridge, central road (Corridor 7) running east from the abandoned Creeks Field and a southern access (Corridor 9) which jogs south of the North Carolina state line.

In addition to the nine corridors, the access study considered five transit modes: bus or automobile, a tram, a narrow gauge railroad, monorail and excursion boat.

Because of high cost, the report recommended that Virginia drop consideration of a monorail and excursion boat transportation system and instead concentrate on access to the park using private cars, bus, a tram or a narrow gauge railroad.

Henry D. Green III, president of the Sandbridge Civic League, argued against Corridor 1. "To move 25,000 people a day back and forth across the beach would be intolerable on the present road system," he contended, and he estimated that purchasing prime Sandbridge property to widen the road would cost $17 million.

'I don't believe what my state has done to me in completely destroying my access.'
- Dr. John Dickerson

(Park officials have estimated that in peak visiting periods, 25,000 would enter the park in a single day, with as many as 20,000 visitors in the False Cape area at one time.) Green also noted that one of the terminals, which would include parking lots for visitors, would wipe out Little Island Park in southern Sandbridge, "and we don't want to lose one of our city parks."

George Times, assistant to Virginia Beach City Manager George Hamby, said he lives at 3617 S. Sandfiddler Road facing Little Island Park.

Routing park traffic through the area, he said, would be disruptive and "change the residential character of Sandbridge Beach." It would cause Sandbridge to deteriorate so that it is no longer an ideal place to live and raise a family.

Times urged the Park Division to study other routes and eliminate Corridor 1 from (See FALSE CAPE, p. A-2)

Worth waiting for?

Legal problems facing Virginia Beach's first beachfront public restroom could push construction of the facility into the middle of the tourist season, according to City General Services Director Oral Lambert.

In an interview with The Sun this week, Lambert said the threat of legal complications over the proposed 24th Street restroom will make it impossible to complete the project by its original June 15 deadline.

However, he indicated that the city still plans to go ahead with the project, and it hopes to advertise bids for the $145,000 facility next week.

An unnamed group represented by Virginia Beach attorney Leigh Ansell has threatened to ask for an injunction to prevent construction of the restroom.

Ansell, who said he was retained by 15 to 20 citizens, including some beachfront businesses, has asked the city to seek alternatives to the beachfront restrooms. The group contends that building a facility at the foot of 24th Street would be "illegal and unlawful use of a public street."

Lambert, however, said construction of the restroom, originally scheduled to start this month, could begin May 6. He estimated that the project would be completed within 90 days.

Some oceanfront merchants have expressed concern that construction would be underway in the height of the tourist season, but Lambert said that disturbances caused by construction at the site would be minimal.

In fact, he recently told the city's Pacific and Atlantic Movement, Parking and Image Study (PAMPIS) Committee that the area might be an attraction for sightseers.

"We could be in a position to break ground in three to four weeks," Lambert said, as long as no legal problems, such as the Ansell's threat to seek an injunction, bar the way.

The Sun was unable to reach Ansell for comment, but Lambert said he knew of no legal action which had been filed against the project.

Ansell's group has suggested that the city purchase an abandoned gas station at 24th Street and Atlantic Avenue and convert it to a beachfront facility.

He also said concession-stall bathhouses, in which beach-goers would pay to use toilet facilities, could be an alternative.

Ansell said earlier that his clients are concerned that the beachfront restroom would become an eyesore, and he questioned whether the city could maintain a public restroom adequately.

The proposed 24th Street facility would be a test project to determine if Virginia Beach should build five more restrooms at six-block intervals along the boardwalk.

The facility is designed as part of a pedestrian mall. The building itself would be disguised as a grassy mound topped by a patio, and the mall would include beaches, water fountains and a community bulletin board.

The restrooms were included in recommendations made by the Planning Department's PAMPIS previously under review by a citizen's advisory committee.

Beach teachers get raise

A new contract calling for pay raises from between 9 and 11 per cent for Virginia Beach Public Schools' teachers was approved by the School Board in a special meeting Thursday night.

After collective bargaining negotiations between representatives from the School Board and the Virginia Beach Education Association (VBEA), which represents 1,800 of the city's 2,600 teachers, the contract was approved.

Though the contract does not specify salary for beginning teachers, the School Board is expected to increase it from $7,850 to $8,900 per year. After one year, teachers would be paid $8,600. Currently, teachers with one year experience make $8,084.

The highest teachers pay in the new contract is $16,350 after 13 years experience and 30 years of graduate work beyond a master's degree.

A no-strike clause is included in the contract.

A spokesman for the VBEA called the contract's approval a step toward collective bargaining for all teachers in the South Hampton Roads area.

The School Board termed the contract "a well-deserved salary and fringe benefit increase" which will serve quality education.

The contract covers the city's 3,000 teachers, teacher aides and nurses. It does not apply to the other 1,400 administrative and support personnel employed by the city schools.

Computer-assisted radios may speed police response

"Imagine yourself being on a party line with 45 other people."

That's the situation Virginia Beach patrolmen found themselves in last summer when 90 police units shared a pair of VHF radio channels for communication with the police dispatcher, according to James Smith, a representative for Motorola, low bidder on a sophisticated communications system which could end the Police Department's communication gap.

During briefing Monday, Virginia Beach councilmen appeared to be ready to take the first step toward computerizing a system for policemen working on the street.

Although the computer system, which would put terminals in 60 police cars, sounds like a luxury, City Manager George Hamby said it will save actually save the city money. Hamby said the police communications system, confronting a rapidly growing community, was so inadequate the city was forced to consider two alternatives: doubling the radio dispatch channels using a UHF system that would cost $276,756 a year, in addition to the salaries of 14 more dispatchers, or shelling out $140,000 a year for the computerized dispatching.

Hamby reported that the new system might qualify for a $150,000 civil defense grant which would pay for the first year's cost of the computer terminals, but he added that he put $100,000 in the Police Division's 1975-76 budget for the project.

Patrolmen would be able to use the type-written like computer terminals in their cars to get routine information, such as run-downs on license plate numbers and names.

The computer would also log the police unit's activities, and automatically notify the police dispatcher of each car's availability to respond to a call.

Police Chief W.W. Davis said the system should cut down on response time on police calls, and it will insure that the more important calls are answered immediately. According to Smith, it's a system for efficiently allocating the Police Department's resources: men and cars.

"We didn't get the idea for computer-assisted dispatchers because some engineer had a wild idea," the Motorola representative remarked. The idea originated with the New York City Police Department, he noted, and now the system can be economically applied to smaller cities.

By directing information directly to the computer, Smith said, the Police Department also will eliminate paperwork.

Previously a dispatcher had to jot down information, pass it on to a key punch operator who then prepared a computer card for the city's IBM computer.

That system, Davis said, frequently resulted in errors because the key punch operator could not read the dispatcher's handwriting.

Hamby emphasized that the computerized system will not eliminate radio contact with police vehicles.

The direct contact is especially important when a crime is in process, he noted, but the computer will lighten traffic so the important calls can get through.

The computer itself will depend on the radio to send messages, but those will last only seconds.

Smith also said use of the computer will give the police more privacy from scramblers who have police radios and who follow the communications on the police band radio.

Hamby said the system would be expanded to include fire stations once the police and fire divisions move into Virginia Beach's new public safety building.

Because there are so many new neighborhoods developing in Virginia Beach, he reported, fire calls are sometimes delayed while the dispatcher tries to find the area on the city map. Under the proposed system, the computer would automatically locate the station which should respond to the call.

At the same time, the computer will tell the dispatcher what equipment the fire station has on hand to determine if assistance is needed.

Councilman Dr. J. Henry McCoy praised the system. "Along with sewers and water," he said, "police services are right at the top. I feel this is a bargain."

"I think so, too," remarked Mayor J. Curtis Payne.

Davis reported that the computer system, with its highly sophisticated records, also will enable police management to analyze day-to-day activities of policemen "from coffee breaks to court appearances."

False Cape

its consideration. "If not," he warned, "we'll vigorously pursue our legal remedies."

Maxine Graham, who lives at 3057 S. Sandpiper Road and who is a realtor, said she has lived in the beach community for nine years, "long enough to know what it took to make Sandbridge what it is and put Sandbridge on the map."

Gerald Cole of 2741 S. Sandfiddler Road, remarked, "I live right in the middle of what is usually referred to as Corridor 1." If it were the only access route to the park, he said, "I could assure you that not one of my neighbors would oppose it. We're not trying to hog a part of the world to ourselves."

But because there are other alternatives,

Cole said, "We will oppose Corridor 1 very vigorously, legally if necessary."

The route is the only one which would result in a "displacement of a community," he added.

Speaking for the other side, Outer Banks residents, property owners and sports fishing areas off the North Carolina coast argued in favor of the Sandbridge route. Sen. A. Joseph Canada (R-Virginia Beach) said the state faced a two-fold problem: preservation of the environment and economic access to the park area.

Canada, who said he favored Corridor 1, said a road through Back Bay Wildlife Refuge would not have to be environmentally degrading. He cited a road on Pea Island which has had a minimal impact on the environment.

"No one wants to do any harm to the environment," Canada asserted, but Virginia has to look at economic considerations. It must determine the most economical way to get the most people into the park, he said. The park is "for all the people, not just a few."

Thomas White of the Virginia Wildlife Federation urged that the park access road travel behind the barrier dunes along the coastline. "It would be the most direct and least expensive way," he said, "and would save millions of dollars."

Dr. John Dickerson of 1330 Upper Brandon Place said he is a sportsfisherman as well as a member of the Save the Bay Foundation, the Wildlife Foundation and the Sierra Club, but he heatedly criticized Virginia for cutting off access to the Outer Banks area.

"I don't believe what my state has done to me in completely destroying my access," he complained before he walked out of the auditorium, followed by a roasting cheer from the audience.

Ron Whitehurst of John Hancock Drive, also an Outer Banks property owner, said he favored the Corridor 1, and he was joined by Robert Chambers of 112 45th St., representing a fishermen's organization.

Chambers urged Virginia to "develop an area the taxpayers can use" by permitting direct automobile access from the north along Corridor 1.

Robert Hassock of Portsmouth also urged construction of a direct northern route through Sandbridge and the refuge. He remarked that the southernmost Corridor 9 was a "superb idea, but it's a long way off."

Several environmental groups, including the Sierra Club and the Audubon Society, endorsed Corridor 9, which would follow North Carolina Route 615, also known as The Causeway.

Ben Boles, representing the Division of Parks, said one more community meeting will be scheduled in addition to a public hearing on the final plan.

He said the first community meeting held several months ago resulted in expanding the advisory task force to include some groups which had not been represented. The earlier meeting also convinced Virginia to include automobile access in the study, he said.

Broyles to chair program

Virginia Beach attorney Thomas C. Broyles has been named city chairman of the Friends of Virginia Wesleyan College annual giving program.

Broyles joins business and professional leaders from Chesapeake, Portsmouth and Norfolk who were named city chairman for the four Tidewater cities last week.

Robert P. Albergo Jr.

of Norfolk, general chairman of the 1975 Friends program, said the goal this year was $85,000. Funds raised in the program are used for annual operating support, particularly library materials and scholarship aid, at Virginia Wesleyan College. Last year, the Friends drive raised more than $22,000.

The drive will end June 30.

ert P. Albergo Jr., Friends general chairman, and Virginia Wesleyan College President Lambuth M. Clarke.

Wolfsnare on historical list

Virginia Beach's Upper Wolfsware plantation is officially a historical landmark.

The plantation house, owned by the Princess Anne Historical Society and known for its architecture which was once typical of Virginia Beach structures, has been placed on the National Register of Historic Places by the Department of the Interior.

Rep. G. William Whitehurst (R-Virginia Beach) reported that the plantation house, once known as the Brickhouse farm, was nominated for the register by the Virginia Historic Landmarks Commission. The listing will make the house eligible for preservation grants.

Upper Wolfsware was built in the 1750's by Maj. Thomas Walke, the father of a leading loyalist Whig during the American Revolution.

The interior woodwork of the house plain paneling.

The historical society, which accepted the plantation house as a gift in 1966, is presently under restoration.

News Briefs

Beach Borough Councilman Robert H. Callis is making a bid for Republican state Sen. A. Joseph Canada's seat.

Callis, a Virginia Beach councilman since 1970, filed for the Democratic nomination Tuesday. No other Democratic candidates have filed for the seat, and Callis could automatically become the Democratic Senatorial candidate Friday when filing for the June 10 primary ends.

The councilman, 44, is president of the Virginia Pilots Association. He is a past officer of the Virginia Beach Democratic Committee.

Callis lives at 105 48th St., Virginia Beach, with his wife, Ann, and their four children.

Bernard Barrow, a Virginia Beach attorney, will file candidacy papers for the Democratic nomination for the House of Delegates today.

Barrow, who will challenge Virginia Beach incumbents Glen McClannan, Owen Pickett and Donald Rhodes in the June 10 primary, is the first newcomer to lose his bid into the ring for the Beach's Democratic nomination.

Barrow, 37, is a partner in the firm Barrow and Love. He served on the Beach's Community Development Act Committee and was chairman of the Mayor's Drug Focus Committee. He also served on the United Drug Abuse Council and recently was appointed to the Juvenile and Domestic Relations Court Service Advisory Committee. He worked on the Ethics Committee for the Virginia State Bar Association.

Barrow and his wife, Mary, live at 509 Windsor Road, Virginia Beach. They have two children.

Hearing scheduled

A court hearing is scheduled May 14 for the owner of the Beach Adult Gift Shop who was charged with the sale of obscene material after police raided his shop Thursday afternoon.

Police confiscated films, magazines and books from the shop owned by Richard L. Goudie, 27, who lives on 27th Street near the beach. His shop is in the 300 block of Virginia Beach Boulevard.

Goudie is charged with a misdemeanor under a state statute covering the sale, possession or publication of obscene items.

Funeral services were Tuesday afternoon for Floyd E. Waterfield Sr., 62, the father of Virginia Beach Councilman Floyd E. Waterfield Jr.

Waterfield, who resided at 3145 Mill Landing Road, Virginia Beach, died Saturday. He lived in Princess Anne County and Virginia Beach throughout his life.

Also surviving are his wife, Lois Bonner Waterfield, two sisters, a brother and two granddaughters.

Waterfield, a farmer, belonged to the Charity United Methodist Church. He was a member of the Princess Anne Ruritan Club.

The family requested that memorials be made to the Creeds Rescue Squad.

CIA named in suit

The Central Intelligence Agency (CIA) has been named in a $10 million suit by a Virginia Beach man who said the CIA is responsible for the failure of Bell Mortgage Corp., which had offices in the Beach as well as Miami, Jacksonville and Wilmington, Del.

Andres Castro, formerly president of Bell Mortgage, claimed he was persuaded to use his company as a front to raise money for covert CIA activities by two Cuban exiles, Guillermo Gigenas and Antonio Iglesias, of Miami, who claimed to represent the intelligence agency.

The CIA has denied that it had any association with the bankrupt mortgage firm.

Council reaches gun compromise

By NEAL SIMS
Sun Editor

A compromise ordinance restricting hunting and shooting in Virginia Beach was passed by City Council Monday. The new ordinance virtually bans discharging firearms in the heavily-populated areas of northern Virginia Beach, yet allows farmers and landowners of 50 or more acres to use firearms under strictly regulated conditions.

Kempville Councilman Dr. J. Henry McCoy earlier had proposed banning any shooting in an area north of the railroad tracks which parallel Virginia Beach Boulevard. McCoy agreed to the compromise law worked out since hearing from farmers who said a shooting ban would leave them no way to control destructive birds.

The ordinance passed Monday makes it unlawful to discharge any firearm in areas south of a line running along Holland, Princess Anne and London Bridge Roads. Firearms may be used on land of 50 or more acres if a permit is issued by police and written permission is obtained from the landowner. In no instance may a gun be fired in the city limits within 150 yards of a building, street or public place. The original ordinance had specified a 200-yard limit.

Vice-mayor George Ferrell cast the only dissenting vote.

The shooting ban was proposed after complaints from residents in the Great Neck, Lynnhaven and Linkhorn areas who said they feared property damage and personal harm from weapons fired dangerously close to homes.

Council instructed the city manager's office to make provisions to allow the press to discuss items under regulated conditions.

In other business Monday, Council:

• Authorized the construction of sewers, water mains and a pumping station in Doylesway; predominantly black neighborhood in Lynnhaven Borough, at a total cost of $412,935;

• Appointed Mrs. Walter A. Howen Sr., 4487 Witchduck Road, to the Historical Review Board to fill an unexpired term through June 1976;

• Appointed Nathaniel Cohen and reappointed Dr. K.K. Wallace Jr. to the Tidewater Regional Health Planning Council; and

• Requested the Norfolk City Council to appoint Sidney Kellam to the Norfolk Area Medical Center Authority (NAMCA) in anticipation of his appointment by the Beach to the Eastern Virginia Medical Authority when the board changes its name this summer.

Following an informal briefing session Monday morning, Council met for one hour and 15 minutes in executive session, closed to the public and the press, to discuss items listed on the agenda as "personnel and legal" matters.

Beach budget: taxes up, services steady

By MARY RODA
Sun Staff Writer

Balancing the budget, finding that happy medium between spending and taxing, has probably given Virginia Beach City Manager George Hanbury more than a few gray hairs.

The $108 million budget proposal handed to city councilmen last week is a careful approach, showing Hanbury trying to control spending, but not rocking the municipal boat too much to do it, and dipping for operating revenue from areas where he expects the least protest.

Hanbury indicated that the budget is a hold-the-line approach to municipal spending.

The biggest increase, more than $5 million in the school budget, is due to tougher state requirements which don't happen to be accompanied by funds to implement them.

The increase for schools takes about half of Hanbury's proposed $10.5 million increase over the 1974-75 adjusted budget of $97 million.

Although this year's budget was $93 million, the city manager reported, appropriations made by Council from its $10 million surplus over the year inflated the budget another $4 million, leaving the city with 6 million cushion of unappropriated funds for emergencies.

Hanbury credits other increases in the budget to a 9 to 11 per cent pay increase for city employees, who got a similar package as teachers without the help of an association to negotiate a wage agreement, and improved water, sewer, police and fire services.

The proposed public utility budget jumped from $5.5 to $6.2 million, while police costs will rise $930,000 and fire services with increase $634,000. The increases in police and fire are due to the new facility the departments will move into soon, Hanbury reported, as well as the proposed departmental status for police and fire, which presently operate as divisions of the Public Safety Department.

Hanbury squeezed several revenue sources in an attempt to generate $10.5 million needed to balance the budget.

If projected growth estimates hit the mark, $5.8 million of the needed revenue will come from development as well as other revenue sources, including the sales tax from the city collects from amusement, cigarette and utility taxes.

The city manager has proposed an increase in personal property taxes of 23.5 per cent, which he expects to bring in $1 million.

The "projected growth" also includes a 15 per cent across-the-board increase in real estate assessments which Hanbury said simply would reflect the increase in fair market value of Beach real estate.

He anticipates that real estates taxes alone will bring the city more than $5 million in additional revenue in 1975-76, an increase of 27.7 per cent over the 1974-75 budget.

Revenues may also be bolstered $1 million from a proposed 28.5 per cent increase in personal property taxes. Hanbury has proposed that personal property tax assessments be increased from 35 to 45 per cent of the $6 rate for $100 of assessed valuation.

The increase would mean that the "true tax," what the rate would be if the city used a 100 per cent assessment, would increase from $2.10 to $2.70 for every $100 of assessed valuation.

The final increase would be a hike in hotel-motel room and meal taxes from 2 to 3 per cent. Hanbury said the increase should bring $700,000 next year, but he warned councilmen that innkeepers would oppose the tax increase without assurances that it would be used to construct a planned $16 million convention center complex.

One way to convince innkeepers to accept a premature increase, Hanbury said, would be to agree to repeal the tax increase if plans for the convention center are scrapped.

However, he indicated that the tax is still competitive with other Tidewater cities and recommended its approval.

Hanbury's final money revenue source is $3 million from unappropriated funds, leaving only $3 million free to cover the city's unexpected expenditures during the year.

In 1974-75, Virginia Beach ran through $4 million in unappropriated funds, and Hanbury conceded that his proposal doesn't leave a lot of elbow room for unplanned spending.

"We are going to have to be very careful next year," he admitted.

Although the proposed budget isn't an exciting document, it does hold a warning flag, and councilmen have indicated that they are concerned about tax increases, even though the real estate tax rate will remain the same.

Some councilmen have also questioned the slim unappropriated funds balance, which is less than 3 per cent of the proposed operating budget.

Councilmen have scheduled weekly briefings Tuesday nights in closed executive sessions, and what conclusions they come to probably will not be completely revealed until public hearings on the city's first $100 million budget are conducted.

There is not a lot of leeway in the budget, unless councilmen do some trimming of their own, possibly of city services which some feel aren't needed, such as the twice weekly trash pick-ups in some residential neighborhoods or holding the line on 9 to 11 per cent salary increases for city and school employees.

But if Virginia Beach wants to lighten the taxpayer's burden in 1975, it may mean dropping some services and scuttling plans for capital outlays.

Now the city's fiscal situation will affect plans for the convention center, beachfront restrooms or even Old Donation Parkway remains to be seen.

Beach liberated

Virginia Beach has liberated a mile-long stretch of beach on the Chesapeake Bay for public use.

The deal, completed this week, will mean that citizens can freely use beachfront between the YMCA property on Shore Drive and Great Neck Road.

The beach ownership was in dispute until the city made a settlement with Ed Linsley, who claimed title to the beach based on deeds he inherited when he purchased the assets of defunct corporations dating back to colonial days, City Manager George Hanbury told The Sun this week.

In addition to the beach, Linsley has agreed to give the city a wayside park near the YMCA property as well as access to the beach area.

The property owner agreed to waive rights to the beach area if the city would drop its claim to land bordering the beach, Hanbury said.

The City Council agreed to the settlement, he explained, "because there was a great question if the city actually did have a strong claim to the land. If we went to court, Linsley could have won it all."

Of 38 miles of beachfront in Virginia Beach, eight are now under public ownership.

As city manager of the world's largest resort city, Hanbury remarked, "I feel like all the beachfront should be public."

The city is making an effort to improve public access to bayfront beaches, he added. When condominium projects are approved, the city asks the developer to provide public access to the beachfront. Beach areas in front of most of the new condominiums east of the Lynnhaven bridge are public, although some condominiums west of the bridge have beach areas fenced off for private use of condominium residents.

Death, medicine and ethics

When are you no longer alive?

By JILL C. HOLTE
Special to The Sun

When Longfellow said "Nothing can happen more beautiful than death," his generation didn't have to contend with today's changing concept of just what death is.

That changing concept is something most of us are going to have to think about, according to Dr. Donnie J. Self, assistant professor of philosophy at Old Dominion University (ODU).

"The old definition of death was that it occurred when there was a complete cessation of vital signs in other words when you stopped breathing and your heart stopped beating. But now with so much technological machinery at the disposal of the medical profession, respiration and heartbeat can be prolonged," Self says. "It is possible to keep someone 'alive' this way, even though he's 'dead' as far as social interaction and consciousness are concerned."

Self joined the ODU faculty this year and has a joint appointment at Eastern Virginia Medical School as an assistant professor of psychiatry and behavioral sciences.

His interest in bio-ethics and value theory dates back to his undergraduate years at Furman University and the two years he worked as an industrial chemist after receiving his B.S. degree. He read and studied philosophy in his spare time, and then decided to return to Furman for another degree -- in philosophy. Subsequently he took his master's and Ph. D. degrees in philosophy at the University of North Carolina while working full time at the Medical Center of Duke University ("about six miles down the road from Chapel Hill") as an associate in brain tumor research in the pathology laboratory.

"By then I had begun to see the direction I wanted my career to take, and decided to combine ethics and medicine," he says.

Asked if there were many bio-ethicists, he replied, "No, but it is an area where many questions are going to have to be answered. We know what we can do scientifically, but what should we do ethically?"

"The definition of death is a philosophical, social, ethical and moral issue. Society must determine the definition of death, and the medical profession will be charged with carrying out that decision."

The philosophy of death held by attending physicians in emergency situations further complicates the problem of defining death. "A person in a car wreck could have irreparable damage done to his brain. He would be socially dead -- a 'vegetable.' But if he still has a heartbeat and is breathing, a doctor could sustain his life through the use of machines, and it might be days before he is medically or legally dead," Self says.

"Or the attending physician could declare him medically dead when he emits no brain waves on an electroencephalogram -- when he records a flat EEG. So you could come into an emergency room before midnight and have your 'life' sustained a few weeks, or be admitted after midnight when the hospital shift had changed and be declared dead on arrival. It would depend on the philosophy of death held by the attending physician."

You could come into an emergency room before midnight and have your 'life' sustained a few weeks, or be admitted after midnight when the hospital shift had changed and be declared dead on arrival. It would depend on the philosophy of death held by the attending physician.

Some significant steps have been taken toward forming a new definition of death, Self explains. "Kansas was the first state to legislate a definition for death. In addition to the cessation of heartbeat and respiration as criteria for death, it is possible to be dead in Kansas when the brain records a flat EEG. In other words, if a person's 'life' is being sustained by mechanical breathing devices and heart-regulating machines but he registers a flat EEG, he can be declared dead and disengaged from the machines. But one of the safeguards built into the legislation states that the person must be declared dead when he registers a flat EEG before the life-sustaining machines are turned off, and that more than one EEG must be run on a person, usually 24 hours apart.

"When a person registers a flat EEG he can be said to have suffered a neocortical brain death. The neo-cortex of the brain is all that is affected, so the person could still have spontaneous breathing and heartbeat. But the doctors would have only a boy, not somebody," Self says.

"With a neo-cortical brain death, the rest of the body's organs would be functioning and therefore in excellent condition for organ transplants.

"So it gets down to what type of 'life' is important. There are people who have been kept 'alive' for years through the use of machines, yet they have suffered neo-cortical brain death and have no consciousness and no feelings," Self says.

Another area where philosophy and ethics and the biological sciences overlap is a sexual reproduction -- more specifically called cloning. According to Self, cloning is making a "carbon copy" of an animal, and scientists are developing techniques to make identical reproductions of humans. The nucleus is removed from a female egg cell and replaced with the nucleus of any epithelial cell of any human. The resulting clone will possess the exact genetic make-up of the person whose epithelial cell nucleus was implanted in the egg cell.

But the clone might not end up with the same personality as the donor of the cell nucleus since there are still questions about what forms a personality -- genetics, environment or both.

"Scientists know that this surgically altered cell will develop and grow into an adult human as if it had been conceived during sexual intercourse," Self says. "The only technological holdup in cloning is the development of an artificial placenta and womb to provide nutrition to the fetus. And I feel sure this will be developed within a decade."

Another question involving ethical decisions involves the use of aborted fetuses for medical research. "The question has been asked 'What's wrong with using it for research?' It would be alive biologically, but would not be viable. It wouldn't be capable of maintaining and sustaining its life outside the womb. Using the aborted fetus for drug experimentation could be useful in determining what drugs are harmful to an unborn fetus, and perhaps many lives could be saved if pregnant women were to avoid such drugs. But is it ethical to use the aborted fetus in experimentation while it is still 'alive' biologically?"

Philosophers and ethicists must attend to these changing attitudes concerning death and dying," Self says. "These changing concepts of death also need to be faced by society. It is not a medical decision to define the concept of death. It is a medical issue to determine when that definition has been fulfilled -- to interpret when criteria for the concept of death as established by society have been met," he says.

Britt, FC are eying '75 state golf title

By STEVE BORDO
Sun Staff Writer

First Colonial's 1975 golf squad seems on the road to more of the same sort of success they enjoyed last season, namely an Eastern District crown and a high finish in the regional standings.

But this year the team has set a higher goal for itself: a state title.

"We should go all the way," promises Riccardo Britt, First Colonial Junior and one of the staunchest bastions of the Patriot link squad. "We're having a stronger season. I'm looking forward to my junior year. I shot an 80 yesterday, and I'm not satisfied with it, but it's okay." Britt grins, "First Colonial all the way."

"The guys have a real good outlook. They're all four, or five maybe six handicappers. One is better one day and another is better the next. All of them can beat me pretty bad."

—First Colonial golf coach John Romano

The Patriots, led by second-year coach John Romano, began their search this year for a share of the district goodies April 3 by meeting Kellam and Maury at the Ocean View course and running away with the match. First Colonial finished 27 strokes ahead of the Knights and 53 strokes ahead of the Commodores. Britt's teammate, junior Mike Fleineck, was the match medalist. He was low man with a score of 77.

"They (Kellam) beat us last year bad," recalls Britt, "but we got back at them. This year, we'll be state champions."

Britt began his career in golf as a caddy at Princess Anne Country Club. "I think it was about four years ago when I began caddying at PA," he says. "I used to go over after school and just hang around, do odd jobs. I saw people playing and I said, I wanted to play that. It didn't look so hard."

Learning the game then struck him, however, was more difficult than it seemed at first, but Britt began to attract help from local club pros Joe Rucker and Jennings House. With coaching and playing time, Britt was a starter as a freshman on the FC squad in 1973. The Patriots finished fourth in the Eastern District and in the city tourney that year, then mustered to grab the district title, and fourth place finishes in the city and regional competition.

"My game was better last year," says Britt. "Right now I'm hitting the ball good from tee to green. And once my putts start falling I'll be tough to beat."

"He's been playing very good golf," says Coach Romano. "He's been playing golf and caddying since he was 12. I just think he's a fine golfer, I don't know what else to say."

Britt has high praise for Romano as well. "He's a super coach, he sticks by the team," he says. "Last year was his first year, but when you got a super team you're got to keep them together, you've got to get them fired up. He keeps us from getting beat."

Despite the individual nature of golf, Britt emphasizes the team strengths of the First Colonial squad. "You can rely on any four of us, any four of us can do the job," says the First Colonial Junior.

"The guys have a real good outlook," agrees Romano. "They're all four, or five maybe six handicappers. It's hard to say whether Riccardo is better or Dawson is better. One is better one day and another is better the next. All of them can beat me pretty bad."

Another plus for the coach in having so much talent to work with is the added ease in rotating his golfers for each match. High man in the previous week's match is considered number one on the team until someone else beats him the following week, then that player takes over first. In case of ties in match scores, a play-off determines who will be number one that Thursday.

"It's a piece of cake," says Romano about his coaching job.

Besides Britt, Romano enjoys the skills of senior Joe Samper and junior Fleineck and Dave Romano. The players had reached a level of such proficiency, says Romano, that it called for very little coaching on his part. "Virginia Beach is so golf-oriented," he says, "that they'll know most of your basics, there isn't much teaching of fundamentals."

When talking about a second consecutive district crown, however, Romano is more cautious than his players about predicting FC's 1975 climb to the top.

"We're pointing in that direction. We got a transfer student from Princess Anne (Fleineck) who played number two or three for them last year. It makes us stronger, definitely. We'll be pretty tough."

"He's been playing very good golf. I just think he's a fine golfer. I don't know what else to say."

—First Colonial golf coach John Romano

For Britt, though - who four years ago as a novice suffered through scores in the 120s - the outcome this season is practically pre-ordained. "Kemperville will be our toughest competition," he says, "but we'll be state champions this year." He disregards the factor of late season and tournament pressure affecting his game, convinced that once he gets rolling, the momentum will carry him through. "Sometimes it can get to you," says the 16-year-old golfer, "but if we stick together as a team we can do it."

Britt has been concentrating too much on the season so far to worry about the possibilities of college golf. "I'm a C student," he says. "I'm not looking forward to college right now. If I go, I might just go to Maryland. They have a good (golf) program there."

"Somebody like me has got to put bricks in his pocket, I'm so small."

—First Colonial golfer Riccardo Britt

Getting practice time has been a problem in recent weeks due to rain and high winds. During the Kellam-Maury match, when gusts of up to 40 miles an hour were blowing in Tidewater, the 135-pound Britt was worried about his physical safety.

"Somebody like me has got to put bricks in his pocket, I'm so small," he grins.

In the long run, college or no college, the First Colonial athlete has but one predictable ambition. "To play golf," he says. "Just to play and be around the game as much as I can."

Kempsville stops FC

Marlins beat Knights, lose to Titans

The last week of Virginia Beach non-district baseball closed with a number of games canceled due to high winds and chilly weather. But while the winds caused scores to soar in other area games that were played, the runs were few in number at the Beach. Errors, however, were as plentiful as mosquitoes in August.

Terry Morton's Bayside crew opened the first part of a busy week April 2 by stopping Kellam, 7-2 on the six-hit pitching of Mike Rhodes. Rhodes, along with teammates Gene Lech, Buddy Miller and bullpen partner Marty Moore, collected two hits en route to his first win of the season. The Marlins cracked out a dozen hits off senior Doug Anderson, but the Knights also committed four errors. A first inning two-run homer by Gene Biffo proved useless as Wayne Syke's Knights lost their second non-district contest.

Friday, the defending Eastern Districts took on Lake Taylor at home, playing on a day so windy that two other city games were canceled. The Marlins jumped out to a 1-0 lead on a round tripper by Dave Stanley in the third inning, but despite three Lake Taylor errors, Bayside failed to muster the needed offense for the win. Marty Moore got the loss, his first start of the season.

In other Friday action, Kempville and First Colonial squared off with the Chiefs posting a 4-2 win on back-to-back scoring rallies. The Patriots enjoyed a two-run opening inning, but then had to contend with three errors as Kempville made a comeback in the fifth to tie the match up. In the sixth inning, Dave Gilliam and Kevin Walck each collected two hits and two runs batted in to put the Chiefs ahead for good. Starter Scott O'Hara went the distance and took the win, while FC's Darryl Doss collected the loss.

First Colonial picked up another non-district game with Norfolk Catholic on Saturday, but this time grabbed a narrow 4-3 victory. The Patriots found themselves down, 1-0, early in the contest, but they came back in the fourth with a three-run explosion that put them ahead for good. FC's Mark Pilton stroked a hit in the fifth that put across the winning run for the Patriots. Despite three errors, First Colonial started off a late Bulldog rally to grab the win. Carl McDonald got the win, with relief help from Mike Gerley. McDonald is 1-1 this season.

Friday at Bayside. The Titans punched across the winning run to claim a 2-1 victory.

IAABO convention set

association. A social gathering featuring a buffet and refreshments is scheduled for the evening of April 18 at the Sheraton Beach Inn.

A Marlin runner is trapped between first and second by Lake Taylor players in a play indicative of Bayside fortunes last weekend. Despite getting seven hits, the Marlins lost the 2-1 decision.

The Danes are coming. Beach wrestling fans, who were able to see the Russian national Junior Olympic wrestling team take on a squad of Virginia high school stars last summer, will have a chance April 22 to see the Danish national Junior Olympic squad meet against Virginia wrestlers at Princess Anne High School.

The event, sponsored by the American International Physical Fitness and Wrestling Club, marks the third time that a national wrestling team has visited Tidewater to compete with Virginia wrestlers. Tryouts for the Virginia squad, coached by American International's Wayne Boyd, are set for Saturday. Only Virginia residents are eligible, and wrestlers must be between the ages of 15 and 18. Tryouts will be open, and an eight-pound allowance will be given in each weight class.

Cox's Conkwright wins in classic

PITTSBURGH - Cox High School wrestling star Chris Conkwright coasted to victory Sunday in a national wrestling tourney between a U.S. All-Star team and a squad made up of Pennsylvania state champions. The tourney, billed as the Old Newsboy's Classic since it was sponsored by the Pittsburgh Press, saw Conkwright whip Mike Gill of Clearfield, Pa., by a 5-2 decision in their 132-pound bout. Gill, also a high school senior, entered the contest with a 22-2 chart. The win boosted Conkwright's career win-loss bout record to 95-6-1.

Conkwright competed in the tournament as a member of a 12-man U.S. All-Star squad coached by three-time NCAA champion Dan Gable. The team included state champions from all over the country.

CONKWRIGHT

Conkwright finished his scholastic wrestling career this past season by winning his third Virginia State title. One of the most highly recruited high school grapplers in the country, Conkwright is considering scholarship offers from 40 colleges, including Oklahoma and North Carolina.

Marlin's Lohman: a good bat when you need him

By STEVE BOWDO
Sun Staff Writer

At 5-8 and weighing 135, Ray Lohman won't go down in Bayside's record book as the biggest player to play Marlin varsity baseball, but he may set a few records in the hitting category over the next two seasons.

Already this year the Marlin junior center-fielder has stroked six solid hits in just 11 times at the plate, leaving an impressed Coach Terry Morton to say, "He'll hit the ball every time. He's not a power hitter, but he always comes away with one."

Despite his size, Coach Morton tactfully describes Lohman as a "small kid" - Bayside's top hitter so far in '75 began his career at the school as a freshman football candidate.

"We've got a good team, our defense you can't beat. Things have been pretty even so far, but we've got to get in there and hit. When we get into our district games we'll do real good."

- Bayside center fielder
Roy Lohman

"I played five years of football," says Lohman, adding that four of them were in the community leagues. But when it came to high school football, he says, things were different. "When I played before you'd go out there and have a good time with your friends. In high school, I felt I had to go out and kill. I didn't like it much." Football restricted his private life too much as well, says Lohman.

"I wanted to do what I wanted on my own time." Track, also, held little interest for Lohman. "I pole vaulted. Highest I ever got was 10 feet," he says. "I didn't like it that much. Everybody was out there doing their own thing."

Lohman has been looking for some time for "his own thing," and he thinks he may have found it in baseball. "I like the outfield, running after the ball. It's a real exciting place to play," he adds. "But I don't care as long as I play."

LOHMAN

Lohman has shown his versatility in the past. Last year, as a sophomore on Bayside's district championship club, he caught for Marty Moore and Craig Wiesner. Wiesner now plays for ODU while Moore is in his senior season at Bayside and looking for his first win on the season. Moore lost his first decision against Lake Taylor Friday by a 2-1 score.

"We were so high, we just loved playing," recalled Lohman about the '74 season. He says that the Marlin's win over Kempsville in the playoffs for the district title was the most memorable part of the season for him, but adds, "We lost in the regionals on a bad break. You got to come back, though."

Which is precisely what Bayside is planning on doing, despite a 2-3 record in the non-district games this year. "We've got a good team, our defense you can't beat," emphasizes Lohman. "When we get into our district games we'll do real good," he promises. "Things have been pretty even so far, but we've got to get in there and hit."

Except for Lohman, Bayside has suffered from a paucity of hitting this season. Moore has stroked four hits in 15 at bats, and senior first baseman Gene Leach has had as many in 11 times at the plate. Junior left-hander Mike Rhodes rounds out the Marlin's hitting with three hits in 11 at bats. But so far it has not been enough to spark the needed runs.

"He's a small kid. He'll hit the ball every time. He's not a power hitter, but he always comes away with one."

- Bayside coach Terry
Morton

"Lach has been a surprise," says Coach Morton, who admits that the weather has played a large part in determining the outcomes of games in the early season so far because "pitchers are so far ahead of everyone else right now."

But Lohman, the Marlin's lead-off hitter with his .555 average, is not ready to think about the intricacies of winning or losing. That's the coach's job. But if there is a coach around he wants to win for, it is Marlin. "He watches out for us," says Lohman. "Everybody likes him. He wants to see Marty do well this year and so do I. I want to see us go all the way again."

Playing the outfield is a little different from blocking the plate, especially when you weigh 135 pounds, but the relative independence that outfielders enjoy - an independence that borders on detached boredom - adds that much more of a zest to Lohman's gang-ho attitude toward the game.

"You never know until the ball's hit where it's going to go," he says, emphasizing the unknown factor of the game. "If you keep talking, keep chattering, then you'll stay alert." With the wind reaching 50 miles an hour gusts as it did Friday in the Lake Taylor contest, the unknown factor increases. "It just makes you worry," he admits. "The trees stop the wind pretty good, but you never know what you're going to do. I get pretty nervous thinking about it."

A number of scholastic baseball matches were cancelled in Tidewater last weekend because of the high winds and chilly weather, but Bayside was unperished. In the wake of other game scores like 18-9, a 2-1 score seems either an indication of superior pitching and defense, or plain poor hitting. As in the Marlin's extra - innings loss to Princess

"I got joked a lot because of my size, but it just makes me want to try harder."

- Bayside center fielder
Roy Lohman

Anne two weeks ago, Lohman sighs, "It just takes one run to beat you."

Right now, though, the young Bayside student is on top of the world, having just weathered a family crisis in which his 3-year-old brother, Charlie, suffered through a bout of spinal meningitis. "For a while there we didn't know if he was going to make it," Lohman says, "but he's fine now."

Summing up his personal chart for the future, Lohman is optimistic. "I got joked a lot because of my size," says the boy who was not fast enough to play the outfield in Pembroke community league, "but it just makes me want to try harder. Bayside is a good school. I like it here. This year all the guys are real nice."

As for his hitting streak, a veritable testament to his determination and strength despite a mere 135 pounds, Lohman answers, "I just want to keep it up."

Kellam, Bayside jump on track foes

Kellam's track squad continued its blitz over Tidewater teams April 5 by routing over business First Colonial, 97-49. The Knights grabbed wins in every running event except the 880 and the two-mile run. Margy Dixon sprinted to a first-place win in the 100 in a time of 51.1 seconds, while teammate Josephus Godfrey won the 200 in a time of 22 seconds flat. In the weights, Knight 240-pound Danny Hill threw the discus 124-2 good for a first place finish but still better than 18 feet away from the best toss in the district this year. First Colonial's Jerry Onkaiser grabbed the win in shot put, tossing the iron ball 50-4. He beat Hill's previous high mark of 47-7.

Bayside landed past Mandy by a 109-37 score. The Commodores won just two events on the afternoon, the 440 and the triple jump. Marlin sprinter Jerry Mosely came through in three running events for Bayside, taking first in the 100, the 220 and the 440 events. The Bayside junior also took first in the long jump with a leap of 21-1. Marlin Clinton Dorsey matched the area's best chart this year in pole vault going 12-0 in that field event. Steve Bishab shaved one-tenth of a second off the early season's high mark by posting a 15.3 second time in the high hurdles. Senior John Wyman was spotlighted in the weights. He threw the shot 47-2.

Kempsville edged out Cox, 72 1/2 to 63 1/2, as outdoor track entered its second week in Tidewater. Chief senior Steve Bishab recorded first-place finishes in the mile and two-mile events, gaining a 9:57 in the latter. Mike Grabtree and Cox's Herman Brockert shared one first-place finish when they tied at 5-10 each in the high jump. Brockert went on to take the long jump competition with a jump of 20-5. Teammate Derek Ganesa appeared for a 10-5 100 and was timed at 24.3 in the 220, but Cox could not make up the points needed to catch the Chiefs.

Highway litter bill climbing

Virginia spent $12,021 to clean up litter along the Virginia Beach - Norfolk Expressway in 1973-74, according to a report issued this week by the State Department of Highways and Transportation. That bill was part of an expenditure of $1,207,980 for picking up litter along Virginia's 51,000 miles of state-maintained roads.

It was the third consecutive fiscal year in which the state's litter bill exceeded $1 million. In 1972-73, it amounted to $1,030,886; in 1971-72, the bill was $1,050,732.

"It's frustrating when you consider that the tax money spent to collect litter doesn't really buy anything of lasting value for the public," said C.O. Leigh, the Highway Department's state maintenance engineer.

"If it were not necessary to spend those funds on the litter problem, they could be used to a far greater benefit to finance permanent highway improvements for safety and mobility," he said.

Leigh said citizens could help reduce the cost this year by:

* Keeping a litter container in their vehicles and using it for scraps of paper and other trash.

* Using the litter barrels placed at intervals along Virginia's highways. Some 1,400 such receptacles are provided largely for this purpose by the department.

* Encouraging the establishment and use of adequate local refuse disposal facilities if they aren't provided already. This would aid in eliminating the pesky problem of household garbage sometimes being deposited at the state's roadside trash receptacles.

Besides being ugly and costly, litter also can be a safety hazard, Leigh pointed out. He said that windblown trash can distract motorists and obstruct their visibility, and on occasion has struck windshields of moving vehicles.

The department's report on litter came as its maintenance forces conducted their annual spring cleanup before the April 19-27 observance of Historic Garden Week.

In addition to litter collection, which is a year-around job, the department is cleaning signs, signposts, and delineators (the small roadside posts with reflective plates to guide motorists.) There are more than 250,000 directional and informational signs on the interstate, arterial and regular primary routes.

The work also includes an extra cleaning for rest areas, viewpoints and picnic table areas. Clean, freshly painted trash barrels are being provided at picnic areas, and guardrail is being cleaned and replaced where necessary. Unpaved roadside shoulders on the primary system are being checked for possible rutted conditions which have developed during the winter, with repairs being made where such conditions exist.

Approximately 5,500 department employees are helping in the statewide cleanup, using some 3,200 trucks and other pieces of equipment. By the time the job is completed, they will have worked an estimated 130,000 man-hours.

Trash like this along Virginia highways costs taxpayers a whopping $1.2 million a year. For example, Virginia spends $12,021 to pick up rubbish along the Virginia Beach - Norfolk Expressway alone.

Tie vote snags RV issue

Civic league members and owners of recreational vehicles wrote another chapter Monday in their continuing battle over parking regulations for campers and other recreational vehicles (RV) - but the Virginia Beach City Council has yet to close the book on the subject.

Spokesmen for both sides - some making their fourth trek to City Hall -- stated and restated their cases before councilmen Monday, but a tie vote of 5-5 ended their hopes this week for a final settlement of their argument.

In early February, RV owners asked the city to abolish a law requiring that campers, trailers, boats and other RVs to be parked beyond the sides of houses and no closer than three feet to any lot line. The law had not been enforced since October.

Their efforts met with opposition from some civic leagues which claimed that campers parked in driveways were "unsightly and significantly degrade" the appearance of residential neighborhoods.

Two additional appearances before Council resulted in a proposed ordinance which would place RV restrictions in the city's Comprehensive Zoning Ordinance but with a provision attached which would exempt any residential lot where the side yard setback was less than 10 feet.

That was the ordinance which both RV owners and their opponents expected a final decision on Monday, but the mystery will be prolonged until Monday when Council votes.

A parade of speakers told councilmen that the parking restrictions posed hardships on RV owners who could not store their vehicles out of sight. Some said they were forced to park their campers in North Carolina.

During the meeting, councilmen learned that the exemption for side yard setbacks of less than 10 feet would apply to several residential subdivisions within the city, a factor which prompted Vice-mayor George Ferrell to move that the original ordinance with no exceptions be adopted.

That vote ended in a 5-5 split, with Ferrell joined by Councilmen John Baum, Robert Callis, Charles Gardner and Dr. J. Henry McCoy. Voting against the ordinance were Mayor J. Curtis Payne and Councilmen John Griffin, Dr. Clarence Holland, Robert Cromwell and Patrick Standing.

Pungo Councilman Floyd Waterfield was absent from Monday's session due to the death of his father over the weekend.

Council then voted on the ordinance with the provision for exemption, but that vote also ended in an identical 5-5 split.

"You mean we all have to come back next week and explain to Mr. Waterfield what we want," one citizen remarked.

"I'm sure Mr. Waterfield is aware of your arguments," Mayor Payne answered.

With nothing decided, RV owners and opponents left to await what they hope will be a final solution to the dilemma when a full 11-man Council votes Monday.

New center church tool

Sunday marked the opening of the new worship center of the Church of the Ascension in Kempville.

Bishop Walter F. Sullivan dedicated the building which will have the distinction of being the first Catholic church of its kind in the Diocese of Richmond. The structure is unique in that it is primarily a church which can be used for many purposes, rather than the multi-use building which also serves as a church.

Everything in the building, from the Baptismal fountain crafted of an ocean buoy to the altar table made from old World War II ship hatch covers, reflect the people of the Navy-oriented parish. The structure itself, which was designed by Griggs, Wood, and Browne, of Charlottesville, Va., evolved from the people's understanding of themselves as a Catholic Christian community. There are no classrooms in the two level commons or lobby area, since the parish's religious education classes are held in private homes.

The upper level of the commons will house the children's Liturgy of the Word, as well as a nursery. There are also conversation areas on this level, which were created to promote the community spirit among church members.

On the lower level of the $300,000 structure are the administrative offices, the sacristy, and the reconciliation room, which can also be used for a bride's room or a place for the coffin during a Christian wake service. The entire commons area will also be used for the annual parish meetings and socials, as well as for wedding receptions, Baptisms, and wake services.

The large worship area with its moveable furniture and projection room will primarily be used for liturgical celebrations. It's theater type lighting and acoustics make this area suitable for the performance of concerts, theatrical productions, dramas and lectures.

The purpose of the building is that of a tool to be used by the people of the Church of the Ascension to fulfill their mission statement "to proclaim the word of God, to celebrate the Eucharist, and to serve the local community." The local community will be invited to share with the people of Ascension parish in the use of this building. It is being offered to the people of Kempville as a meeting place for religious, civic, social and cultural activities.

No camping; 'foiled' again

There's a camper unit behind Norma Morrill's house at 254 Roselyn Lane, Virginia Beach, but she's the first one to admit that the family doesn't do much camping anymore.

It's not because the Morrills have lost their love for romping outdoors; it's more of a practical matter.

Although the vehicle looks like a camper from the outside, it has become a storeroom for Mrs. Morrill's delicate bread-dough mushrooms and cute worms, squirring from apples to the huge plates of glass she uses for her tinsel art.

Tinsel art? "I read it was a lost art," Mrs. Morrill explained as she dabbed at a piece of glass with a paintbrush. She couldn't resist the challenge or resurrecting the art form.

Back when Englishmen first began importing tea from the Orient, their ladies began putting the folk-like wrapper to work in the tinsel art. Paints came from natural sources, such as dyes from berries.

The ladies found that if they applied the dye to the glass and backed it with tinsel, they had an attractive ornament.

Mrs. Morrill likes the idea, she explained, "because every way the light hits it, the colors look different."

Since then she's been trying all kinds of effects, from layers of paints to silhouettes, sparkles and spangles. Her work comes in small flowered cameos and huge windows of glass.

In the end, she has a homemade product, down to the frame, which her husband models in his woodshop.

"Someone gave me a truckload of old barrowed," she said, and the frames made from the aging scared pieces seem to attract people.

Mrs. Morrill, who said three of her four children also share her interest in art, finds that friends occasionally drop in to pick up some of her ideas.

"I can show anybody how to do it," she said, although the painstaking brushwork is frustrating to some students. For those who enjoy it, she'll be starting a class soon with the Virginia Beach Arts Center.

But she issued a warning: "The more tedious it is, the better I like it," and she admits that she doesn't understand some of the more modern artwork that seems to be done in bold, quick strokes and abstract concepts.

"I want it to be a little bit hard," Mrs. Morrill said. "It's something I have to put thought to."

Wedding bells again

Seniors take plunge

Not many brides can boast that their granddaughter served as the flower girl for the wedding.

Gladys Barney Pritchard, who said "I do" for the second time in her 66 years on Monday can.

Her new husband, Vernon Pritchard, 67, who had managed to avoid the perils of courtship and marriage for a full 13 years before Gladys got him hook, line and sinker, didn't seem at all unhappy about his dilemma a few days before the wedding, also his second.

"I'm marrying her for her cooking," he said with a broad grin and a wink. The new Mrs. Pritchard, who used to be a school cafeteria supervisor in her home state of Kansas, admits she can whip up quite a spread, including apple pie for dessert - one of her specialties.

"She fattened me up for the kill," Pritchard complained, as he pointed to a well-podged stomach. "I already put on seven pounds," which he explained is the result of his fiancée's culinary abilities.

The couple met more than a year ago in the Thalia Senior Center which meets in Thalia United Methodist Church. "We decided to get married in the church where we met," Gladys said, with Rev. Reginald Walton officiating.

The ceremony was held on the Thalia Senior Citizens Center's regular meeting time so the couple's friends could join in the festivities. Gladys, who regularly visits the Bayside Senior Citizens Center, explained that her group met at Thalia until they found a facility of their own. Pritchard was a member of the Beach Center.

Although the Pritchards met in Virginia Beach, where they both have children, both migrated from Kansas.

On their first meeting, Gladys remarked, "He recognized Kansas when I walked in the door." The romance didn't start right away, she added.

"We didn't start going together 'til July," Gladys said. They quickly decided to get married. "We thought, 'Well, why waste all this time, and he kept on bothering me to get married.'"

"Something like it," Pritchard admitted. Her first husband died in October 1973, Gladys said, "and I didn't think I'd ever get married again," especially after living with one man for "better than 40 years."

Pritchard, who was married himself for 32 years before his wife died, has been single for 13 years. "I never met anybody I wanted," he explained. "I didn't figure on getting married."

Gladys changed that. "It's kind of a destiny thing," Gladys said. "The Lord has it in our lives. This is a new chapter in our lives."

Why do people get married in their 60s? "Well, you just fall in love," Gladys said with a smile. "It's companionship, being able to give each other some happiness."

And what about sex after 60? "Oh," she said with a little smile, "your head can still spin." Shortly before the wedding, they posed for a picture, and Pritchard tried to steal a kiss. She scolded him mildly, but smiled happily, as he tried to pull her a little closer.

The newlyweds plan a trip to their native Kansas before they tour north, with a swing into Canada and then south past Niagara Falls; it will be the first time either has seen it.

Then they'll settle into the cozy apartment attached to the home of Gladys' daughter, Pat Lanier at 5004 Dalley Drive, where Gladys lived before the wedding.

Mrs. Lanier is Gladys' only child. Pritchard has two children.

"I don't know how many we're going to have," he said with a nod toward his bride. "Probably a dozen."

"Your head can still spin" after 60, according to newlyweds Gladys Barney 66, and Vernon Pritchard, 67, who tied the knot in a ceremony Monday at Thalia United Methodist Church.

Norma Morrill confiscates the family's dining room table to dabble with a tinsel art creation. Her finished products have their own gallery in the family's camper.

'Mary, Mary': adult fare for theatre

Sam Staff Writer

The Virginia Beach Little Theatre will be doing a bit of growing up with the comedy "Mary, Mary," according to director Paul Gaddis, if it can recover from broken legs, flu, holiday interruptions and frustrating auditions.

But during a recent rehearsal, Gaddis was optimistic. His leading characters were picking up the tempo, and the comedy, full of double entendres and sexual puns, was shaping up nicely.

"We may be late opening," Gaddis admitted. "The show was plagued from the beginning by accidents." As living proof, he waved toward the prop girl, Laurie Wolf, whose cast-covered leg was propped up on the theatre seat as she watched the rehearsal.

Don Ripstein, the set designer, was out with the flu, and Easter and Passover observances also took their toll of cast and crew members.

But Gaddis' worst memory was that of auditions, when five men of varying ages and 42 women showed up to read for a handful of roles when called for two men and three women who were all about the same age.

"Here we came along with an adult play," Gaddis said, "and few adults showed up." Quick revisions on the script solved the problem, and Gaddis made his characters about 10 years younger. The cast ranges from 24 to 29.

The comedy, which first appeared on Broadway in 1959, is about a couple who discover that they're still in love in the midst of a divorce.

The leading characters, Fran Peterson and Linda Green, just happen to be married to each other. Both agree that some of the dialogue hits home, but their roles are reversed.

In the comedy, the wife has the biting sarcasm during arguments while the husband reacts, and Ms. Green said the tables are turned at home.

Peterson said it's difficult to forget the comedy even at the breakfast table. "Over Cheerios," he remarked, his wife will think of something that reminds her of the comedy, and she'll want to practice.

Gaddis is delighted with his performers, and said Peterson and Ms. Green are easy to direct because they can "read" each other so well.

It's not the first time the pair have been on stage together. Both had major roles in "The Crucible," Arthur Miller play produced this fall by a group of Beach actors and actresses who yearned for some serious fare rather than the musicals and comedies popular with Little Theatre and the dinner theatres.

Gaddis, however, said "Mary, Mary" should give Beach theatre buffs something they haven't had for a while - a grown-up comedy.

The Little Theatre's "last really adult show," he reported, was "All the Better to Kill You With," which he directed two years ago.

"Mary, Mary" is "very contemporary as far as its frankness goes," Gaddis said. "None of the explicitness have been deleted."

Theatre audiences won't find it in bad taste, he added, but he doesn't recommend the show for children.

Gaddis, who is the film production manager for WHRO Television, said "Mary, Mary" is a tight show. Many of the cast members also have other responsibilities.

"It's easier to work with," he added, "because you don't have those mob scenes usually accompanying musicals with large choruses."

Peterson is also doubling as technical director, a new experience for him. For the first time, he admitted, he is aware of the problems faced by nonactors who work on a production.

"The thing I never knew before, he said pointing to the stage, "is on that side of the footlights, you just have to worry about lines and movement, but the guy on the other side, the guy who's working to get the props, set and furnishings coordinated, he's going bananas out there."

"Mary, Mary" opens this weekend with performances at 8:30 p.m. Fridays and Saturdays and 3 p.m. Sundays through April 26. Tickets are $3.75 for adults and $2 for students. Reservations can be made by a calling the Little Theatre box office at 428-9523.

Whistles alert police

The blast of a whistle will bring Virginia Beach policemen rushing if they are within earshot, according to Lt. Milton Beane.

Beane said the Police Division has endorsed the Virginia Beach Junior Woman's Club's "Blow the Whistle on Crime" campaign, and police are urging both men and women to carry the key rings with attached whistles.

The whistles are available in stores throughout the city for $1.

According to Beane, the whistle would come in handy for an individual who might be accosted on the way to a car at night, and he recommended its use for discouraging obscene or nuisance phone calls.

Senior citizens have also been encouraged to carry the whistle.

Beane reported that the whistle is one indication of improved community response to crime prevention throughout the Virginia Beach.

Police are supporting a neighborhood watch program, he explained, and observant neighbors help police apprehend suspects in two recent house burglaries.

He stressed the importance of involvement and communicating with your neighbors, especially if you plan to be away on vacation. That way the neighborhood works together to protect property of their neighbors.

In an effort to foster neighborhood involvement, Beane said the Police Division has encouraged neighbors to "get together in groups and socialize together to know one another."

Burglary problems are especially critical in apartment complexes where neighbors are "strangers."

"We've had burglaries in complexes," Beane observed, "and we ask people who is your neighbor, and they don't know even if they've been living there two and three years."

Beane said the Police Division will provide groups of 10 or more with a lecture on the neighborhood watch program.

one of the lectures patrolmen offer regular interested groups can schedule a lecture by calling Beane at 427-4495.

i) No determination of unsatisfactory past performance may be made unless the Grantee has had full notice of the possibility of such findings and a chance to be heard; the determination itself shall be supported by complete written findings of fact. In the event of such a finding, the Grantee shall be compensated in an amount equal to the fair market value of the system as a going concern, determined by arbitration, either through purchase of the system by the City pursuant to Section 17 hereof or by payment to him of that amount by the new Grantee.

17. Cancellation and Expiration

A. The City shall have the right to cancel the franchise if the grantee fails to comply with any material and substantial provision of this ordinance or of the grant of the franchise or any reasonable order, direction or permit issued by any City department or agency pursuant to such material and substantial provision or any rule or regulation promulgated by the City which is reasonable in light of, and consistent with any provision of this ordinance or the franchise; or if the grantee persistently fails to comply with any provision of either, or any reasonable order, direction or permit issued. Cancellation shall be by resolution of the City Council duly adopted in accordance with the following procedures:

i. The City Manager shall notify the grantee of the alleged failure or persistent failure of compliance and give the grantee a reasonable opportunity to correct such failure or persistent failure or to present facts and arguments in rebuttal of the alleged failure or persistent failure.

ii. If the City Manager then concludes that there is a basis for cancellation of the franchise pursuant to paragraph A of this Section, it shall notify the grantee thereof.

iii. If within a reasonable time the grantee does not remedy and/or get an end to the alleged failure or persistent failure, the City Council after a public hearing by the City Council on notice, may cancel the franchise if it determines that such action is warranted under paragraph A of this Section.

B. If for ten consecutive days, the system or any part thereof, is inoperative, or if the same is inoperative for thirty days out of any consecutive twelve months, the City Council may cancel the franchise.

C. The Grantee shall not be declared in default or be subject to any sanction under any provision of this ordinance or the franchise in any case in which the performance of any such provision is prevented for reasons beyond its control.

D. If all or part of the streets within the City are closed or discontinued as provided by statute, then the franchise and all rights and privileges hereunder with respect to said streets or any part thereof so closed or discontinued, shall cease and desist upon the date of the adoption of the ordinance closing and discontinuing such streets. The Grantee shall not be entitled to damages from the City due to the closing or discontinuance of such streets, or for injury to any part of the system in the streets or for the removal or relocation of the same.

E. If the system is taken or condemned pursuant to law, the franchise shall, at the option of the City Council, cease and desist on the date of the vesting title pursuant to such taking or condemnation and any award to the grantee in connection with such taking or condemnation shall not include any valuation based on the franchise.

F. Upon cancellation or expiration of the franchise, the City shall have the right to purchase the system in accordance with paragraph G of this Section, and the City Council may direct the grantee to cease operation of the system. If the City elects to purchase the system, the grantee shall promptly execute all appropriate documents to transfer title to the City, and the grantee shall assign all other contracts, leases, licenses, permits, and any other rights necessary to maintain continuity of service to the public. The grantee shall cooperate with the City, or such agency or person authorized or directed by the City Manager to operate the system for a temporary period in maintaining continuity of service. Nothing herein is intended as a waiver of any other right the City may have.

G. If the franchise:

i. Is cancelled by the City Council by reason of the Grantee's default, the system shall, at the election of the City, become the property of the City at a cost not to exceed 90% of the fair market value of the system as a going concern, including physical assets and intangibles. Such fair market value, if not agreed upon, shall be determined by arbitration as provided in Section 18 of this ordinance.

ii. Terminates by expiration of its term, the purchase price to the City of the system shall be its full fair market value as a going concern, including physical assets and intangibles. Such fair market value, if not agreed upon, shall be determined by arbitration as provided in Section 18 of this ordinance.

iii. Terminates by the assumption of ownership of the system by the City, the City Council shall make every effort to secure the sale of the system to a person satisfactory to the City. In seeking such a person, the City Council shall advertise for bids and use such other reasonable and practicable means to secure a purchaser as may be available.

18. Arbitration

A. Matters which are expressly arbitrable under the provisions of this ordinance shall be determined by an Arbitration Panel which shall consist of not more than three members to be named by the City Council and the Grantee. Where arbitration is expressly authorized by this ordinance, the decision of the Arbitration Panel shall be a condition precedent to any cause of action based on such expressly arbitrable matters.

B. If the City Council and Grantee agree on a three member panel, the membership shall be one person named by the grantee, one member named by the City Council, with the third member or presiding officer to be named by the grantee's representative and the Council's representative acting jointly. If they fail to agree as to the presiding officer, the presiding officer shall be named in the same manner as provided in paragraph D of this Section.

C. If the parties choose to name a single member panel, such member shall be named by the grantee and the Council acting jointly.

D. If the parties cannot agree as to the third member of the three member panel as described in paragraph B of this Section or as to the single member panel as provided in paragraph C of this Section, then after ten days notice or motion of either party, the court having jurisdiction of the matter in dispute shall appoint the member necessary to complete the Arbitration Panel.

E. Each party shall bear the expenses of its own representative. The expense of the third representative shall be borne equally by the grantee and the City Council. The expense of the arbitration shall be borne as determined by the Arbitration Panel in its award or finding, but in no event shall the City be obliged for more than one-half of the expenses.

F. The determination of the single member panel or a majority of a three member panel shall be binding on the parties.

19. Day to Day Regulation

A. The City Manager after affording the Grantee a reasonable opportunity to be heard shall devise, promulgate and administer such reasonable rules, regulations and procedures as may be required to implement the provisions of this ordinance and the franchise ordinance or any subsequent ordinance, ruling, contract, or agreement adopted or entered into by the City Council with regard to the CATV system. Such rules, regulations, and procedures shall be reasonable and confined to matters pertaining to the day to day enforcement of policies adopted by the Council.

B. In cases where requests for service or adjustment have been ignored or unduly delayed for more than just cause, the City Manager shall have the power to require the Grantee to provide service in response to all reasonable requests as the City Manager may determine.

C. The Grantee may appeal any decision made pursuant to this section as provided for in Section 22 of this ordinance.

D. Nothing in this section shall be construed to act as a waiver of any other rights or powers the City might have against the Grantee for any of the situations described in paragraphs A-D of this section.

20. Liquidated Damages

A. In case of non-compliance with any of the foregoing material provisions of this ordinance, there shall be assessed as liquidated damages the following:

- for failure to submit plans indicating expected dates of installation of various parts of the system as provided for in Section 10-A - $100 per day.
- for failure to commence operations in accordance with Section 6-B - $200 per day, or at the discretion of City Council, for each three (3) months delay in commencement of operation the term of the franchise may be reduced by one (1) year.
- for failure to complete construction and installation of the system as provided for in Section 6-C and 6-D - $250 per day, or at the discretion of City Council, for each three (3) months delay in the completion of construction and the installation of the system, the term of the franchise may be reduced by one (1) year.
- Failure to provide data of Sections 6-10 and 19-$50 per day.
- for persistent failure to comply with reasonable recommendations of the City Manager relating to rules or services as provided for in Section 19 and such reasonable requests or recommendations as may be made pursuant to authority granted by this ordinance - $50 per day.
- for failure to restore the cash deposit as required in Section 11B within the specified thirty days, the entire cash deposit remaining (if any) and the full amount of the operating performance bond shall be forfeited.

B. The Grantee shall not be liable for any failure to meet any and all of the above requirements due to Federal, State or local action, statute or ordinance, act of God, riot or other civil disturbance.

C. The Grantee may appeal any penalty which it considers unreasonable as provided for in Section 22 of this ordinance.

21. Hiring and Employment Practices

The Grantee shall not refuse to hire or employ, nor bar or discharge from employment, nor discriminate against any person in compensation or in terms, conditions or privileges of employment on basis of age, race, creed, color, national origin or sex.

22. Appeals

In the event the Grantee questions the reasonableness of any order, requirement, decision or other action taken by the City or shall be of the opinion that the City lacks authority to take such action, the Grantee shall be allowed to appeal the order, requirement, decision or other action to the City Council. The notice of objection and request for an appeal shall be made in writing to the City Manager within two weeks of the objectionable order, requirement, decision or other action. The effectiveness of such order, etc. may be stayed by the action of the City Council upon its receipt of the notice of objection, pending the Council's final determination of the appeal. This stay shall not affect any retroactive application of Councils upholding any such order, etc.

23. Sundry Provisions

A. Every direction, notice or order to be served upon the grantee shall be sent to its office in the City by registered mail as established by Section 11A of this ordinance. Every notice served upon the City shall be delivered or sent by registered mail to the Office of the City Manager, Municipal Center, Virginia Beach, Virginia 23466. The delivery or mailing of such notice or order shall be deemed to have been given at the time of delivery.

B. All provisions of this ordinance shall apply to the grantee, its successors, and assigns, as such may be approved by City Council in accordance with this ordinance.

C. The rights granted by this ordinance are subject to all franchises and permits heretofore or hereafter granted by the Council or by the Council of the former City of Virginia Beach to use the streets of the City by other public utility or public service corporations. It is not intended by the grant of this franchise to abridge the exercise of the police power heretofore or hereafter granted to the City by the General Assembly. The grant of this franchise is subject to all ordinances and resolutions of the Council of the City as the same now exist or may be hereafter amended, revised or codified, in the lawful exercise of any other power granted to the City by the General Assembly.

D. Specific mention of the materiality of any of the provisions herein is not intended to be exclusive of any others for the purpose of determining whether any failure of compliance hereunder is material and substantial.

E. If any particular section of this ordinance or the particular application thereof, shall be held invalid, the remaining provisions and their application shall not be affected thereby. Further, if any particular section of this ordinance or provision of the franchise award is determined by the FCC to be improper in any respect, the franchise grantee is hereby prohibited from negotiating changes thereto with the FCC without first obtaining specific approval to so do from City Council. Where such approval has not been obtained, the City Council requests deferral by the FCC of its Certificate Award process and a return of the matter to the City Council for its review and appropriate action.

F. The Grantee, upon its acceptance of this franchise, shall be bound by the provisions of this ordinance and all responses, statements, and information contained in its bid.

G. The Grantee should conform to any minimum standards adopted by the Virginia Public Telecommunications Council pursuant to section 15.1-28.1 of the Code of Virginia, and Town Statutes (Code of Virginia), especially those referenced in Chapter III of the "Master State Plan for Public Telecommunication" which refer to the jurisdiction of Committee(s) of Educational Interests and/or leased "Commonwealth Channel(s) access," except to the extent that such standards are pre-empted by rules, regulations, and policies of the FCC.

H. All new FCC rules that are applicable to each and all of the operations of any franchise granted under the terms of this ordinance, shall be adopted by City Council and made a part of this ordinance within one (1) year of passage by FCC.

24. Landlord-Tenant Relationships

Agreement between the Council to the contrary:

A. If a tenant wishes to obtain service from the Grantee and the landlord of the premises does not desire service, the tenant may, upon furnishing written permission from the landlord and upon payment of all costs and assumption of liability for future payment of all costs and service, receive service from the grantee.

B. If a tenant does not desire service and the landlord wishes to have an outlet installed in the premises, the landlord may have such outlet or outlets installed in the premises upon the giving of notice to the tenant of the time and place of the actual installation, with all costs to be borne by the landlord.

Cast wins laughs in Cavalier farce

The Cavalier Dinner Theater has scored another hit with their most recent offering, "No Sex Please, We're British."

Despite a plot that is essentially silly, this one has got the audiences charmed. In the story, a newly-married English couple has moved into an apartment over the bank where the husband works. They have ordered some knock-knacks from a Scandinavian Imports Co., but instead of glassware and the like, they get a steady stream of porno flicks, raw books and pictures of people doing unlikely exercises on trampolines.

While this kind of mistake would be an adult book store owner's dream, our couple panics and continually botches up their attempts to dispose of the shipments. The premise here, that any couple, let alone an English couple, would lose their heads over such a problem is the single major flaw in this script. After the Christine Keeler affair, and more recently, the publication of Prime Minister Gladstone's diary, one would have thought the myth about British reserve in sexual matters would have been put to rest. There's just too much suspension of disbelief required here.

Review

"No Sex Please, We're British" is now playing at the Cavalier Dinner Playhouse, 3317 Argonne Ave., Norfolk, through May 10. Performances are Wednesday through Sunday nights. Doors open at 6, buffet is served at 6:45, and the show starts at 8:15. Sunday times are one hour earlier. Tickets are $7.95 per person for all performances except Saturday nights which is $8.95.

In any case, a talented cast saves the show and manages to wring quite a few belly laughs from the audience.

Tony Smith, as the husband, does a fine job playing a man who isn't quite sure why it's all happening to him but who is determined to keep control. Susan Dempsey, as the wife, is very appealing as she runs about in her nightgown, hoping against hope that a sane solution will present itself. She is just a little too enthusiastic in her delivery, however, as are several other members of the cast.

Vera Moore, the only English member of the cast, delivered a flawless performance as the mother-in-law. Ray Sams, playing a friend entrusted with the disposal of the pornography, is a great clown, and much of the credit for pulling off this show belongs to him.

Debbie Deerfield and Coral Shattuck live up the second act as two kinky prostitutes determined to seduce somebody, anybody, in that crowded and confused apartment.

Despite its flaws, this is an appealing production, fast-moving and entertaining. Unlike another local dinner theater that often takes proven Broadway shows and butchers them, the Cavalier seems to do well with less well known scripts and altogether better acting.

Space fee incorrect

The Princess Anne High Drill Team Association is hoping that a typographical error inflating the space rental cost for the group's April 19 Flea Market won't scare off any takers. Spaces for the flea market at Princess Anne High School will be $5, not $50 as reported in the article printed in the March 28 issue of The Sun. The flea market, open to individuals as well as organizations, clubs and dealers, will be 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Rain date is April 28.

Board asks for $10,600

The Virginia Beach Recreational Facilities Authority is asking the city to support it financially to the tune of $10,600.

The proposed annual operating budget, which authority members feel will test the city's commitment to recreation projects it would endorse, was submitted to City Manager George Hanbury this week. Appointees to the authority have indicated that councilmen's reaction to the request could determine the future existence of the recreation panel.

The proposal was drawn up by Economic Development Director James De Bellis at the request of the panel. Costs are based on the assumption that the board's operation would be incorporated into the Economic Development Department.

The proposal asks for $7,000 for legal and expert services to be used in the preparation and review of legal documents that would be drawn up between the authority and any operators who would use the panel to finance tax-free bonds for recreational projects.

Another $1,542 would be allocated to cover the salaries, including the services of a secretary 25 hours a week and approximately eight hours for research and administration.

De Bellis suggested that $750 be allocated for travel expenses, with $500 for printing expenses, $200 for stationary and $115 for a filing cabinet.

In an interview with The Sun, one member of the recreational panel indicated that the proposal was a modest one, and expressed optimism that councilmen and Hanbury would respond favorably to the request.

Some members have indicated that a rejection of a budget request by the city would indicate that the authority, which has struggled to analyze its role since its first meeting in January, does not have support members feel is necessary to function effectively.

The authority has the power to seek tax-free bonds for recreational projects which would then be leased to an independent operator.

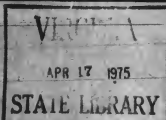

Until the Industrial Authority, private operators would not eventually hold title to the facility. Instead, lessors would be required to pay the city full market value of a facility once the bonds were retired.

Recreational Facility Authority members have said such a requirement is too restrictive, and some members support a change in Virginia law which would give recreational authorities powers similar to those of industrial authorities.

Hanbury, who received a copy of the proposed Recreational Facilities Authority budget last week, declined to comment on the request, until he makes a recommendation to Council.

Authority chairman James Hayden and co-chairman Fletcher Bryant plan to meet with Hanbury before the authority's May meeting, but the city manager said no request for a meeting has been made.

Authority members canceled a scheduled authority meeting Thursday because the budget request had not been settled. According to one member, it is pointless for the group to continue regular meetings until it has an operating budget.

Impact aid elusive for school projects

Virginia Beach schools are asking the federal government for $10 million to help build a two new schools under impact construction funds, but school planners don't think they will ever see a dime of it. "It's an exercise in preparedness," explained Dr. James Mounie, assistant superintendent for research, planning and development.

The last time Virginia Beach received money to build new schools under the program, Public Law 815, was in 1968, when $875,000 was allocated for construction of Newton Road Elementary School.

Mounie explained that money, designed to help support schools educating children of military and federal employees, dried up with the Nixon administration, and President Gerald Ford has not given any indication that he plans to resume the impact construction funding.

"We have no reason to believe Ford intends to make the money available," Mounie reported.

Although the money is not there, Mounie said, Virginia Beach would be given top priority for funding for construction because of the recent influx of children from military families.

He said school enrollment figures indicate an increase of more than 1,000 children from military families this year.

Ernest Stone, assistant superintendent for school planning, said the fund application is simply "putting our name in the pot."

The schools are requesting construction funds for two schools in the five-year capital improvement program, a junior high school in the western part of the city and Green Run High School.

Beach may bid for Rose Hall

By NEAL SIMS
Sun Editor

Virginia Beach City Manager George Hanbury will meet with representatives of the owners of Rose Hall this week to determine if the city is interested in pursuing the purchase of the 243-year-old historic building.

Industrial Security Co., which acquired the building and its 35-acre site on Virginia Beach Boulevard through a loan foreclosure, is reportedly asking $750,000 as a sale price.

At Hanbury's request, City Council deferred action Monday on a move to place Rose Hall under the city's historical and cultural zoning classification, an umbrella zoning which requires property owners to get approval from the Historical Review Board before making changes or improvements on the property. Hanbury asked for the deferral until a decision could be made regarding the city's purchase of the property.

Jay F. Wilks, an attorney for Rose Hall owners, said the possibility of historical zoning "placed a cloud" over the property and the owners were opposed to any move which might affect possible sale of Rose Hall. Wilks said his clients had no intention of developing the property and would be willing to negotiate with the city for a sale of the building and site.

Hanbury will meet with Wilks this week and report to Council Monday on the talks.

Reba McClannan, representing the Council of Garden Clubs, asked Council Monday to place the property under the historical zoning classification. She has said there is a fear that unless this is done, Rose Hall might be destroyed to make way for commercial development before it can be saved.

In a letter to councilmen, Hanbury wrote, "It is my belief that the imposition of historic zoning is tantamount to condemnation without compensation, unless the property owner wishes it to be classified as such."

Councilmen indicated that court action would be likely if the city imposed historic zoning and then attempted to buy the property.

In a later discussion, Councilman Robert Cromwell, an attorney, asked City Atty. J. Dale Bitson for an opinion next week on the city's historical zoning provisions included in the Comprehensive Zoning Ordinance. "If we are going to face litigation, then the sooner we know the better," he said.

In other business Monday, Council: • amended the city's Comprehensive Zoning Ordinance to include provisions for residential kennels where dogs are kept more than 100 feet from adjacent property lines;

• approved a resolution in support of continuing the HIT (High Intensity Targeted) antiburglary program within the Virginia Beach Police Department; and

• approved extension of city water service along General Street in the Newlight area at a cost of approximately $7,500.

Prior to its public meeting, Council met in executive session, closed to the public and the press, for 34 minutes to discuss what the agenda listed as "personnel and legal" matters.

Long Creek suit asks $3 million

Property owners along Long Creek near Great Neck Road are suing the City of Virginia Beach for $3 million for property damage they say was caused by an Army Corps of Engineers dredging project.

A decision is expected this week in Virginia Beach Circuit Court in Gorman vs. the City of Virginia Beach.

Property owners contend that a strong tidal flow through Long Creek which has repeatedly ripped away private bulkheading and eroded the shoreline was aggravated by a dredging project to make Long Creek navigable for boating.

City Manager George Hanbury said the property owners say the dredging was too deep, increasing the velocity of the waters which surge through the creek with the tide and also during rainstorms.

Hanbury said the city's position is that the eroding shoreline is the responsibility of the property owners.

In addition to Asst. City Atty. Jay Richardson, Virginia Beach is employing the services of Norfolk attorney Harry McCoy in the case.

Property owners are represented by Andrew Fine, Morris Fine and Carl Hall of Fine, Fine, Legum & Fine, a Virginia Beach law firm.

If the city loses the case, Hanbury indicated that bonding arrangements would have to be made to repair the shoreline. During the initial budget briefing early this month, councilmen expressed concern that the surplus funds of $3 million allotted in the proposed 1975-76 budget would not cover a defeat in the suit.

Army turns back on Ft. Story land trade

The Army has turned thumbs down on a proposed land exchange between Ft. Story and Green Run which Virginia Beach officials had offered in an attempt to quash plans for 600 Navy housing units at Cape Henry.

Virginia Beach offered to trade 33 acres of property zoned for apartment development in residential Green Run in return for 160 acres at Ft. Story.

City officials reasoned that the Green Run property was more valuable than Ft. Story property, which would be reserved for recreational use.

However, Howard H. Callaway, secretary of the Army, rejected the trade. He contended that a fair exchange would be 13 acres of Ft. Story for the 33 acres at Green Run, based on appraisals made by the Army.

Callaway said 13 acres would give the city a 1,000-foot stretch of beach 566 feet wide. Beach officials say the Green Run property is worth $1 million, which would mean that the Army has tagged its Ft. Story land at $77,000 an acre.

A public hearing on the proposed 600-unit Navy housing project is scheduled 7 p.m. April 23 at Princess Anne High School.

The Navy has distributed copies of the environmental impact statement for the housing plan to Beach libraries.

Information on presentation of written or oral statements is available through R.L. Warren, 444-7131. Speakers will be limited to five minutes, while group presentations will be allotted 10 minutes.

Inside

Things are looking up for Earl Willis. As president of the second annual Virginia Beach Neptune Festival, Willis has trimmed the budget and made some organizational changes which he feels will lead to a fun-filled and smoothly operated festival.

Willis took time out recently from his duties as administrator of the General Hospital of Virginia Beach for an exclusive interview with The Sun on his plans for Neptune II. Our profile of the man behind the Neptune Festival is on page A-4.

Beach elections pick up tempo

Virginia Beach Republicans are planning a mid-May convention open to registered Republicans to select a slate of three candidates to challenge Democratic opponents in the Nov. 4 House of Delegates race.

Beach Republican Party Chairman C.C. Taylor predicted that "at least two of the Democratic incumbents" will fall in Republican hands this fall.

Although Taylor kept names of potential candidates under wraps, he said Republicans should bring several strong candidates before Beach voters.

The convention will be held at a school in Virginia Beach, but final plans have not been made.

In addition, Taylor said Beach Republicans will be involved in races in eight senatorial districts, including several Norfolk and Chesapeake - dominated precincts which flow over the western edge of Virginia Beach city boundaries along with the flatter seat for the House of Delegates presently held by Billy O'Brien of Chesapeake, a Democrat.

Three Democratic incumbents, Del. Owen B. Pickett, Donald H. Rhodes and Glenn B. McClanahan have all filed candidacy papers for the June 10 Democratic primary. The only challenger on the Democratic slate is Bernard Barrow, a Beach attorney. The city's Beach Borough Councilman, Robert H. Callis Jr., who filed his candidacy papers without opposition for the Democratic nomination, will challenge Sen. A. Joseph Canada, a Republican who holds the Beach's only Senate seat.

An independent, John A. Fahey, also announced plans to enter the Beach Senate race. Fahey is a professor at Old Dominion University.

Virginia Beach Circuit Court Clerk John D. Fretress said all candidates who are not on the Republican or Democratic Party ticket must file their candidacy papers by 7 p.m. June 10.

Friday was the filing deadline for the June 10 Democratic primary.

4-H clears center site

The 4-H Club is clearing a 34-acre site on 85th Street for the $1 million Southeast 4-H Education Center on property previously used for a summer camp.

Virginia Beach Mayor J. Curtis Payne, first president of the proposed center, said a bus drive will begin this summer to raise money for the project which will rely on contributions from private sources and local government. The mayor explained that no state or federal money would be available for the center.

The bus drive began Tuesday from the State Division of Parks by the Virginia Polytechnic Institute Extension Service for the past 28 years for the 4-H Camp Farm, which closed last year because of sanitation problems.

The proposed educational center, which will be available to nonprofit organizations and municipal agencies when it is not in use by the 4-H, will include a dining hall, administration building, four lodges, an assembly building and four social lodges. There will be room to accommodate 200 overnight guests.

Billy E. McCabe, a Navy officer who resides in Virginia Beach, will become executive director of the center May 1.

Units from Bayside, Cox, First Colonial, Kellam, Kempsville and Princess Anne High Schools, a total of 650 cadets, will be inspected and judged while during precision drill team exercises.

The Cox NJROTC drill team won the Capt. C.E. Cato Award for Excellence last year at the competition.

Tidewater Metro Transit initiated its first direct bus service to the Clinantsee Compound at the Norfolk Naval Station Monday after Beach residents working there purchased transit tickets to show their support for a new route.

Buses will leave Miller's parking lot at Virginia Beach Boulevard and N. Plaza Trail 7:10 a.m., with stops at Pembroke Mall at 7:18 a.m. and continue to the Clinantsee Compound at 7:50 a.m.

In the afternoon, buses

Pile-up injures 5 along Shore Drive

A Virginia Beach woman was in serious condition at De Paul Hospital following a Sunday evening three-car pile-up on Shore Drive at Diamond Springs Road.

Virginia Beach, which injured five persons.

Leslie Parker, 31, of W. 68th Street, Virginia Beach, received multiple injuries when the station wagon driven by her husband, Geoffrey B. Parker, 35, was struck head-on by a westbound car which swerved in front of the Parker vehicle after it had been hit from the rear by a third car.

Parker, an Old Dominion University instructor, was treated for minor injuries at De Paul, and the couple's son Jago, 5, was admitted for observation.

Michael Stevens, 66, and his wife, Sally, 62, of Norfolk were admitted to Norfolk General Hospital for cuts and multiple injuries after their car struck the Parker station wagon. Stephens M. Morris, 25, of Norfolk, driver of the car which police say triggered the chain of accidents by hitting the Stevens' vehicle, escaped without injury.

STRONG MAKE STRONG COMMUNITIES

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK
APRIL 16, 1975

ARE YOU REALLY LIVING?

You may live in a fine home, drive a late-model automobile, indulge in sinful pleasure, and yet not really live. How can one begin to really live? Peter gives the answer in Acts 2:38 - Repent, and be baptized everyone of you in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, and ye shall receive the gift of the Holy Ghost. Jesus promised abundant life, a life of happiness and peace, and ETERNAL LIFE. Earthly life must end, material possessions must be relinquished. But the more abundant life is eternal. Its blessings will never cease. YES, YOU CAN REALLY LIVE!

Dancer intercedes

The request of a traveller dancer, who testified she was raped by two members of a motorcycle gang, one black and one white, two years ago, convinced Circuit Court Judge Paul W. Atkins to suspend the sentence of one of her attackers.

William G. Bassett, 24, a black, had been convicted of rape, while a white codefendant was acquitted in an earlier trial.

The convicted rapist served four months in the Virginia Beach City Jail and was awaiting transfer to the State Penitentiary to complete an eight-year sentence.

Atkins said he agreed to suspend Bassett's sentence at the go-go dancer's request because the white defendant was not punished; if Bassett had been transported to the penitentiary, the case would have been out of Circuit Court's jurisdiction.

Charges dropped

Murder charges have been dropped against one of three men accused of the October shooting death of a Virginia Beach auto wholesaler whose bullet-riddled body was discovered locked in the trunk of his car at Pembroke Mall.

Lee Queensberry, 35, who had been arrested with a business partner, Earl L. Squires, 25, and Jess Edward Watson III, 27, an insurance salesman for conspiring in the death of Wayne Edward Chitwood to collect a $50,000 insurance policy, told police he was not involved in the murder plot.

The defendant's attorney, Bernard Barrow, said police suspected that Queensberry was running when he was stopped for a speeding violation in Clark County, Ill. Queensberry had stated he was out of town to pick up a used car for the wholesaling business he ran with Squires and the murder victim.

Phantom jet lost

A $4 million F4 Phantom jet based at Naval Air Station (NAS) Oceana crashed in the Atlantic Ocean April 9, but its two officers on board parachuted to safety off Cape Hatteras.

Lt. Eugene T. Diller, 27, 3543 Lake Crest Road, Virginia Beach, pilot, and radar intercept officer Ltjg. William G. Kerr, 25, of Steubenville, Ohio, were rescued by a Coast Guard cutter.

Two days earlier radar intercept officer Lt. Robert Hardy, 28, of Oceana's Fighter Squadron 101, ejected from his craft, although the jet was piloted back to NAS Oceana safely.

Navy spokesmen canceled a search for the missing officer April 9, and they gave no explanation for the incident.

Auction scheduled

The failure of the lone high bidder to pay off $71,275 in debts of trust for Frere Jacques School will trigger another auction on the steps of Virginia Beach Circuit Court 2 p.m. Thursday.

Paul P. Wagner, an assistant appraiser of a Norfolk real estate firm, submitted the high bid of $30,000 for a group, in the auction, but a request by Wagner to delay payment of the $71,275 debt until the school could be reopened was rejected.

The privately-owned school, which closed in February following financial problems after 20 years of operation, has about $25,000 in unsecured claims against it, according to Gerald Rubinger, a Beach attorney who handled the March 28 auction.

High bidder in Thursday's auction will be required to deposit $1,000 and pay the remainder within 10 days. The school facility, on five acres of property at 2100 Harbor Lane, Virginia Beach, includes the school building, a swimming pool and an uncompleted classroom building.

Headmaster named

The new headmaster to Cape Henry School, a privately-owned institution for students from grades 1 through 12 on First Colonial Road, Virginia Beach, announced plans to create a recruitment committee to boost enrollment.

Dr. W. Hugh Moonaw, continuing education administrator at the University of South Carolina and former president of Stratford College, Danville, which closed last year, will replace interim headmaster N.W. Morris, retired Kempville High School principal.

Moonaw, 49, will begin his duties officially on June 1, but he already reported that the school hopes to bolster its enrollment of 172, down from 227 students the year before.

Although Stratford College closed because of lack of students, Cape Henry School Board Chairman John P. Edmondson said board members are satisfied that the school's new headmaster was not responsible for the college's failure.

Dog bite critics wind up behind bars

A pair of Virginia Beach men who dropped in on the Second Precinct police headquarters to complain about a vicious police dog wound up in jail when police discovered that baited fired at the animal wound up in the leg of a Virginia Beach policeman.

The complaint helped police unravel a shooting incident involving a disturbance at Hungry Foes, a football parlor in Princess Anne Plaza. Investigators initially suspected a sniper.

Patrolman James A. Davis, 24, was wounded in the leg April 9 after his dog attacked George Leon Spellman, 18, of Realty Lane, Virginia Beach. The policeman was shot in front of the parlor after he helped disperse a crowd which had gathered to watch a fight.

Police charged Joseph T. Hickson, 20, with the shooting after the Hickson and two friends accompanied Spellman to police headquarters to complain about the biting incident. During questioning, police discovered that Hickson fired a gun at the dog.

Spellman, who disappeared in the crowd after the dog attacked him, was charged with disorderly conduct and resisting arrest. Hickson was charged with malicious shooting.

Waste dumping brings fine

Camper owners who dump their wastes anywhere but in approved sanitary dumping stations are inviting a $200 fine, according to Virginia Beach Health Department officials.

The Virginia State Department of Health is on an educational campaign to warn campers of health dangers from such wastes and to encourage them to use proper dumping facilities available at licensed campgrounds.

Virginia officials reported an increasing number of violations of the law from camping vehicles which drop their wastes along roadways and at campsites.

Eugene Foster Jr., a sanitarian who inspects Beach campgrounds for the Health Department, noted that some campers illegally dump their wastes to avoid sanitation fees at campgrounds. For others, it's a matter of ignorance.

"Some dump right on the campsite," he reported. "You wouldn't think they would do that."

All water wastes, including those from washing dishes and showering, contain materials such as grease and food particles which serve as breeding grounds for flies and disease, he explained.

Virginia law requires that all wastes be completely enclosed in holding tanks inside or outside of the vehicle until they can be deposited at a dumping station.

The Health Department will distribute information on camper sanitation to highway information stations, recreation vehicle dealers and to licensed campgrounds in an effort to reach camper owners vacationing in Virginia.

Foster said individuals can make citizens arrests when they observe illegal citizens arrests when they dumping or they can report the violation to the police or to the Health Department.

An editorial:

'Shot' faint for gala at Beach

Members of Virginia Beach's Bicentennial Commission are making a big push to make sure that "the shot heard round the world" gets at least an echo in Virginia Beach.

The commission selected Saturday, the 200th anniversary of the first skirmish in the Revolutionary War, as its kick-off for the bicentennial celebration in the hopes that the event might stir up some patriotic feelings in an area rich in the history of the country's heritage.

Unfortunately, Bicentennial Gala organizers say community response to the opening festivities of the two-year celebration haven't measured up to their expectations.

Chairman Roy Alphin said he had hoped for a crowd of about 300 at the opening function 6:30 Saturday night at Ft. Story's Officers' Mess, but so far only 100 persons have indicated that they will attend.

But Alphin has not given up hope, and he reported that each day's mail brings more responses. But time is running short for reception planning, and Alphin said he must tell the club how many will attend within the next day or two.

The commission, which is paying $5.45 per person for the open bar and hors d'oeuvres, is asking only $7.50 to cover the cost of the reception which will take place a stone's throw from shores where the first colonists landed 300 years ago. "We're lucky if we'll break even," Alphin conceded.

Part of the problem is that many people, faced with financial worries and daily reports of bad news from Vietnam and the Mideast, are not in the mood for celebrating.

Although April 19, 1775 is an historical milestone, Americans probably won't get enthused about the bicentennial until the eve of July 4, 1976. It's not a thought that consoles the commission members who are putting their time and effort into making the celebration a success.

Alphin, somewhat of a history buff, observed that in 1875 hard times faced a nation recovering from the Civil War and what people in those days called "a panic," economic difficulties similar to today's recession.

But, Alphin remarked sadly, it didn't stop Americans from celebrating the United States' 100th anniversary.

Chances are that the bicentennial tempo will pick up in the coming months, and hopefully individuals who have worked hard setting the plans for the celebration won't be too discouraged if the "shot heard round the world" is muffled as it plunges through a few layers of community apathy.

Willis guides Neptune II

By NEAL SIMS
Sun Editor

W. Earl Willis realized the prodigious job he was taking on when he accepted the post as president of the second annual Virginia Beach Neptune Festival.

In its debut, festival organizers rejoiced in the spontaneous civic success of their affair, but the fledgling festival endured a mishmash of mistakes which inevitably accompany the first attempt at so large a project. The festival delighted more than 167,000 participants with its 55 events - most of them free - but it also left Beach taxpayers with a $45,000 bill to make up a deficit.

Enter Willis, administrator of the General Hospital of Virginia Beach, civic leader and festival supporter. The neighborly, fun-filled image of the first festival must be maintained, but Neptune II had its financial bugs to be ironed out. So the former Lynchburg used car salesman took on the task of making the second annual Neptune Festival a worthwhile but not so burdensome endeavor for the city and residents of Virginia Beach.

Rem one, said Willis, was to straighten out the finances. One of the purposes of the festival - scheduled from Sept. 26 to Oct. 5 this year - is to extend the tourist season, but just as important is the goal to unite the community by offering 10 days of festivities at little or no cost.

With that in mind, Willis launched a fund drive under the direction of innkeeper Tom Lyons. He trimmed the Neptune budget from last year's $148,000 to $102,000 and asked the city to include a $25,000 contribution in its proposed 1975 operating budget.

The instant success of the first festival had left astonished officials holding the bag last year when more than 50,000 persons turned out on Atlantic Avenue for an opening night seafood feast. The banquet had an abrupt ending when the food ran out long before the crowd was served.

Fred Napolitano, president of the first festival committee, warned Willis that the community was not likely to be as cooperative this year. So Willis scheduled an additional night of feasting and devised a plan to insure ample servings for all. Festival officials are offering the concessions to one bidder who would provide all catering in exchange for a $10,000 deposit and a percentage of the take.

To guard against other organizational slip-ups, Willis made 12 festival board members deputy directors, each in charge of certain aspects of the festival.

Festival Executive Director Frankie Abourjille said she telephones Willis three or four times a week to apprise him of committee meetings. "I was a little leery at first, having a new boss every year," Mrs. Abourjille said, "but Earl is an outstanding boss. He's always accessible."

Willis brings years of experience to the job of Neptune Festival president. He received a B.A. in business administration from what is now Virginia Commonwealth University in Richmond and was graduated with a masters of hospital administration from the Medical College of Virginia in 1957.

After a stint with a Farmville hospital, Willis became administrator of the General Hospital of Virginia Beach in 1963 when it was only a 47-bed facility on 25th Street. The hospital broke ground at its present site on First Colonial Road six months later.

"I've almost witnessed every brick laid and every nail driven," Willis said. "Well, not every one. They're out there laying some now." Willis added, referring to the construction for expanding the hospital.

Willis lives with his wife, Mary Jane, and their daughter, Elizabeth Ann, 14, and son, Row, 11, on Cherry Lane in old Alhambra. "I'm sold on Virginia Beach," he said. "I would not want to live anywhere but here."

Willis, who is 47 (his doctor jokingly told him he had the body of a 27-year-old), is a former chairman of the board of deacons of the First Presbyterian Church and a member of the Norfolk YMCA board, the Mayor's Task Force on Jobs for Veterans and the Virginia Beach Association.

With the numerous hours of effort spent on the second annual Neptune Festival, Neptune II will be somewhat of a vacation for the Willis family. "I plan to take a week off during the festival because I know its going to take a lot of my time," Willis said. As president, he will attend most or all of the festival's 55 events in 10 days.

And how would Earl Willis like the Virginia Beach resident to remember his Neptune Festival?

"Well, I hope he would think of it as a family affair that he thoroughly enjoyed and didn't cost him a whole lot of money."

"We got a check for $2 from a retired, elderly man who had read that the taxpayers were footing the bill for part of the festival. He wrote that he had enjoyed himself and hoped this would help out. To me, that was the festival."

Princess Anne's Billy Capps:

With an ERA of .000, he's getting better

By STEVE BIONDO
Sun Staff Writer

Billy Capps: the name has a baseball ring to it, like Ty Cobb, or Jim Landis, or Sandy Koufax. Solid, no-nonsense, American.

To Princess Anne baseball coach Don Benschoten, the young man behind the name is the main reason his Cavalier ballclub has posted an early season record of three wins against one loss. Two of the pitching wins have gone to Capps, one a 3-0 shutout in the season opener against First Colonial, the other a two-hit triumph over Norview.

"Right now his ERA is 0.00," beams van Benschoten. "Two boys, Capps and Anderson, are the ones that have helped us the most, especially Capps."

The team I'm on now has got to be the jokingest team in the world. Coach van Benschoten is a great coach. He's a lot of fun to work with. He doesn't smile much but when he does, it's there. He cracks a joke now and then to keep us going.

- Princess Anne pitcher Billy Capps

The 17-year-old hurler has blazed his way through opposing lineups in every league he's played in since the age of 10. He was a Pony League all-star three years ago, then was selected the outstanding player on the Plaza Junior High team in 1973. Last summer, while pitching for the Lynnhaven Colt League team that were the sectional champs, Capps made that League's all-star roster. This was after coming off a 3-2 pitching season with the Kellam junior varsity, who compiled an 8-2 record behind Capps' clutch performances.

This year, with re-districting, Capps found himself in a strange school. A few of the faces had changed but not many. Princess Anne players Sam Eura, David Brown and Wade Weldon all played with Capps on the Lynnhaven squad. If the change in location was affected, his outlook, the Cavalier pitcher does not show it.

"The team I'm on now has got to be the jokingest team in the world," he says. "They're a great bunch of guys. Coach van (Benschoten) is a great coach. He's a lot of fun to work with. He doesn't smile much but when he does, it's there. He cracks a joke now and then to keep us going."

CAPPS

Capps is a junior on a team of juniors. "We've only got one sophomore on the team and three seniors," he says. "Our goal is taking the district as far as I'm concerned. I want to make the Plaza area known." Capps believes that the Plaza area of the city has been given short shrift when it comes to baseball recognition. "Really, Kempville and Bayside have been getting it all."

The Princess Anne hurler has been building a reputation for his coolness under fire. As a reliever, he says the pressure is basically no different than what is brought to bear on a starter. "It does bother me," he admits. "The only thing I think about is getting out of it. That's all you can do."

"He does better when he's under pressure. He loves the competition," says Capps' father, Jim, who coached him for two years in the Pony League. "In one game when he was 15, the starter had gotten into trouble. He went out there to warm up, head hanging down like he didn't even care. I was about climbing the fence. The bases were loaded. He struck out three boys on nine pitches."

For Coach Van Benschoten, the situation this season is ideal. With the pitching coming through the way it has thanks to his starting rotation of Capps, David Anderson and Weldon, says the coach, "I feel like if we can score seven runs we can win. Everybody's starting to hit. This is the best hitting team I've had in five or six years."

Right now his ERA is 0.00. Two boys, Capps and Anderson, are the ones that have helped us the most, especially Capps.

- Princess Anne coach Don van Benschoten

Van Benschoten considers himself lucky -- at the expense of Kellam's first year mentor Wayne Sykes -- to have picked up both Capps and Anderson in the re-districting last year. The pair have been friends and have been playing baseball together for five years in the community leagues. "If I start going down, Dave will be there to pick me back up," he says. "I do have trouble with control, until someone comes out and tells me what I'm doing wrong. As long as Dave Anderson's there, I'll be all right. He gives me a lot of confidence."

I feel like if we can score seven runs we can win. Everybody's starting to hit. This is the best hitting team I've had in five or six years.

- Princess Anne coach Don van Benschoten

Anderson occasionally catches for Capps in practice, but Coach Van Benschoten prefers to keep the junior right-hander in reserve on the bench. But with regular catcher Larry Rubin out indefinitely with a knee injury, he may be contemplating using the Capps-Anderson team. Second-string catcher Mike Joseph would then catch for Weldon and Anderson in their starts. "The thing is, we also have Ray Bjorkman, who's pretty good, too," says Capps. "He should pitch more."

Capps doesn't presume to tell the coach his job, but like most athletes he's opinionated when it comes to his chosen sport. He is a self-effacing young man, embarrassed by the pile of athletic trophies and plaques that fill his bedroom closet. "I've got a lot of good guys backing me up," he says, adding with a laugh that he feels almost inadequate in some ways. "I'm not hitting too good this year, so I've got to work on that. I've got to do better. I can't do any worse."

Most of Capps' athletic background -- except when it comes to baseball -- is a story of missed tryouts. "I was going to go out for track," he says, "but I missed the sign-ups." He had the same luck last fall when he came out late for Coach Gagan's football squad. He plans on trying again in August, with his eye on a wide receiver position.

Capps' looks on baseball not as the beginning of a

He does better under pressure. He loves the competition. In one game when he was 15, the starter had gotten into trouble. He went out there to warm up, head hanging down like he didn't care. I was about climbing the fence. The bases were loaded. He struck out three boys on nine pitchers.

professional career, but as a pastime that happens to be enjoyable and includes the different elements of athletic competition that lend a zest to existence. He marks the high point of his baseball life as the time when he retired 21 batters in a Little League game at the age of 12. "There are other things beside baseball, I guess," he says non-committally.

"Right now it's what I like most."

Says Capps' father, "Billy enjoys baseball too much to let it worry him."

Coach Van Benschoten is apparently not letting the Cavalier's district schedule worry him, either. The name of Capps sounds too much like Cobb.

Virginia team set to meet Danes

Except for a single weight class - 175-pound division - the Virginia scholastic wrestling squad that will meet the Danish national Junior Olympic team Tuesday at Princess Anne High School is set.

In a wrestle-off Saturday at the American International Physical Fitness and School of Wrestling gym on Princess Anne Road, high school wrestlers from around the state of Virginia competed for 12 starting spots in eight weight classes.

The names of those who earned starting positions on the Virginia squad - being coached by American International's Wayne Boyd - include seven wrestlers from Virginia Beach who distinguished themselves on their respective high school teams last season.

Winners in the first weight class, 106-pounds, were Norfolk Academy's Ron Friedman and Mike Taylor, of First Colonial. Friedman beat Taylor by a 17-2 major decision in the finals of the Saturday wrestle-off but both grapplers earn themselves a starting spot on the squad.

Terry Krets of Princess Anne, a district and regional champion this past season for the Cavaliers, edged out Churchland's Mike Monaghan, 5-2, to take the 115-pound starting spot on the Virginia team.

At 125 - where three starting positions are open - Corbin Johnson of Norfolk Academy decisioned Western Branch's 1975 state champion Wendell Hardy, 3-1, to take one position. Hardy and former Lake Taylor grappler Butch Kitchens will fill the other two.

Cox's Graham Hudgins vaulted in the single 132-pound spot available by beating rival Dave Weatherly of Great Bridge. Hudgins won a 3-1 decision over Weatherly in the finals of the Saturday wrestle-offs.

At 143 - pounds, First Colonial's district champ this past season at 135, senior Freeman Greg, planned Princess Anne's Jimmy Rogers at 1:43 into their final bout. Greg and Rogers each move into the two 143-pound starting spots.

Kellam's Carl Bruso who nearly completed his junior season as a Knight grappler with an unbeaten record - beat Daneshaj's Jim McVicker by a 16-0 major decision to claim the lone starting position at 154-pounds. Bruso wrestled last season at 167.

In the 165 - pound class, Norview grappler Mike Benzoni won a 6-3 decision over Mt. Vernon's Brian Breannon to take the single starting slot there. The Senior Benzoni resigned as the 1975 Eastern District 167-pound champ last season.

At 175, says Coach Boyd, there is as yet no definite starter. Kempville's Kyle O'Neill decisioned Great Bridge grappler Ricky Adams, 3-2, Saturday in the wrestle-offs but the narrow win did not decide who will start. There will be a re-match between the two later in the week to determine who will play against the Danish team at 175-pounds.

The Danish national Junior Olympic squad will meet the Virginians Tuesday at Princess Anne High School. Bouts will begin at 2 p.m.

Falcons hand Cavaliers first loss

Chiefs stop Bookers

Despite more of the sort of wet weather that has made city catches groan in despair recently, the Eastern District baseball state got off to a soggy start April 8 with a number of beach squads charging early wins over Norfolk rivals.

Don van Benschoten's Princess Anne also recorded both their third win and first loss last week. In the first game, the Cavaliers beat Norview, 7-4, on a two-hit pitching performance by junior right-hander Billy Capps, who garnered his second win against no losses for the young season. Princess Anne power was characterized by utility man Dave Weldon's first inning grand slam home run that put the Cavaliers out ahead to stay. Each team recorded five errors in the contest, an indication of what the weather has done to teams now unfamiliar with playing on dry fields.

The Cavaliers were surprised, however, April 9 by Tom Fisher's game Cox club, dropping their first match of the season to the Falcons in a 9-7 debacle that saw van Benschoten's team roll up six errors. Cox's Barry Hoe blasted a sixth inning triple that split the game wide open from a 3-5 deadlock. Hoe also posted the relief win for Cox while P.A.'s Weldon got the loss. Cavalier senior Sam Eura hit a line round-tripper for Princess Anne in the losing game.

The day before the Falcons had given up a 10-7 hitting battle to the Kellam varsity. Hitting heroes for the Knights included catcher Gene Efrid, who grabbed two hits and a pair of runs-batted-in to pace the Knights in the win. Cox's Mike Bowman, a junior transfer at third base, led the Falcon power with a seventh inning home run that punched three runs across the plate for Cox. The Falcons only made it a bit closer, however, and Jim Henley posted his first win of the season for Kellam. He is 1-1. Cox's Jack Ferrell absorbed the loss. He is also 1-1.

Despite four errors and a home run by junior catcher John Bickenbach, First Colonial was downed in its first district outing April 8 by Granby, 7-6. The Patriots rolled up seven hits in the outing, but two three-run innings by the Comets effectively stopped First Colonial's attack. Senior Mike Gurely took the loss to make him 1-1.

Kevin Smith and Jerry Crain popped two hits each to lead Kempville past Booker 7-4. April 8. Senior Scott O'Hara rolled up his third win on the year against one loss by allowing a single hit to the Bookers. The Chiefs showed less offensive punch than they had in previous match-ups this year, gaining only six hits and committing four errors in the contest.

Terry Merton's defending Eastern District champion Bayside Marinas delayed their district debut by meeting Norfolk Catholic instead. The Crusaders' magic proved more potent than what the Marinas could muster, and they won a 4-2 decision over the Bayside squad. Mike Rhodes lost his first pitching start of the season in the contest as he and reliever Steve Pruitt gave up eight hits to Norfolk Catholic batters. Rhodes went back into the game in the sixth inning, but by that time all the scoring was over with. The Marinas was 2-3 so far.

Kellam to sponsor special olympics

Kellam High School is sponsoring Virginia Beach's second annual Special Olympics Thursday in the school's stadium for children with physical handicaps.

The event, expected to include participation by 600 city children, will be co-ordinated by Knight varsity track coach Bob Ammon and the school's Student Cooperative Association. Handicapped children from Virginia Beach, in grades kindergarten to 12th will be participating in athletic event, scheduled to begin at 9 a.m. and last until 2 p.m. Kellam track squad members will officiate the running and field events, which will include broad jump and softball throw.

Marlins win 16th straight dual meet

Coach Len Greenwood's Bayside track squad won their overall track title to 16 consecutive wins April 9 as the Marlins met and clobbered Princess Anne in a dual meet on the Bayside home grounds, 108-28.

Mike McCormick, Clinton Doney and John Harrington all set new Bayside school records in the meet. McCormick tossed the discus 146 feet, 1 1/2 inches while both Doney and Harrington pole vaulted 12 feet, 6 inches to tie for the new mark. Jerry Mosely grabbed first places in two events, the 440 -- in which he posted a time of 50.6 seconds -- and the long jump. Norman Billage, a sophomore, lightened the Marlins' hold on the jumping events by taking both the triple and high jumps. He went 5 feet, 1 inch in the latter event.

Kempville eliminated Granby by an overwhelming 32-44 score, depending on Mike Sanderson and Steve Sawyer to lead the way. Sanderson and Sawyer won four events between them. Sawyer won the mile with a run timed at 4:28, then won the 880 as well. Teammate Sanderson won the long and triple jumps -- the latter with a leap recorded at 40 feet 8 inches -- and crossed the finish line first on the Marlins' 880 relay squad.

Cox beat Maury April 9 with an 84-52 win on the cinder track. The Falcons depended on three first place finishes by senior Derek Canaan in the 120, the 100 and as first man across the line on the winning Falcons 440 relay team. Butch Fiore, Brian Daigneault and Herman Brockett rounded out the victorious relay squad in that event. Brockett took the long jump and the high jump events as well, taking the former with a leap of 19 feet, 11 inches. Junior Chris Reich added a 16.1 second time in the high hurdles to round out the Falcons scoring.

First Colonial whipped a ragged Lake Taylor squad, 105-31, on the two-event winning performance by Danny Sioninski, who grabbed first place finishes in the 440 and 880. Teammate Tucker Beaumont grabbed the high jump with a leap of 5 feet, 8 inches. In the weight events, junior Jerry Chaisner took the shot put competition with a toss of 50 feet, 8 inches.

Sunior Russell Meyer won the discus throw for the Patriots with a toss of 122 feet, 7 inches.

PA's Banta will play in East West game

Princess Anne's 6-7 basketball center, senior Rick Banta, has been selected to play in the Virginia High School Coach's Association East-West All-Star game, set for July 29 in Roanoke.

The game, to be played the same week as the East-West All-Star Football game in conjunction with the Virginia High School League's coaching clinic, will pit high school basketball stars from eastern Virginia against those from the western half of the state. Banta was chosen as a member of the 15-man East squad.

"It's a great honor for him to be selected to play," said Princess Anne varsity basketball coach Leo Anthony. "I don't know of any other player in Virginia Beach who's been selected."

Banta led the Cavaliers to a 10-8 season and a berth in the Eastern District tournament this past season. The Cavaliers lost

Pair win roll-off

Virginia Beach's Lynn Gorman and Joe E. Brown Saturday were declared the winners in the men's and women's divisions of Brunswick's local bowling "roll-off," qualifying them to participate in the 10th annual "Bowl Your Way to Europe" international tournament May 22-25 in Washington, D.C.

Brown won his division with a game of 214, 62 pins over his average. Second place winner in the men's division was Fran Bowles, of 2001 Waterlaid Court. Bowles rolled a 208, 38 pins over his average. Miss Gorman took her division after posting a high game of 234, 58 pins over her average. Pat Zirkle of 892 Lamplight Lane was the second place winner. She bowled a 196 game, 56 pins over her average.

The two winners will compete in the national as representatives of the local center. The grand prize for the winner for the national event is an all-expense paid trip to Europe. More than 400 bowlers are expected to participate.

Beach boys dominate junior tourney

Coach Bill Gutermuth's wrestling responsibilities -- do not rest come March, contrary to popular belief. The Cox grappling mentor recently co-directed with Wayne Boyd of the American International School of Wrestling, the first statewide wrestling tourney for boys aged 7 to 13 April 5 at Cox High School.

The tourney attracted club teams and individuals from all around the state as well as Virginia Beach and saw more than 100 boys participate, wrestling for first, second and third place trophies in 18 different weight classes.

Virginia Beach boys -- wrestling with a number of different club teams -- garnered 28 of the 54 state finishes in the tourney.

At the smallest weight class, 49-pounds, Kempville's Doug Sody and Frank Boyd of American International's team finished second and third. Lewis Winston of American International and Chris Felthousen of the 55th Street Club (Virginia Beach) also took second and third in the 54-pound class. At 59, Jimmy McConers took a first and Joe Matko grabbed second place. Both wrestled for American International. The club took places in the next three weight-classes as well, with Tim Harrell in second at 64-pounds; David Holland at 69-pounds finishing first in his class; and Joey Barnes and Jeff Burns taking first and third, respectively, at 74.

At 79-pounds there were two Beach winners -- second-place Steve Edwards of the 55th St. Club and American International's Chris Russo in third. Boyd's club team also placed Davis Johnson in first place at 85-pounds; Scott Mansfield in first at 89; Jimmy Wootton and Buddy Kerr in first at 94 and 99-pounds; Bobby Harrell in third at the 104-pound slot; Wayne Waller in second at 114; David Bunn and George Ingram in first at 119 and 124 pounds, respectively; and Reggie McCaskey in place at 129.

The 55th Street Club additionally placed Steve Edwards in second at 79; Dave Frischett in first place at 109-pounds; John Felthousen in second at the 124-pound slot; George Holmes in first at 129; and Jim Gaudreau, who finished third in the 130 to 150-pound competition, considered heavyweight. The Kempville Little Rascals additionally placed Bill Parr in second place at 84-pounds and John Rimarski, who placed third in the 119-pound competition.

Seahawks win two titles in city extramurals

Virginia Beach's beginning basketball extramural squad capped the city championship April 5 by defeating Kempville Junior in the finals of the beginning level tourney. The Seahawks, who won the contest on their home court, included Maurice Fisher, Jeff Howard, Harry Smithson, Dony Doney, Robert Creekmore, Jamie Platt, Anthony James, Billy Wamburn, Steve James, Russell Walsh, Brian Buffman and Rob Crocker.

A Virginia Beach Junior High squad also won the city extramural volleyball title -- in a game played

Members of the victorious Seahawks team were Leon Lawson, Guy Morgan, Joe Flory, Sid Harwood, John Magrawski, Ken Holloman, Jay Mapp, Britt Simon, Jeff Craig, Matt Turk, Brian Bean and William Phillips.

At Cox, in the finals of the advanced boy's basketball tourney, the Falcons team came away with the title by beating contender First Colonial. Taking the Cox team to victory were Paul Bourdon, Brian Re-idson, Eddie Hahit, Norman Bowman, Kenzie Beale and Ron Gregory.

'The chicks are back' for Beach tennis

By STEVE BROWD
Sun Staff Writer

There is a new look in Virginia Beach scholastic tennis this season, the look of budding young Chris Everts and Billy Jean King gracefully working out on the clay courts, powering their schools to glory by means two-handed swipes with their aluminum rackets.

"It's a miracle," says Cox girl's coach Mary Jane Brewer, commenting on the surprising success and relative smoothness with which the girls' tennis program has slid into its first year in Virginia Beach. For Carol Chory -- who confesses a personal attachment to the game above her professional commitment as both girls' tennis and gymnastics coach at Princess Anne -- the season brought a long-awaited realization that women's athletics at the scholastic level are here to stay.

"We have such a strong team. We have good depth right down to the tenth player," says Coach Brewer about her Falcon team. Despite the fact that the team consists of one senior and one junior while the rest of the roster is made up of sophomores, experience is still the keynote behind Cox's success. "Some of them have been playing for so long it's incredible," explains Miss Brewer.

Success for Cox this year means a clean sweep of the Falcon's first four matches, over Kempville, First Colonial, Kellam and -- last week -- a 6-3 decision over the Cavaliers. Miss Chory's PA squad had also previously gone unbeaten in its first three matches. "I was surprised," reflected Coach Brewer after the win. "All of our singles won. I didn't think we would beat them that bad."

High point of the momentous meeting between the two teams April 9 -- a make-up of the match originally scheduled the week before and rained out -- was the meeting of the two squad's No. 1 players, Princess Anne sophomore Cindy Hatcher and Cox junior Pam Negley. The young Falcon player downed her Cavalier opponent by winning the best two out of three sets played.

"She was playing a real good kid," says Coach Chory of her young protégé. "She's just not as strong as Negley in strategy or experience. Cindy would make mistakes that the other wouldn't."

Miss Brewer agreed that young Negley perhaps had the advantage over Hatcher in the match. "Pam is a real consistent player," she says. "She has excellent balance and shows good strokes." Cindy herself took the loss in stride. "We're real good friends," she says. "We took tennis classes together last summer so we got to know one another pretty well. I know I didn't love very good."

Regardless of her personal record, Miss Hatcher is eager to see the PA squad reach the finals of the first Eastern District girls' tennis tournament to be May 3 at a site yet to be designated. "We're going to do fantastic," she mutters. "We've got a real good team. Everybody's trying real hard so I hope we do well."

Cindy's youthful enthusiasm has not failed to rub off on her coach, but Miss Chory is realistic about the development yet needed in the program in spite of the early high quality of the competition. The future, she thinks, is bright, but there is still a long road to travel.

"At this stage of the game they already have to have that certain quality to compete," says Coach Chory. "Then with a lot of work and improvement, they'll be good."

Miss Brewer, who coached Cox's girls' basketball team this past winter, obviously agrees with her colleague but stresses the difference in coaching philosophies. "I try to make it a team sport," says the former Old Dominion University player. "It's a different kind of sport. Our people should think of the team and the school first, and themselves second."

The Cox mentor, riding on the crest of her team's 4-0 char, is equally convinced that once the girls' tennis program hits high gear, tennis will enjoy -- if it has not already -- a sort of renaissance in Virginia Beach. "I really think it's going to increase the (tennis) interest in the city," says the coach. "We've had real good crowds at the matches, and I think with the way athletics is headed that things will only get better."

But hassles still occur, as during the crucial PA-Cox match when the Cavalier marching band had taken advantage of the afternoon sunshine to practice for an upcoming event on the parking lot next to the tennis courts.

Sighs Miss Brewer. "You get accustomed to it."

Red Cross cupboards overflow at UCF facility

At the Virginia Beach branch of the American Red Cross, the cupboards aren't bare. They're crammed.

Pearl Mallory, casework supervisor for the Beach Red Cross office, admits that the agency's working space at the Virginia Beach Service Center in the Princess Theatre building on Virginia Beach Boulevard leaves a lot to be desired.

Dozens of books the Red Cross uses for its courses jam the shelves of its cupboards, and film reels for educational programs are slashed under a table.

Mrs. Mallory doesn't mind giving up her desk occasionally to a volunteer who comes in to help out.

But in no uncertain terms, she's looking forward to the day when the United Way Family Center, a $2.1 project which will begin construction this summer, becomes the new operations center for the Red Cross as well as a half dozen other Beach social service agencies.

"It's crowded," she admitted, "but we can manage," although she said the Red Cross would use its resources much more efficiently in a better facility.

The new center, which has been on the drawing boards since 1969, is planned for a five-acre site west of Mt. Trashmore at Southern Boulevard.

The United Community's Fund (UCF) plans to build the center using its capital funds campaign, according to the Beach service center director Gerald Rosenmeier.

Bids are being accepted now, and he reported that they will be opened May 1. Hopefully, he added, the construction will begin in June, and the facility will be completed by 1977.

"The population of Virginia Beach is expanding so rapidly," Rosenmeier explained, "services have not been able to keep up. Suddenly not only the agencies, but the UCF, was faced with the problem."

In 1969 the Virginia Beach Council of Federated Women's Clubs suggested that various agencies work together in an joint facility in which they could share a receptionist, meeting rooms and office equipment rather than setting up their own individual facilities.

Although the construction of such a facility was years away, UCF decided to go ahead with the concept using a network of offices in the Princess Theatre Building, administration-oriented, Rosenmeier said the new United Way Family Center, with its gymnasium and Olympic-sized swimming pool, the first public pool in the Beach, will emphasize family activities.

"It will provide us with all kinds of opportunities we've never had before," he said.

The pool alone will give both the Red Cross and the Young Women's Christian Association (YWCA) a facility for swimming instruction, and it also will be available for use by schools.

"We'll focus scheduling around strengthening family life," Rosenmeier said, from the organizations which concentrate on activities such as the Boys' Club and Girl Scouts to groups such as the Family Service/Travelers Aid and Catholic Family and Children's Service which offer counseling services.

"We're emphasizing to the agencies," he said, "that this is an important direction for them to go. Fifty-four per cent of the population of Virginia Beach is under 25. They are young family groups faced with all the problems that go along with raising young children."

As for the Red Cross, volunteers and workers there will simply be glad to get enough room to do their job - from classes and services to military families and emergency help to those left homeless and without food and clothing following disasters, such as fires.

For example, she noted, "our pre-natal classes are popping at the seams. Our May classes for expectant parents is already filled," she added, and even a shoehorn would not find room for more persons in the small classroom the Red Cross shares with other agencies at the service center.

The Red Cross is also unable to operate a blood program from its present office, Mrs. Mallory said, because there is not enough space to set up equipment and to provide cots for blood donors who might need them.

And with the new family center, daytime classes will be a possibility, she added.

"We can only teach eight classes here," she explained, and in cases where there is public demand, the Red Cross scouts the Beach for whatever facilities are available.

But with an adequate facility, she said, "we could do a better job of it" because educational materials, such as the dummies and stretchers for first aid courses, would not have to be transported from one class location to another.

UCF is presently collecting funds for its capital improvement program. It's goal is $4.5 million for Tidewater facilities, including the Beach center.

Rosenmeier encourages Beach residents to make contributions to the fund, "and I certainly hope they designate it for the Virginia Beach family center," he added.

Contributions can be mailed to UCF through the Virginia Beach Service Center, 3177 Virginia Beach Blvd., Virginia Beach, 23452 or to the United Way Agency Building, 815 Llewellyn Ave., Post Office Box 388, Norfolk 23501.

Susan Taylor, (left), a Princess Anne High School commercial art student, shows her instructor, Jean Doyle, the design which boosted her to the finals of the Viking emblem contest. The red, white and blue emblem features Mars, the Earth and a plant which symbolizes the search for life in outer space, one of the functions of the Viking mission.

Design takes student to NASA finals

An emblem designed by a Virginia Beach student symbolizing the National Aeronautics and Space Administration's (NASA) Viking missions has climbed to the finals in a nationwide contest.

An emblem designed by Susan A. Taylor, a Virginia Beach Vocational Technical Educational Center commercial art student, may be carried by the NASA's Viking spacecraft on its journey to Mars this summer.

NASA selected the best 10 designs submitted by high school students throughout the United States for final consideration. The winner will be announced this month.

Miss Taylor and her sponsoring teacher, Jean J. Doyle, have been invited to an expense-paid Viking Educational Conference at the Kennedy Space Center in August to observe the Viking launch.

The spaceship, which will be used in scientific exploration of Mars, will be the first U.S. spacecraft to land on another planet. It is expected to arrive on Mars on July 4, 1976.

Miss Taylor, a Princess Anne High School student, resides at 941 Rose Marie Ave., Virginia Beach. She plans to work in commercial art when she graduates in June.

Virginia Beach Vo-Tech Center won seven of 10 regional awards in the regional competition for six middle Atlantic states. The contest was sponsored jointly by NASA and the National Science Teachers Association.

Head Start boost

A jump on education

Whether it's helping clean the class aquarium or dabbing bright paints on a paper-covered easel, pre-school youngsters enrolled in Virginia Beach Project Head Start programs are engaging in learning experiences that will give them a jump later on in school.

Faith Nichols, 5, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Daugherty of Aragon Boulevard, flashes a smile as she uses a fishnet to rinse aquarium gravel at St. Aiden's Child Development Center in Kings Grant.

Arts and crafts at the Pleasant Grove Child Development Center in Kempsville occupies Michael Smith, 5, son of Inez Smith of Whitehurst Landing Road, who demonstrates a bold artistic flair with a paintbrush, while Wanda Fentress, 4, daughter of Vandelia Fentress of Whitehurst Landing Road, concentrates on a crayon drawing.

In "Mary, Mary," a Little Theatre comedy production, Fran Peterson and Mary Jagger play an engaged couple waiting for completion of divorce proceedings freeing the would-be groom before they can marry.

Comedy explores marital difficulties

Anybody who's disgusted with their spouse and about ready to dump him or her, faults and all, into divorce court should pick up some tickets to "Mary, Mary" now playing at the Virginia Beach Little Theatre. There's a good chance that, like the couple ready to split up in this play, they might be only a few arguments away from a good relationship. This is an outstanding low-key comedy that does some healthy exploration into the "rape" of understanding that can develop between husband and wife.

The wife in this case, Mary, was one of those freckle-faced tomboys who brags everybody recalls from their childhood. She still can't believe nature has finally turned her into a beautiful woman and resorts to taunts and sarcasm to punish her husband for not giving her the reassurance she needs. Mary is played with credible insight by Linda Green, who is a fine actress but who, unfortunately, lacks a lot of the basic ornerness this role requires.

Fran Peterson - the real-life husband of Linda Green - gives an energetic performance as the husband who analyzes everything, including himself, and who frequently has to ask himself "Am I serious?" or "Am I angry?" in find out if he really is. When trying to win his wife back, he has to list the reasons why they should stay together in A, B, C, and D order. Mary, of course, would rather be took his Cartesian logic and stuffed it.

Ross Gottstein is well cast as the lawyer hoping to reconcile the couple for financial reasons.

Review

Performances for "Mary, Mary," an adult comedy production by the Virginia Beach Little Theatre, are 8:30 p.m. Friday and Saturday. At the Little Theatre, 24th Street and Barbours Drive. Tickets are $3.75 for adults and $2 for students. For reservations, call 428-9323.

One is almost tempted to invite him off the stage for advice on A, T & T or Xerox.

Two others add to a strong supporting cast. Don Hipeman plays a movie-star neighbor hoping to lure away Mary. Weak casting in this role could have seriously damaged the whole performance, but Hipeman is well-suited to this job and gets through it with ease.

Mary Jagger, as Tiffany, the possible second wife for the husband, started off slow in the first act but, in the final scenes, finally got down to some heavy-duty camping around as the slightly whacky character she was supposed to be. With just a little more flash she might give the two stars a run for their money on turning on the audience.

Despite a small audience for the Sunday matinee, the Virginia Beach Little Theatre has definitely got some fine entertainment to offer in this show, and it is easily recommended. Even if you aren't planning to get a divorce.

Z. "Franchise Required; Duration; Exclusivity; Rights of Parties; Renegotiation of Franchise Terms."

A. The City shall grant a franchise for the use of the streets within the City for the construction, operation, and maintenance of a CATV system. No system shall be allowed to occupy or use the streets of the City nor shall any system be allowed to operate without a CATV Franchise. A CATV Franchise may be awarded by ordinance only after the Grantee's legal, financial, technical and other qualifications and the adequacy and feasibility of its construction arrangements have been approved by the City as a part of a full public proceeding affording interested parties due process.

B. 1) The franchise shall be granted for a term of fifteen years; thereafter, after full public hearing(s), and according to the franchise-renewal procedure that follows, the franchise may be renewed for such term as is in the opinion of Council will serve the public interest.

2) Procedure to consider franchise renewal:

a) Thirteen months before expiration of the franchise, a CATV Evaluation Committee whose membership shall consist of members of the community and from City administrative staff shall be appointed by the City Council to review the performance of the franchisee and the content of the CATV Ordinance.

b) After giving public notice, the Committee shall proceed to determine whether the operator has satisfactorily performed his obligations under the franchise. To determine satisfactory performance, the Committee shall look at the technical developments and performance of the system, programming, other services offered, cost of service, and any other particular requirement set in the ordinance such as the availability of programming equipment and personnel to aid access channel users; also, among other measurements, the Committee shall consider the franchisee's annual reports made to the City or the FCC. The participation of the public and of the Grantee shall be permitted during these considerations.

c) A four month period shall be provided to determine the grantee's eligibility for renewal.

d) The Committee shall then prepare within two months any amendments to the Franchise Ordinance that it believes necessary.

e) The Committee shall submit recommendations with regard to (1) renewal of the franchise, (2) changes to the franchise, and (3) amendments to the Franchise Ordinance to City Council for its consideration.

If the City Council finds the Grantee's performance satisfactory, a new franchise may be granted pursuant to the ordinance as amended.

g) In the event the current Grantee is determined by City Council to have performed unsatisfactorily, new applicants may be sought and evaluated by the CATV Evaluation Committee and a franchise awarded by City Council according to CATV franchising procedures adopted by the City Council.

h) In conjunction with the cancellation and/or expiration of the franchise, and independent of any finding made by City Council that the current Grantee's performance has been or has not been satisfactory, City Council reserves the right to make a franchise award to the franchisee following franchising procedures adopted by City Council.

i) No determination of satisfactory performance may be made unless the Grantee has had full notice of the possibility of such findings and a chance to be heard; the determination itself shall be supported by complete written findings of fact. In the event of such a finding, the Grantee shall be compensated in an amount equal to the fair market value of the system as a going concern, determined by arbitration, either through purchase of the system by the City pursuant to Section 17 hereof or by payment to him of that amount by the new Grantee.

C. The franchise, rights, and privileges granted pursuant to this ordinance are not exclusive and nothing in this ordinance shall be construed to prevent a grant by the City of a similar franchise, right, and privileges to other persons or corporations.

D. The right is hereby reserved to the City to adopt, in addition to the provisions contained herein and in existing applicable ordinances, such additional regulations as it shall find necessary in the exercise of its police power, provided, however, that nothing in this provision shall operate to deprive or curtail the rights and privileges of the Grantee as granted by this franchise and provided further that such regulations be pursuant to a Public Hearing to which the Grantee shall be given notice.

E. 1) Scheduled Renegotiation Sessions. The City and the Grantee shall hold scheduled renegotiation sessions within thirty (30) days prior to the third, sixth, ninth, and twelfth anniversary dates of the Grantee obtaining certification for the system from the FCC. All such renegotiation sessions shall be open to the public and shall be announced in a newspaper of general circulation at least five (5) days before each session.

2) Special Renegotiation Sessions. Special renegotiation sessions may be held at any time during the term of the franchise provided that both the City and the Grantee shall mutually agree on the time, the place and the topics to be negotiated. All such renegotiation sessions shall be open to the public and announced in a newspaper of general circulation at least five (5) days before each session.

3) Topics to be Negotiated. The following topics shall be discussed at every scheduled renegotiation session: service rate structures; free or discounted services; application of new technologies; system performance; services provided; programming offered; customer complaints, privacy and human rights; amendments to this ordinance, order, rules, and regulations; and FCC rulings.

Topics, in addition to those listed, may be added if agreed upon by both parties. Members of the general public may add topics either by working through the negotiating parties; or by presenting a petition. If such a petition bears the valid signatures of fifty (50) or more qualified electors of the City, the proposed topic or topics shall be added to the list to be discussed at the renegotiation session.

4) Required Financial Information. At all renegotiation sessions, the Grantee shall provide the annual report for all years completed, containing full cash flow information. Supplemental financial information regarding the operations of the Grantee and the system shall be promptly supplied by the Grantee upon the request of the City.

5) Fact Finding and Arbitration Permitted. Any matter which is disputed during a renegotiation session may be submitted to fact finding or arbitration at the election of one of the parties, as provided in the Section herein entitled "Arbitration."

6) Dispute Over Financial Conditions. Should a dispute arise over whether the financial condition of the Grantee as reported pursuant to this Section is in accord with generally accepted accounting practices and principles as practiced in the CATV industry, then such dispute shall be submitted to fact finding or arbitration as provided in the Section entitled "Arbitration."

The rights reserved to the City with respect to the security fund are in addition to all other rights of the City, whether reserved by this ordinance or authorized by law, and no action, proceeding or exercise of a right with respect to such security fund shall affect any other right the City may have.

14. Foreclosure

Upon the foreclosure or other judicial sale of all or a substantial part of the system or upon the termination of any lease covering all or a substantial part of the system, the Grantee shall notify the City Manager of such sale, and such notification shall be treated as a notification that a change in control of the Grantee has taken place and the provisions of Section 15 of this ordinance, governing the consent of the City to such change in control of the Grantee shall apply. However, any offer or agreement of sale of all or a substantial part of the system, which is made expressly subject to City Council approval of the terms of the franchise, shall not be deemed a "sale" hereunder, unless and until such City Council approval is granted, provided the Grantee or a duly constituted receiver or trustee remains in operational control prior to such City Council approval.

15. Receivership

The City shall have the right to cancel this franchise one hundred and twenty days after the appointment of a receiver or trustee to take over and conduct the business of the Grantee whether by action or proceeding, unless such receiver or trusteeship shall have been vacated prior to the expiration of said one hundred and twenty days, or unless:

1. Within one hundred and twenty days after his election or appointment, such receiver or trustee shall have fully complied with all the provisions of this ordinance and remedied all defaults thereunder; and

2. Such receiver or trustee within said one hundred and twenty days shall have executed an agreement, duly approved by the court having jurisdiction in the premises, whereby such receiver or trustee assumes and agrees to be bound by each and every provision of this ordinance and the franchise granted to the original Grantee. Appointment of a receiver or other transfer of control pursuant to this Section shall be governed by and be in compliance with applicable rules and regulations of the FCC. To the extent that FCC or other approvals are required, Grantee shall assist and cooperate in the obtaining of such approval.

16. Restrictions Against Assignment

No transfer or conveyance or assignment of the franchise, the cable television system, or any part thereof shall be effective without the prior written consent of the City Council, which consent shall not be unreasonably withheld.

B. The consent or approval of the City Council to any assignment, lease, transfer, sublease or mortgage of the franchise granted to the Grantee shall not constitute a waiver or release of the right of the City in and to the streets.

C. The Grantee shall promptly notify the City Manager of any actual or proposed change in or transfer of or acquisition by any other party, of control of the grantee. The word "control" as used herein is not limited to majority stock ownership but includes actual working control in whatever manner exercised. Every change, transfer or acquisition of control of the grantee shall make the franchise subject to cancellation unless and until the City Council shall have consented thereto. For the purpose of determining whether it shall consent to such change, transfer or acquisition of control, the City Council may inquire into the qualifications of the prospective controlling party, and the grantee shall assist the City Council in any such inquiry. If the City Council does schedule a hearing on the proposed change, transfer or acquisition of control, or proposed change and the filing of a petition requesting its consent, it shall be deemed to have consented. In the event that the City Council adopts a resolution denying its consent and such change, transfer or acquisition of control has been effected, the City Council may cancel the franchise unless control of the grantee is restored to its status prior to the change or to a status acceptable to the City Council.

D. The Grantee may mortgage or pledge the grant, system, or any part thereof, for financing purposes, and may engage in the sale of its stock publicly and in accordance with applicable laws. Any mortgage or pledge shall be subordinate to the rights of the City under this ordinance and applicable law, and shall be subject to the prior written consent of Council, whose consent shall not be unreasonably withheld.

17. Cancellation and Expiration

A. The City shall have the right to cancel the franchise if the grantee fails to comply with any material and substantial provision of this ordinance or of the grant of the franchise or any reasonable order or direction or permit issued by any City department or agency pursuant to such material and substantial provision or any rule or regulation promulgated by the City which is reasonable in light of, and consistent with any provision of this ordinance or the franchise; or if the grantee persistently fails to comply with any provision of either, or any reasonable order, direction or permit issued. Cancellation shall be by resolution of the City Council only adopted in accordance with the following procedures:

I. The City Manager shall notify the grantee of the alleged failure or persistent failure of compliance and give the grantee a reasonable opportunity to correct such failure or persistent failure or to present facts and argument in relation to the alleged failure or persistent failure.

II. If the City Manager then concludes that there is a basis for cancellation of the franchise pursuant to paragraph A of this Section, it shall notify the grantee thereof.

III. If within a reasonable time the grantee does not remedy and/or put an end to the alleged failure or persistent failure, or if the City Council after a public hearing by the City Council on notice, may cancel the franchise if it determines that such action is warranted under paragraph A of this Section.

B. If for ten consecutive days, the system or any part thereof, is inoperative, or if the same is inoperative for thirty days out of any consecutive twelve months, the City Council may cancel the franchise.

C. The Grantee shall not be declared in default or be subject to any sanction under any provision of this ordinance or the franchise in any case in which the performance of any such provision is prevented for reasons beyond its control.

D. If all or part of the streets within the City are closed, or discontinued as provided by statute, then the franchise and all rights and privileges hereunder with respect to said streets or any part thereof, so closed or discontinued, shall cease and desert upon the date of the adoption of the ordinance closing and discontinuing such streets and the company shall not be entitled to damages from the City due to the closing or discontinuance of such streets, or for injury to any part of the system in the streets or for the removal or relocation of the same.

E. If the system is taken or condemned pursuant to law, the franchise shall, at the option of the City Council, cease and desert on the date of the vesting title pursuant to such taking or condemnation and any award to the grantee in connection with such taking or condemnation shall not include any relation based on the franchise.

F. Upon cancellation or expiration of the franchise, the City shall have the right to purchase the system in accordance with paragraph G of this Section, and the City Council may direct the Grantee to cease operation of the system. If the City elects to purchase the system, the grantee shall promptly execute all appropriate documents to transfer title to the City, and the grantee shall assign all other contracts, leases, licenses, permits, and any other rights necessary to maintain continuity of service to the public. The grantee shall cooperate with the City, or such agency or person authorized or directed by the City Manager to operate the system for a temporary period in maintaining continuity of service. Nothing herein is intended as a waiver of any other right the City may have.

G. If the franchise:

1. Is cancelled by the City Council by reason of the Grantee's default, the system shall, at the election of the City, become the property of the City at a cost not to exceed 90% of the fair market value of the system as a going concern, including physical assets and intangibles. Such fair market value, if not agreed upon, shall be determined by arbitration as provided in Section 18 of this ordinance.

2. Terminates by expiration of its term, the purchase price to the City of the system shall be its full fair market value as a going concern, including physical assets and intangibles. Such fair market value, if not agreed upon, shall be determined by arbitration as provided in Section 18 of this ordinance.

III. Terminates by the assumption of ownership of the system by the City, the City Council shall make every effort to secure the sale of the system to a person satisfactory to the City. In seeking such a person, the City Council shall advertise for bids and use such other reasonable and practicable means to secure a purchaser as may be available.

18. Arbitration

A. Matters which are expressly arbitrable under the provisions of this ordinance shall be determined by an Arbitration Panel which shall consist of not more than three members to be named by the City Council and the grantee. Where arbitration is expressly authorized by this ordinance, the decision of the Arbitration Panel shall be deemed final and not subject to any claim of action based on such expressly arbitrable matters.

B. If the City Council and grantee agree on a three member panel, the membership shall be one person named by the grantee, one member named by the City Council, with the third member or presiding officer to be named by the grantee's representative and the Council's representative acting jointly. If they fail to agree as to the presiding officer, the presiding officer shall be named in the same manner as provided in paragraph D. of this Section.

C. If the parties choose to name a single member panel, such member shall be named by the grantee and the Council acting jointly.

D. If the parties cannot agree as to the third member of the three member panel as described in paragraph B of this Section or as to the single member panel as provided in paragraph C of this Section, then after ten days notice on motion of either party, the court having jurisdiction of the matter in dispute shall appoint the member necessary to complete the Arbitration Panel.

E. Each party shall bear the expenses of its own representative. The expense of the third representative shall be borne equally by the grantee and the City Council. The expenses of the arbitration shall be borne as determined by the Arbitration Panel in its award or finding, but in no event shall the City be obliged for more than one-half of the expenses.

F. The determination of the single member panel or a majority of a three member panel shall be binding on the parties.

19. Day to Day Regulation

A. The City Manager after affording the Grantee a reasonable opportunity to be heard shall devise, promulgate and administer such reasonable rules, regulations and procedures as may be required to implement the provisions of this ordinance and the franchise ordinance, or any subsequent ordinance, ruling, contract, or agreement adopted or entered into by the City Council with regard to the CATV system. Such rules, regulations, and procedures shall be reasonable and confined to matters pertaining to the day to day enforcement of policies adopted by the Council.

B. In cases where requests for service or adjustments have been ignored or unfilled for other than just cause, the City Manager shall have the power to require the Grantee to provide service in response to all reasonable requests as the City Manager may determine.

C. The Grantee may appeal any decision made pursuant to this section as provided for in Section 22 of this ordinance.

D. Nothing in this section shall be construed to act as a waiver of any other rights or powers the City might have against the Grantee for any of the situations described in paragraphs A-D of this section.

20. Liquidated Damages

A. For non-compliance with any of the foregoing material provisions of this ordinance, there shall be assessed as liquidated damages the following:

i. For failure to submit plans indicating expected dates of installation of various parts of the system as provided for in Section 10-A - $100 per day.

ii. For failure to commence operations in accordance with Section 6-B - $200 per day, or at the discretion of City Council, for each three (3) months delay in commencement of operation of the term of the franchise may be reduced by one (1) year.

iii. For failure to complete construction and installation of the system as provided for in Section 6-C and 6-D - $250 per day, or at the discretion of City Council, for each three (3) months delay in the completion of construction and the installation of the system, the term of the franchise may be reduced by one (1) year.

iv. Failure to provide data of Sections 6-10 and 19-30 per day.

v. For persistent failure to comply with reasonable recommendations of the City Manager relating to rates or services as provided for in Section 19 and such reasonable requests or recommendations as may be made pursuant to authority granted by this ordinance - $50 per day.

vi. For failure to restore the cash deposit as required in Section 13B within the specified thirty days, the entire cash deposit remaining (if any) and the full amount of the operating performance bond shall be forfeited.

B. The Grantee shall not be liable for any failure to meet any and all of the above requirements due to Federal, State or local action, statute or ordinance, act of God, riot or other civil disturbance.

C. The Grantee may appeal any penalty which it considers unreasonable as provided for in Section 22 of this ordinance.

21. Hiring and Employment Practices

The Grantee shall not refuse to hire or employ, nor bar or discharge from employment, nor discriminate against any person in compensation or in terms, conditions, or privileges of employment because of age, race, creed, color, national origin or sex.

22. Appeals

A. In the event the Grantee questions the reasonableness of any order, requirement, decision or other action taken by the City or shall be of the opinion that the City lacks authority to take such action, the Grantee shall be allowed to appeal the order, requirement, decision or other action to the City Council. The notice of objection and request for an appeal shall be made in writing to the City Manager within two weeks of the objectionable order, requirement, decision or other action. The effectiveness of such order, etc., may be stayed by the action of the City Council upon its receipt of the notice of objection, pending the Council's final determination of the appeal. This stay shall not affect any retroactive application of Councils upholding any such order, etc.

23. Sundry Provisions

A. Every direction, notice or order to be served upon the grantee shall be made to its office in the City by the City Manager as established by Section 11A of this ordinance. Every notice served upon the City shall be delivered or sent by registered mail to the Office of the City Manager, Municipal Center, Virginia Beach, Virginia 23456. The delivery or mailing of such notice or order shall be deemed to have been given at the time of delivery.

B. All provisions of this ordinance shall apply to the grantee, its successors, and assigns, as such may be approved by City Council in accordance with this ordinance.

C. The rights granted by this ordinance are subject to all franchises and permits heretofore or hereafter granted by the Council or by the Council of the former City of Virginia Beach to use the streets of the City by other public utility or public service corporation. It is not intended by the grant of this franchise to abridge the exercise of the police power heretofore or hereafter granted to the City by the General Assembly. The grant of this franchise is subject to all ordinances and resolutions of the Council of the City as the same now exist or may be hereafter amended, revised or codified, in the lawful exercise of any other power granted to the City by the General Assembly.

D. Specific mention of the materiality of any of the provisions herein is not intended to be exclusive of any others for the purpose of determining whether any failure of compliance hereunder is material and substantial.

E. If any particular section of this ordinance or the particular application thereof, shall be held invalid, the remaining provisions and their application shall not be affected thereby. Further, if any particular section of this ordinance or provision of the franchise award is determined by the FCC to be improper in any respect, the franchise grantee is hereby prohibited from negotiating changes thereto with the FCC without first obtaining specific approval to do so from the City Council. Where such approval has not been obtained, the City Council requests deferral by the FCC of its Certificate Award process and a return of the matter to the City Council for its review and appropriate action.

F. The grantee, upon its acceptance of this franchise, shall be bound by the provisions of this ordinance and all responses, statements, and information contained in its bid.

G. The Grantee shall conform to any minimum standards adopted by the Virginia Public Telecommunications Council pursuant to Section 15.1-23.1 of the Counties, Cities and Towns Statute (Code of Virginia), especially those referenced in Chapter III of the "Master State Plan for Public Telecommunications" which refer to the jurisdiction of Committees of Educational, Educational, and/or based "Commonwealth Channel's access," except to the extent that such standards are pre-empted by rules, regulations, and policies of the FCC.

H. All new FCC rules that are applicable to each and all of the operations of any franchise granted under the terms of this ordinance, shall be adopted by City Council and made a part of this ordinance within one (1) year of passage by FCC.

24. Landlord-Tenant Relationships

A. In the event of a dispute between the Grantee and the landlord of the premises does not desire service, the tenant may, upon furnishing written permission from the landlord and upon payment of all costs and assumption of liability for future payment of all costs and service, receive service from the grantee.

B. If a tenant does not desire service and the landlord wishes to have an outlet installed in the premises, the landlord may have such outlet or outlets installed in the premises upon the giving of notice to the tenant of the time and place of the actual installation, with all costs to be borne by the landlord.

CAMPERS LOSE BATTLE

RV parking ban approved

By NEAL SIMS
Sun Editor

Owners of boats, campers and other recreational vehicles (RVs) in Virginia Beach must park their RVs either inside or behind their houses after May 14 as a result of a parking ban imposed by City Council Monday.

Council voted 6-5 not to relax a city ordinance which restricts the parking of RVs on public streets or in front of houses, instead making the restrictions a part of the city's Comprehensive Zoning Ordinance.

Twelve spokesmen for RV owners and their opponents once again restated their cases to councilmen Monday. RV owners asked the city to either abolish the restrictions or relax the law to allow for exemptions if sideyard setbacks were less than 10 feet.

Opponents representing some civic groups said that the campers parked in driveways were "eyesores, unsightly and degrading to the appearance of our neighborhoods."

RV owners have sought relief from the ordinance since early February, and the arguments were heard recently as representatives from both sides have gathered regularly at City Hall to make their points before councilmen.

A compromise offering an exemption to residences with sideyard setbacks of less than 10 feet appeared ready for approval last week but Council learned that such an exemption would apply to several residential subdivisions in the city.

City Manager George Hanbury reported Monday that the exemption, in fact, would apply to approximately 23,000 single family dwellings in Virginia Beach, about 50 percent of such residences. With Pungo Councilman Floyd Waterfield absent from the April 7 session, Council's votes on the ordinance both including and without the exemption ended in 5-5 splits.

Monday, however, Lynnhaven Councilman John Griffin - switched his vote from last week and voted against the exemption, citing the numerous residences which would be exempted. Joining Griffin in the majority were John Baum, Dr. J. Henry McCoy, Charles Gardner, Vice-mayor George Ferrell and Robert Gallis.

Voting against the restrictive ordinance were Waterfield, Patrick Standing, Mayor J. Curtis Payne, Dr. Clarence Holland and Robert Cromwell.

Standing also cited the 23,000 residences with sideyard setbacks of less than 10 feet, saying that Council has made it impossible for these people to own RVs and park them at home. Listing dogs, cats, guinea and more RVs, Standing said he was worried that the city was imposing too many restrictions on its citizens.

Sun photos by Rod Mason

Voting for the parking restrictions, Vice-mayor George Ferrell told those who threatened his political career to "send me my condolences now."

Reida Butler of the National Campers and Hikers Associations said the organization's 300 member families in Virginia Beach would take a dim view of councilmen who voted to restrict parking of recreational vehicles.

Smudges, slang out for young authors

"If your poem is smudged with peanut butter and footprints, chances are the reader won't give it a second glance," began Mary Schaller at Holland Elementary School's Creative Writing Workshop.

Forty-one junior authors, grades 3-5, all winners in the school-wide writing contest, jammed the room eager to know more.

The topic was "How to be Published." "Oh, I wish I knew the secret," she said. "All I can tell you are the mechanics that will help your manuscript receive favorable attention."

Mrs. Schaller, PTA library volunteer, who as a teenager had several articles published in "Teen" magazine, was guest speaker. Displaying a neatly typed story, she explained the format: double-spacing; title page; placement of name and address; and page. All of which add a professional air to the student's writing.

"I'm sorry if I sound like your English teacher," she began as she introduced a writer's tools - the dictionary and the thesaurus. She recalled how her spelling was so poor that her first story for "Teen" earned only $15 with the help of the dictionary, her spelling improved enough to reap her $25 for her next story. "The Thesaurus," she explained, "will help you find other ways of saying 'great' and 'groovy'."

Mrs. Schaller suggested avoiding slang in favor of good English, unless the slang was an intrinsic part of the characterization.

Emphasizing the importance of good punctuation, she recalled how she and another judge for the creative writing contest had to decipher a story, because incorrect quotation marks changed the meaning of the sentence.

Displaying "Cricket," "Highlights" and "Jack and Jill" magazines from the school library, she encouraged the students to read them closely to find what kind of writing they will accept. "I can't be discouraged if you get rejection slips back from the magazines. Remember 'Auntie Mame' was rejected 19 times before final publication."

"Learn to write and rewrite," a poll found that most of the junior authors had rewritten their entries two to four times.

Another suggestion she offered was "write and then let it tell for a week or more. You can be more critically objective that way." But meanwhile, she urged, "keep writing, even if it's only a diary. The daily practice in expressing yourself helps your writing grow. Besides, someday you might use your personal observations."

The workshop concluded with students' questions: Do poems always have to rhyme? "No," she said and explained other qualities of poetry besides rhyme.

"What is the best thing to start on?" asked one student.

"Whatever you like best," she responded.

Another student asked, "What is the hardest thing about writing?"

"Getting started," she signed, and a roomful of writers-to-be signed with her. All writers have that in common.

HRSD mounts drive for Atlantic plant

By MARY RODA

Star Staff Writer

Sanitation planners are already making preparations for a flood of sewage that is expected to surge past the capacity of the Little Creek Chesapeake-Eastern River plant by 1978.

One of the first steps, a public hearing on the proposed $82 million Atlantic Treatment Plant (ATP) at Dam Neck, is slated Tuesday at 7 p.m. in the Virginia Beach City Council Chambers.

It all goes well for the Hampton Roads Sanitation District (HRSD), its second Virginia Beach wastewater treatment facility will be completed by 1978 - one year after sanitation planners say the existing Little Creek plant will reach capacity.

Plans are underway to build an $82 million sewage treatment facility at Dam Neck with the capacity to handle 35 million gallons of raw sewage each day. Unless construction begins within the next two years, sanitation planners say new growth in Virginia Beach could come to a grinding halt.

Although HRSD officials are not predicting that Beach residents will find themselves sitting in pools of raw sewage, they warn that without the treatment plant, developers would not be able to hook new subdivisions into the sanitation district's sewer lines, a situation which would stifle new construction and growth.

Without ATP, they add, older residential areas now relying on septic tanks would continue to do just that - at the expense of the Lynnhaven Bay oyster beds and other waterways, which would continue to be polluted by septic tank leeching and overflow of raw sewage at pumping stations which become flooded with rainwater during a storm.

It will mean that smaller sewage treatment plants at Oceana and Dam Neck will continue to pump effluent into tributaries of the Lynnhaven Bay and into Lake Tomsah.

Septic failures cause oyster ban

By NEAL SIMS

Star Editor

Contamination of the Lynnhaven Basin which prompted a ban on oyster and clam harvesting from Lynnhaven waterways is largely a result of failing septic tanks in the area, say Virginia Beach Health Department officials.

Once those sources of pollution are eliminated, officials believe the famous Lynnhaven oysters will appear again on restaurant menus.

Much of the Lynnhaven Basin area would be served by the proposed Atlantic Sewage Treatment Plant, but until it is in operation and additional city sewer lines are installed, septic tanks remain the only answer for nearby residents. The earliest the plant could be operational is 1978.

The city's current five-year Capital Improvements

Program recommends the installation of sewers for an additional 3,500 homes in the Lynnhaven area which, if approved, would mean that approximately 70 per cent of the dwelling units there would be on city sewer lines by 1980. Currently half of the 18,000 dwelling units use septic tanks.

Meanwhile, Virginia Beach City Manager George Hanbury, in a report to Council Monday, recommended a prohibition against septic tank installation in densely populated areas surrounding the Lynnhaven.

Hanbury's proposal was one of five recommendations which he said would allow once again the harvesting of Lynnhaven oysters. He also asked Council to adopt a resolution asking the State Water Control Board for a higher priority on the Atlantic Sewage Treatment Plant. This would be Council's second such formal request.

In addition, Hanbury recommended that the city provide sewers to all homes in the Lynnhaven Basin area, obtain permission from the U.S. Department of the Interior to dredge the Lynnhaven and request passage of laws by the Virginia General Assembly to require boaters to either have waste holding tanks or treat sewage before discharging it into the water.

The State Bureau of Shellfish Sanitation imposed a ban on oyster and clam harvesting from the Lynnhaven in March after the discovery of a high fecal coliform count which is an indication of waste contamination.

Dr. William Crawford, director of the Beach Health Department, said failing septic tanks account for between 50 and 70 per cent of the Lynnhaven's contamination.

Fire unit opens in Kempsville

The fast-growing residential areas of Kempsville have a spanking new $360,000 fire station which will serve nearly 30 subdivisions in the Providence Road area.

The Virginia Beach Fire Department dedicated the new station this week, and is now recruiting a volunteer force to staff the facility at 3456 Providence Road.

Until it has a volunteer force of its own, the station will be manned by volunteers from the Kempsville Fire Station. In addition, three paid firemen will be on duty at the station.

The Providence Road station will cover areas off Providence and Indian River Roads in addition to sections of Kempsville Road south of Centerville Turnpike.

Reports of fires in the area should be made to the Beach's central dispatcher at 486-4444.

Business calls to the new station, including individuals who would like more information on the volunteer program, can be made by dialing 424-5523.

Design of the Providence Road station is similar to that of Oceana facility which the fire department opened in September. Fire trucks will be able to drive through the station rather than backing into the facility from the street.

The station is equipped with two pumps, a salvage truck, an ambulance and a brush truck, and the fire department plans to purchase a ladder truck this summer.

Fire officials estimate that another 20 volunteers will be needed to staff the Providence Road station in addition to 50 volunteers already working from the Kempsville facility.

Rose Hall waits one more week

After 243 years, what's one more week?

Such is the situation for Rose Hall, the historic Virginia Beach building constructed in 1732. The question of Rose Hall's future was left dangling for another week when City Council just ran out of time Monday before hearing a report from City Manager George Hanbury on his negotiations for the purchase of the building and its 35-acre site on Virginia Beach Boulevard.

Hanbury met last week with representatives of Industrial Securities Co., owners of Rose Hall, and was scheduled to report to Council Monday regarding the city's possible purchase of the property. However, other items on the Council's informal meeting agenda ran longer than expected, allowing no time for discussion of Rose Hall during an executive session.

In an effort to insure that Rose Hall is not destroyed, the city is considering either an outright purchase or placing the property under an historical zoning classification which would require owners to obtain prior approval before making changes or improvements on the property.

Hanbury declined to comment on negotiations for the purchase until he reports to councilmen.

Industrial Securities Co. acquired Rose Hall through a loan foreclosure and is reportedly asking around $750,000 as a sale price.

Council held two executive sessions Monday, closed to the public and the press. A morning meeting on the budget lasted approximately one hour. Prior to its afternoon public meeting, Council met in closed session for 14 minutes to discuss a legal matter.

NASA may tackle lake survey

Virginia Beach may call on the National Aeronautics Space Administration to help with a down-to-earth problem: lake pollution.

Preliminary discussions are underway between the city and the space administration (NASA), Virginia Polytechnic Institute (VPI) and Old Dominion University (ODU) to create a water quality management system for 85 lakes of five acres or more in Virginia Beach.

The only drawback to determining the level of lake pollution in Virginia Beach is the cost of testing.

For example, Planner Rhys Kear reported that a series of tests on a single water sample costs $350, and it took 24 samples to evaluate water quality in Lake Joyce, one of the two lakes analyzed in October's lake study.

Similar testing on all city lakes could cost $700,000 based on Lake Joyce's study costs. "There are better ways of doing it," Kear remarked. The "better way" the city is investigating is aerial photography using infrared film to spot masses of pollution from the sky.

Update

On Oct. 24, the Virginia Beach City Council asked the Planning Department to survey the extent of pollution in the city's 85 lakes. This week, Update takes a look at the status of the project, which planners say is in "back gear."

Aerial pictures would be helpful to spot areas of overproduction of chlorophyll in lakes, he added, that is an indication nitrites and phosphates in the water are overproducing grasses and bushes.

The photographs would help the city evaluate the levels of such pollution. Kear said, but then it must determine "whether it is really detrimental. Is that (overproduction of vegetation) bad?"

"To the best of our knowledge," the planner remarked, "it's never been studied." He indicated that there is a possibility Virginia Beach may be able to seek federal grant to study the problem.

Lake pollution is a nagging concern of city officials, Kear said, especially in residential areas which do not have sewers.

"When it rains a lot," he explained, lakes rise and the water table infiltrates septic tank systems. Lake Lynnhaven Bay, where oystering has been banned because of pollution from human wastes, sample water analysis made by the city indicates that some lakes have dangerous levels of fecal coliform.

Councilmen requested a lake pollution study in October, and "with 85 lakes in the city," Kear observed, "it's going to be kind of a massive program."

The city is "still in the talking stages" with experts at ODU, he added, and this week staff members plan to examine water monitoring equipment there.

"It's a very sophisticated proposal," Kear said, which will examine pollution from many different levels, including water samples themselves to determine the effectiveness of wetlands areas as pollution filtering systems.

Summer seekers

Summer beckons, and Virginia Beach residents find it hard to resist the lure of the Atlantic and an inviting hammock of sand on a Sunday afternoon.

And 200 years later...

Virginia Beach's inaugural bicentennial celebration received a hearty welcome from civic leaders and citizens who marked the anniversary "shot heard round the world" Saturday at the Ft. Story officers club. To the left, Congressman William Whitehurst and

Failures

The failures are due to the age and saturation of septic tank systems which allow wastes to seep through the soil, explained Guy Narter of the Health Department. Heavy rains and the resultant run-off aggravate the problem, he said.

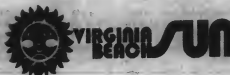

"We had tanks going in where they shouldn't have been," Crawford remarked to councilmen. He said 90 per cent of the new septic tanks installed in Virginia Beach last year were in the Lynnhaven Basin area.

Among others, Councilman Robert Cromwell questioned whether the city has the authority to prohibit installation of septic tanks where city sewer service was not available. Hanbury replied that he felt the city had the authority through its power to "protect the health, safety and welfare of its citizens."

Besides failing septic tanks, Crawford listed sewage bypass, boats and animal contamination as contributors to the Lynnhaven pollution.

Councilman Pat Standing zeroed in on the sewage bypass problem and the need for earlier construction of the Atlantic Treatment Plant. "If we go all belated to install sewers every place and we're bypassing sewage anyway, then we're not solving the problem," he said.

HRSD Administrative Assistant Steve Lindstrom said the planning for the Dam Neck plant is under way despite the fact that the project is not on the State Water Control Board's priority list.

The board did allocate $700,000 to enable HRSD to study the area's sewer needs and prepare an environmental impact statement for the project, which would be eligible for $61.5 million in federal funds from the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) and another $4.1 million in state funding. The remaining $16.4 million would come from HRSD.

Lindstrom said HRSD hopes to convince the State Water Control Board to dip into its $40 million reserve for another $4 million for ATP to pay for "hard design" of the plant.

But the board has set an August deadline for distributing its unspent cushion of federal money, so HRSD is stepping up the pace for its ATP project.

The proposed plant, planned for the foot of Old Dam Neck Road, would be able to accept 35 million gallons of sewage each day. Pipes would carry the treated effluent across the Navy-owned Dam Neck property one and one-half miles into the Atlantic Ocean.

Instead of dumping its sludge in a landfill, Lindstrom said HRSD plans to spend $5 or $6 million to develop ways to recycle the goopy byproduct as an agricultural additive and soil conditioner.

Plans are also underway to find beneficial uses for the effluent, the treated water which Lindstrom said will have 85 per cent of the suspended solids removed after treatment and be further "polished" by finely screened filters.

For example, he said, the water could be injected into deep wells to recharge the groundwater table which is receding in the face of salt water intrusion.

"We're investigating alternative uses," Lindstrom said, including the possibility of making the water available for industrial use at the nearby Oceana West Industrial Park. "Once you've got water that's reasonably clean," he said, "why not hang on to it?"

Using the studies completed by consultant Malcolm Pirnie Engineers, Inc., of White Plains, N.Y., who also maintain offices in Newport News, in addition to extensive water samples made by New Jersey firm, Hydrosience Inc., HRSD has determined that the ATP's effluent will have a "negligible" impact on the Atlantic Ocean.

The consultants took samples from 22 areas off the Virginia Beach coast over a five-month period to determine water flow as well as the existing water quality.

The firm plugged the results into three-dimensional mathematical models of the ocean environment to determine what impact the effluent would have on the ocean's water quality.

Beach linkupers had been concerned that the plant would damage the resort city's attractive beaches and swimming in some way, and they also worried that it would produce noxious odors like HRSD's Elizabeth River plant at Little Creek.

Lindstrom admitted that ATP has had its opponents in the past, but he said he is convinced that public opinion has swung the opposite direction.

"It seems to me that the plant is much more acceptable now in the eyes of the public," he added. He credited the shift in public opinion to improved educational communications as well as advanced sanitation technology.

For example, ATP's odor-producing components will be under wraps, so smelly gases which sometimes invade residential areas of near the existing HRSD plant in Bayside will not be released.

Although Dam Neck has a small population, Lindstrom said, "if there's only one neighbor it could be a problem."

Some critics will also question whether HRSD needs to build a new $5 million gallow plant while its 24,000-gallon facility is presently receiving only 15 million gallons of sewage each day.

Lindstrom explains that the sanitation district is simply fulfilling a federal requirement to plan 20 years ahead.

ATP will serve growing areas of both Virginia Beach and Chesapeake, he said.

The two cities presently have a combined population of 340,000, with 220,000 residents in Virginia Beach and 120,000 in Chesapeake.

By 1980, when the ATP begins operating, HRSD expects Virginia Beach to boast 300,000 residents, while Chesapeake marks its population at 130,000. In 1990, Virginia Beach will have grown to 380,000, and planners predict the city will pass the 400,000 mark by 1995.

Meanwhile, Chesapeake will see its population surge to 170,000 by 1990, and it will grow to the present size of Virginia Beach - 220,000 - by the turn of the century.

Lindstrom scoffs at critics who say the proposed ATP will encourage growth, although he said the system would "certainly make that growth a little less painful. There's a very distinct difference between anticipating growth and encouraging growth."

"We've played catch-up," Lindstrom added, "and we've finally at least approached the crest so we're not looking behind us anymore."

Copies of the preliminary environmental impact report and studies completed by HRSD's consultants are available in the city clerk's office in the Virginia Beach Administration Building and at HRSD's Norfolk office.

Lindstrom urged interested citizens to attend Tuesday's public hearing, and he encouraged them to voice their questions and concerns at the meeting.

Although there will be opportunities for public participation later on in the planning and design process, Lindstrom said Tuesday's session is "the most important one - it's the one where the plan can be altered or changed before the project is set in concrete."

The meeting will include a presentation by ATP's consultants, and sanitation planners will be available for questions from the audience.

Assailant escapes

Virginia Beach police are still seeking Burley E. Uzzle, 30, who reportedly stabbed his former wife Sunday morning on the balcony of the apartment the couple shared before a recent divorce.

Barbara Ann Uzzle, 28, was in fair condition at General Hospital of Virginia Beach following the attack.

Uzzle, who escaped on foot, evaded police roadblocks, and a woodland search near the apartment by police proved fruitless.

The stabbing victim had returned to the apartment earlier that day accompanied by two of her brothers to pick up her belongings.

Pipes delay ramps

Delays in the installation of a water pipe, compounded by wet weather, has pushed the completion of Norfolk-Virginia Beach Expressway's Rosemont Road interchange past December.

Highway officials expected to open Rosemont freeway ramps in May, but project engineers said utility lines which were supposed to be relocated before construction delayed the project several months.

Planner finds job

Charles C. Carrington, former Virginia Beach planning director, began work this week as planning chief in Rockville, Md., a Washington D.C. suburb one-fourth the population of Virginia Beach.

The position carries a $25,142 salary, $2,000 less than Carrington earned annually as Beach planning director.

The planning director submitted his resignation effective April 15 in January, but left the job earlier at the request of City Manager George Hanbury.

Crash kills youth

Funeral services were Monday for a Kellam High School student who died in an early Friday morning automobile crash on Blackwater Road.

William A. Lawrence, 18, son of Harry M. and Dora Sawyer Lawrence, Route 4, Pungo Landing, was killed instantly when the sports car he was riding in careened off the road and struck two trees.

The driver, William A. McKown, 19, of Norfolk, was thrown from the car and died later in Norfolk General Hospital.

Lawrence, is also survived by a sister, a brother and two grandparents.

Frere Jacques sold

Virginia-Florida Capital Corp. has purchased Frere Jacques, a private school which closed down in February after 20 years of operation, at an auction Thursday.

The firm, which took over a $64,000 deed of trust in addition to a $7,000 payment, reported it had no plans to reopen the school.

Earlier the school had been sold to Phillip Wagner, an appraiser for a Norfolk real estate firm, but he could not make payments on the deed of trust.

Parts sale upheld

An auto parts dealer, who had been convicted of selling parts on a Sunday in violation of the Blue Law won an appeal because the prosecutors did not prove the parts were not required for an emergency.

Circuit Court Judge Robert S. Wahn overturned a General District Court decision Thursday against Dickie Wayne Godwin, owner of Malibu Auto Parts.

The judge explained that prosecutors must rule out emergency repairs because emergency service is legal on a Sunday.

Builders to break ground

The Tidewater Builders Association (TBA) will break ground for its 1975 scholarship house 11 a.m. today.

Profits from the sale of the $32,750 house, on Country Place at Green Run, will be donated to the association's scholarship fund. The fund provides scholarships to students in the Hampton Roads area - majoring in fields related to the building industry.

Carroll W. Kennedy and Associates, a Virginia Beach firm, will build the house, a four-bedroom, two-and-one-half bath structure of Dutch colonial design. The kitchen features a beamed ceiling and brick accents.

Virginia Beach Mayor J. Curtis Payne will be guest speaker at the ground breaking ceremony.

The 1975 house, the 10th to be built for the scholarship program, is expected to boost the fund approximately $10,000 to $60,000. TBA eventually hopes to build the scholarship house to $100,000, a level which would enable TBA to generate scholarships through accumulated interest money.

Navy jet crashes

Navy investigators were combing the area near Lynnhaven Parkway Tuesday where a Naval Air Station (NAS) Oceana - based jet fighter crashed just after its two Virginia Beach crewmen bailed out to safety.

The twin-engine A6 Intruder jet fighter plowed into a vacant field Monday night near Plaza Sun-for High School. The crewmen, Mac Paul and Ed Maritis, both assigned with Attack Squadron 42 at Oceana, were found wandering in the area by rescue workers.

Residents in the area reported that they heard popping sounds just before the jet crashed. No cause had been determined for the accident.

Kempsville's Steve Sawyer:

'Loneliness' not part of the sport

By STEVE BORDO
Sun Staff Writer

In individual sports, the "loneliness of the long distance runner" has become something of a cliché. The mind conjures up images of long-legged Jim Ryan stopping endless mile after mile across a barren landscape to keep his body in shape, to keep the muscles from tightening up.

For Kempsville's Steve Sawyer — a lean 135-pound senior — the cliché is a daily reality 11 months out of the year. With the exception of Wednesdays, set aside as dual meet days in the Eastern District, Sawyer and his long distance teammates run 40 miles weekly, 20 of them on weekend jaunts at Seaboard State Park.

"That's how I hurt my leg," says Sawyer, who has been pained with tendonitis since a running accident at the park three weeks ago. "Sometimes it's really hard. You run from early July to June, so you get a month off. By the end of the season you're hurting all over. You get a mild case of shin-splints. 'You just work yourself down to nothing.'"

"That is real important. You can psych someone out and get psyched out yourself real easy. Once you get into shape there's nothing to it."

— Kempsville miler Steve Sawyer

"That is real important," agrees Sawyer. "You can psych someone out and get psyched out yourself real easy." As easy as the physical aspect of the sport? Sawyer shrugs. "Once you get into shape there's nothing to it."

As far as getting discouraged goes, Sawyer makes no allowance for it. "I don't get bored during competition," he says, adding that his single month off each summer is necessary to heal the body, but that he would just as soon be running. "You just run it out. If you really enjoy it you can stand being bored for a month or so."

Coach DeSarro says that the year-around aspect of the sport, however, causes problems to the young athletes. They turn in a bad time and depression sets in. "Then you tell them it's all right to take a few days off, relax. They'll get that confidence back."

Sawyer began his track career in junior high where he ran the 800 and the mile events, spurred on by his brother. "I really didn't start until high school, though," Sawyer says. "What I was running over there was the warm-ups here."

"You have to work with them individually. You can't get them hell. You can't hurt their ego. You try to get the most out of them."

— Kempsville track coach Don DeSarro

Steve Sawyer (right) leads the pack towards the end of the mile run at the 1975 Eastern District indoor meet held at Bayside in February. Sawyer set a district record in the event. He was timed at 4:17.9.

Sawyer has not shown that the work this season has been getting him down, however, since he currently holds the best area times in both the mile and two-mile run, and still has the Eastern District records for the indoor version of both events.

"Around her," he notes with a laugh, "there's no difference because we run our indoor track outside."

"He's self-disciplined, that's what makes the difference," says Sawyer's coach and friend, Don DeSarro. "He's constantly coming down so his object is to hit a 4:06 or a 4:10 mile." DeSarro, who's been coaching Kempsville outdoor track ever since the school opened, notes the dichotomy between the sprinters and long distance runners on a track squad. "They separate themselves," he says. "The distance kid is different. He's not like a football player, not that kind of athlete. The nature of the boy is different. He's more intelligent, generally high up in his class."

For DeSarro, the differences demand an equally different approach to coaching the long distance runner. "I make it a personal thing with them," he says. "You have to work with them individually. You can't give them hell. You can't hurt their ego. You try to get the most out of them." Generally, however, DeSarro believes the long distance runner needs more confidence building and less coaching.

"They know what they're doing," he admits. "They have to know what they can do and when they can do it and when they can do it. To me that's part of the psych ability."

"I think his 9th grade year proved to him that he could do it," says DeSarro, who has taken a close interest in Sawyer's career. "I think we sort of hit it off together. He's got good potential."

With a 2-2 dual meet record, the Chiefs are not burning up the track this season. They're leaving that to Len Greenwood's Bayside squad. But neither Sawyer or Coach DeSarro are too concerned with team performance, as long as the individual's on the squad give their best when it counts: in the city, district and regional meets.

"I'm running in the fastest state in the country this year. We've had so many records broken it's pitiful."

— Kempsville miler Steve Sawyer

"We're not a good dual meet team," admits the coach. His Chief team suffered a March 26 dual meet loss to Bayside by a 92-44 score. "You're scores mean nothing. It's what your individuals do."

"We have some real good individuals," says Sawyer. "We should be strong in the city and district. Bayside is the best dual meet team in the district. Last year in the city tourney we lost to Bayside by one point. So everyone should be up good for that one. You've got to stick together."

Recently Sawyer ran against some of the top competition in the area at the Colonial Relays in Williamsburg. "I got beat real good," says Sawyer, who lost to Ferguson's premier miler Mike Elling-ton. "He's the fastest (scholastic) miler in the country in indoor track." But the Kempsville senior adds that the season has a way to go yet and he'll have many more chances to improve. "I'm trying to get my times down so I can peak in the regionals and the state."

Sawyer has not yet reached that point in his season where Coach DeSarro has had to tell him to take a few days off and relax. When he runs, he says, he shuts everything out and tries simply to beat the clock.

"When I run in a hard race, I usually don't hear anybody. The only guy I hear is the guy calling out the splits," he says. But Sawyer enjoys seeing the crowds at the meets, who come out to see the girl's run, he thinks. The idea of girl's track in general turns him on. "I love it. It's fantastic. We run the girls and boys at the same time and a lot of people come."

Sawyer loves the Virginia Beach area, despite the amount of moving around his family does and the fact they'll probably move again after he graduates. "We've lived in Virginia Beach three different times," he groans. But the surf lures him, and has made an avid surfer out of him and a number of the other distance runners on the Kempsville squad. "You really get a workout," Sawyer says enthusiastically. "The weather could be a little nicer. When you run outdoors, the humidity and heat will slow you down," he says. "In Southern California, 10 per cent humidity is a bad day. People out there sweat when it's the 70s, but you'll get faster times."

Still, the competition in Virginia, Sawyer feels, is the best, and that's all any long distance man could ask for.

"I'm running in the fastest state in the country this year," he says. "We've had so many records broken this year it's pitiful."

"Right now school doesn't interest me a bit," Sawyer adds cheerfully, his eye already on college next fall. "If I get my time down I might get a full scholarship." He is a little disgusted with college track recruiters, though. "Everyone wants to wait till you're through running."

Sawyer has his eye on Virginia Tech, in Blacksburg, because, as he says of its distance from home

"The distance kid is different, he's not like a football player, not that kind of athlete. The nature of the boy is different. He's more intelligent, generally high up in his class."

— Kempsville track coach Don DeSarro

and "the scenery out there is just fantastic." So many Kempsville students attend the school, says Sawyer, that it's known locally as "Kempsville College."

"This year my goal is in the mile. I'm positive it's my best event," he says. "I'm trying for something like a sub-4:12." He adds with a grin, "But I'll take anything under 4:18."

Coach DeSarro has obviously set higher goals for his charge as Sawyer nears the end of his scholastic career on the cinder track.

Says Sawyer, grudgingly but with humor about his coach-friend, "He's learning his stuff..."

Cavaliers take nose-dive

Bayside, Kempsville stay on winning track

'Twas a busy week for Beach baseball squads, though the games played included a number of make-up games from previous rain-outs. Coach Don van Benschoten's Princess Anne side suffered horrendous luck, losing three of their match-ups in a row. Beach fortunes when played against those of the Norfolk pretender were generally on the down-swing.

April 14 saw two games on tap. Van Benschoten's suddenly impotent PA squad dropped a 2-1 decision to Lake Taylor. Junior Billy Capps lost his first start of the season dropping to a 2-1 chart. But both squads committed three errors each in the defensive contest. Capps went the distance, allowing three hits to the victors.

Mauri and Kellam squared off the same day, but Wayne Sykes' squad still seem to be suffering from a lack of pre-season practice due to wet weather. The Knights committed three errors, dropping the game, 4-1. Sophomore Barry McLaughlin got the loss, though Mauri's batters went hitless. The Knights pounced out two hits to no avail.

April 16 saw Ted Phelps' Patriots avenge an early season loss to Cox by upending the Falcons, 6-5. Senior Mike Gurley had to relieve junior ace Jim Lacher in the final inning, but a trio of Falcon errors gave the game to First Colonial. Gurley got the win and goes up 2-1. Brad Bakelaar took his first loss on the season.

Terry Morton's Bayside team still bucking for a district title, stopped Granby in the bottom of the seventh on a walking spree by the Comet pitcher. The Marinas collected nine hits on the afternoon, however, and though both teams also rolled up the errors, Marty Moore got the win, his first on the year.

On Thursday, Cox gave its coach Tom Fisher reason to hope by overwhelming Booker T, 6-1, on the five-hit pitching of senior Barry Noe. Falcon left fielder Donnie Fett got Cox going with a walk that he turned into three steals and a run for the home team. Junior catcher John Koehler pounded out two hits to aid the Falcons in their effort.

Despite a grand slam blast in the opening inning by third baseman Terry Sawyer, Kellam stalled PA the rest of the contest and collected seven hits to beat the Cavaliers, 5-4. On the three-hit pitching of junior ace Jim Henley, Henley, who collected his second win against one loss, gave up but one hit to the starved Cavaliers after the first inning.

Friday was the busy day around the Beach as far as baseball was concerned, and despite threatening clouds and high winds, there were no cancellations in the slate of regular district contests.

At Cox, Ray Barlow's Kempville team feasted on Falcon pitcher Brad Bakelaar for seven runs in three innings to roll to a 7-0 shutout win. The first Chief batter pounded out a double, and things got no better for the Falcons since after that. Kempville's Kevin Smith blasted a two-run homer that cleared the football stadium and put the Chiefs ahead to stay. Senior hurler Bobby Harrison posted his third straight win against no losses in the Chief victory.

Another city pitching ace, Bayside's Moore, also recorded his third win on the young season, allowing just one hit and going the distance as the Marinas bested Mauri, 4-0. Moore fanned 15 batters in the contest, while Bayside sluggers scattered eight hits to pace the win.

The remainder of the three games on tap Friday saw First Colonial, Kellam and Princess Anne all drop decisions to Norfolk schools. Tim Cahill lost his first start as a Kellam hurler, losing to Lake Taylor, 6-5. The Knights committed four errors on route to the loss.

Despite weather, errors

Cox baseball: things seem to be looking up

By STEVE BOND
Sun Staff Writer

Sitting in the coach's dressing room in a musty corner of Cox stadium, Falcons baseball mentor Tom Fisher surveyed the misadventures piling up against his team - now 3-1 overall in 1975 - and pondered why a squad with such excellent potential should be faced with more than its share of "out-rageous fortune."

"In my six years here," he said, "this has been my most frustrating. Right now we're just struggling along. The enthusiasm has kept up, but it seems as though we've been doing nothing very good."

Coach Fisher was contemplating Cox's 10 errors against Kellam two weeks ago - "I was completely disillusioned," he says, adding that only six of the errors were mercifully reported - and to add to his trouble, senior mound ace Bill Hogsted broke his pitching arm last week in a freak skate board accident.

"We're going to get the coach out there to pitch," joked a student team manager.

Coach Fisher did not laugh.

But pitching has not been the real problem on the Cox squad this season. Rather, it has been the inconsistent fielding and streak hitting that has put Falcons hopes temporarily on ice.

With Hogsted out for two weeks in his cast, Fisher can still depend on senior ace Mark Hodges and juniors Brad Bakelaar and Jack Ferrell to stifle enemy plate opposition. Bakelaar, however, was the Friday victim of a visit by Cox Ray Barlow's 1974 district runners-up Kempville. The Chiefs unloaded on the junior hurler in the first three innings, scoring all of their seven runs, two on a two-run home run blast by Kempville's Kevin Smith.

The game ended in a 7-0 two-hit shut out victory for Chief senior pitcher Bobby Harrison, who upped his record to 3-0. The Falcons recorded three errors in the loss.

FISHER

"In my six years here this has been my most frustrating. Right now we're just struggling along. The enthusiasm has kept up, but it seems as though we've been doing nothing very good."

"Pretty good game, wasn't it?" grunted reliever Barry Noe, a left-hander, after the contest. Noe owns the best record on the Cox pitching staff at 2-0, and has been gaining a reputation for winning his own games. The senior hurler blasted a triple against Princess Anne that capped a 9-7 victory for the Falcons two weeks ago, stopping the Cavaliers who were on a three-game winning streak at that point.

"Noe came in relief in that one," says Coach Fisher, noting that the Cox player's most valuable assets have become his game-saving and pinch-hitting. "Four out of his five hits have been pinch hits," says Fisher of Noe, who has five runs-batted-in to his credit.

But besides such early season setbacks, Coach Fisher has a number of bright spots to be thankful for, days of light that include third baseman Mike Bowman - a transfer from First Colonial last year - and senior outfielder Donnie Felt.

"Felt walked, stole second, stole third and then stole home against Bocker T.," Fisher nodded approvingly remembering the 6-1 Cox victory against the Bookers April 17. "Bowman went one for three.

He had no extra base hits, but he had a good day. (Mark) Hodges hit a triple with bases loaded for us, pinch-hitting twice."

But despite the obvious disappointments of the early season, there is no mood of gloom hanging over Cox's dugout.

"I still say that we've got a good team," maintains Noe. "We've been sort of back and forth, but it's been that way all year. Everybody's hitting. We're going to do a good job this year."

Senior second baseman Matt Payne agrees. "We're averaging over six runs a game," he says. "I think we're a real good hitting team. We only had three hits against First Colonial, but they all came at the right time."

The split on the squad is one of rejuvenation, and the name that comes up most often in the discussions is that of Coach Fisher.

"With the kind of coach Mr. Fisher is we can beat anybody," says Payne. "I wouldn't have played for any other coach. I wouldn't have learned as much from anybody else. The things he instilled in us are showing up this year."

"He's just got that way about him," agrees Noe. "He's always told us the main thing is to have a good time. We're not pressured. You're out there to play and have a good time. There's no discussion on the team. It's like everybody's a big family."

A good number of the varsity Cox players have been together in various baseball organizations, either school or summer leagues, for five or six years now. That is the same experience of playing together which has made Kempville such a regional power, and now Cox is looking forward to reaping similar results.

"Everybody on this team played together in Babe Ruth (league)," says Noe. "In the next few years Cox baseball is going to be good. The program is building up nicely."

But for Coach Fisher, who must cope with a top pitcher out for two weeks and the problem of funneling his team's spirit into a winning streak, the season is here and now and he cannot escape it. The first thing Fisher does each morning, he says, is check the weather, a factor he feels has been instrumental in deciding Cox's fortunes in the early season by virtue of a lack of playing time.

But, says Payne, "We come a long way since 1968 grade. The mistakes we've made, we ain't going to make them again."

ODU tennis clinics set

Old Dominion University is sponsoring a series of tennis clinics for women, boys and girls in May and June to be taught at the college's indoor and outdoor courts by former varsity tennis coach Al Talem.

The women's tennis clinic is scheduled for May 5-9, to be during the day from 9:30 to 12:30. The boys' camp is set for June 16-20, from 1 to 4 p.m. all days. On June 23, the girls' clinic commences a five-day period. All girls' clinics will be from 1 to 4 p.m.

Coach Talem, who was ODU's varsity coach from 1960 to 1973 and is a former tennis pro at the Norfolk Yacht and Country Club, will stress fundamentals while in the clinics. Participants will be encouraged to advance as rapidly as their potential allows. The clinic will feature video tape replays, so that players may observe their form and correct mistakes.

Applications for the clinics are available from the Bounty-Rainbow Program office at ODU. For further information, call 489-6291.

Beach's Eubank awarded NCAA scholarship

Virginia Beach's Gray Eubank, a senior student on Old Dominion University's Division II national championship basketball team this past season, has been awarded one of nine

$1,000 scholarships given by the NCAA to senior basketball players around the country. Eubank becomes the first Old Dominion player to receive such an honor.

Eubank, the son of Mr. and Mrs. John W. Eubank of 1413 Alston Drive, will use his $1,000 scholarship to attend veterans school at the University of Georgia. Eubank attended Norfolk Academy and then Virginia Military Institute before transferring to Old Dominion.

A three-year starter for Old Dominion, Eubank averaged 12 points a game as a senior on a team that took a national title in basketball for the Runnin' Monarchs. Eubank kept a 3.55 academic average as well.

Marlins, Knights blitz track opponents

The Eastern District track season, now heading into the home stretch with just a single dual meet date left on the schedule, last week saw Kellam and Bayside continue with their string of district victories by clobering Norfolk rivals Lake Taylor and Booker T. Washington, respectively. Princess Anne, coached by George Vesprille, celebrated with a dual meet win over Cox, but First Colonial was forced to down a bitter pill at the hands of a strong Norview squad, 76-63.

Bayside just keeps rolling along, but last April 16 the Marlins steam-rollered Norfolk opponent Booker T., to the tune of a 111-24 score. Bayside's premier sprinter Jerry Mosley, back from a hamstring pull suffered in February, copped three individual events to pace his squad in the win. Mosley ran a 10.3 second 11 and finished first in the 220 and the long jump. Steve Bisling won the intermediate hurdles with a time of 42.8 seconds. He and Mosley were joined by teammates John Wynn and Mike McConnell in the weight events -- Wynn winning the shot put and McConnell in the discus events -- while sophomore Norman Billups grabbed first place in the high jump with a leap of 5 feet, 10 inches. Clinton Doxey and Mike Harrington tied for first in pole vault. Each cleared the 12 foot mark in their respective jumps.

Kellam jumped all over Lake Taylor by a 99-37 score. Danny Hill and football teammate Mark Delaney dominated the weight events. Hill took the shot put competition -- with a toss of 48 feet, 5 inch Delaney finished first in the discus with a throw of 132 feet, 6 inches.

Knight performer Dave Zorin claimed a school record in the triple jump when he leaped 44 feet, 11 inches. The previous school record of 44-9 had been set by Zorin's teammate Jeff Henry two weeks before.

Henry grabbed first in the intermediate hurdles with a time of 44.7 seconds, then tied teammate Brian Conly for the high jump competition. Both placed with 6-0 efforts.

At Princess Anne, Cox took it on the chin by a 14-point margin, dropping the dual meet to the Cavaliers by a 76-60 score. PA's Ronnie Spolia finished first in the high hurdles and intermediate hurdles to help pace his squad to the win. Sprinter Jesse Williams also won two events for the Cavaliers. The senior runner posted a 23.4 second time in the 220, and his time of 10.4 seconds in the 100 was good enough for a first place win. For the Falcons, Brian Diagnaul won the discus competition with a toss of 114 feet, 10 inches.

First Colonial stayed even with Norview in the running events, but the Pilot's outdistanced the Patriots in the jumping and weight events. Senior Russell Meyer put away the discus event with a throw of 132 feet, 7 inches. First Colonial's 880 relay squad, led by footballers Ron Zollicoffer and Jerry Oberster, won that event with a team effort clocked at 1:52.4. It was the third dual meet loss for the Patriots this season.

Sensibility to measure 'triangle' enforcement of Virginia Beach's new "visibility triangle" at intersections will be tempered with common sense, according to zoning enforcement officer Pat Janacek.

Although some worried property owners called the city's Zoning Administration Bureau to find out if trees, fences and prized azalea bushes would have to come down, Janacek said there were "not as many (calls) as we anticipated."

Most citizens simply want to know what the new law means.

According to planner Rhys Kear, the "visibility triangle" is the area at intersections which must not obstruct the view of approaching motorists.

The "visibility triangle" prohibits obstructions in the space between two and one-half feet and eight feet above ground.

Property owners can calculate the area of the triangle themselves by measuring "legs" of the imaginary triangle for 20 feet in each direction from the intersection and then using a third line to join the legs to create the triangle.

For driveways, legs of the visibility triangle will be only 10 feet.

In most cases, the city owns the first 10 feet of the right-of-way anyway, Janacek reported, lessening the amount of private property affected by the triangle.

Existing structures, such as fences, walls and houses, are not affected by the new requirement, Janacek reported, unless they create a severe traffic hazard.

As for existing shrubbery and trees, the question will be whether they obstruct the motorists' view.

Kear said the law may force some property owners to cut back bushes or to prune low limbs from trees, but he said the new ordinance will be sensibly enforced.

"We see a lot of bushes that have been permitted to grow too high," he predicted, "and people will be asked to trim them back."

Virginia Beach began working on the visibility triangle requirement more than six months ago, but Kear said no particular situation triggered the proposal.

"It's been a problem for a long time," he reported. "People put unbelievable things right up to the corner, such as eight-foot fences," which block motorists' view when they approach an intersection.

The law is not really directed at existing structures, the planner explained, but it will prevent the creation of obstructions in the future.

The visibility triangle will be enforced on a complaint basis, and it also will be applied for to plans and permits for future projects, Kear reported.

Developer files suit to retrieve school site fee

A Northern Virginia development firm has filed suit against the City of Virginia Beach to reclaim $17,000 paid to the city as a school site acquisition fee when the company planned to build a residential condominium development here last year.

At that time, the city asked residential developers either to set aside land for a school site or pay a fee calculated by a formula based on the number of planned units, bedrooms and other criteria. It is not now a part of city policy.

The Yeonac Corp. of Arlington paid a $17,000 fee under protest when it was issued a building permit for the construction of 302 condominium units on a 25-acre site on Locke Lane near the intersection of Kempville and Providence Roads.

Because of delays in beginning construction, the company requested refunds for the building permit and school site acquisition fees. The fee for the building permit was refunded, but their request for the school site fee was denied.

"It's not a matter of money. It's a matter of principle," said Leonard Booth, a Yeonac Corp. official, in a telephone interview with The Sun. "We don't feel the city has a legal right to charge such a fee. It's improper."

The suit was filed in Virginia Beach Circuit Court this week by Joseph J. Lavier, a Beach attorney representing Yeonac Corp.

Star gazer

A project which took a close look at the stars and planets won a first place cup for Richard Rossi, a 7th grader, at Saint Matthews School science fair at the school, 3316 Sandra Lane, Virginia Beach, Thursday and Friday.

Appeal expected

Attorneys representing Long Creek property owners say they plan to appeal a $12,154 judgment handed down in Virginia Beach Circuit Court suit Friday against the city which originally asked for $3 million.

Owners claim that dredging of the Long Creek Canal along their property triggered extensive shoreline erosion.

The suit asked for the city to pay for repairs to the shoreline and to reimburse 12 property owners for the alleged decrease in property values caused by the erosion.

The group was represented by Fine, Fine, Legum and Fine, a Beach law firm, and Norfolk attorney Harry McCoy helped defend the city attorney's office defense Virginia Beach in Garmon vs. Virginia Beach.

McCoy argued that property owners had not purchased their property before 1965 when the Army Corps of Engineering dredged the waterway for boating, and he also contended that some of the homeowners' property doubled in value despite the erosion problem.

A jury deliberated four hours before it ruled that 10 property owners should receive a total of $12,154, while claims of two other citizens were rejected.

ON APRIL 28th AND 29th MORE THAN 200 COMPANIES MAY LOSE THE RIGHT TO KEEP THEIR CUSTOMERS INFORMED!

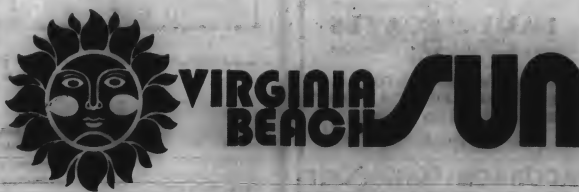

When the State Corporation Commission of Virginia holds its hearings on April 28 and 29...some 23 telephone companies, 30 sewer companies, 16 gas companies, 8 electric companies and 15 electric co-operatives may be affected by the ultimate decision. Whether or not these companies will have the right to advertise will be the ultimate outcome of the hearings. When advertising expenses represent only a minute portion of any utility's operations, do you think it fair for the SCC to decide to keep YOU—the customer—ignorant of company policies and innovations that can be made known to you through advertising? If it is decided that utility advertising should cease, then how—for example—will utilities be able to inform you of the following:

- What times are most economical for long distance phone calls?
- How can water companies help you conserve water?
- How can you get maximum efficiency from your gas furnace?

Is this FAIR? Is this FAIR to YOU—as a consumer? Restricting a company's right to advertise is tantamount to restricting their freedom of the press. If you—as a consumer—do not want to lose the right to know—through advertising—vote now to keep the privilege of public utility advertising. Don't let the SCC become a Super Board of Directors for every utility company in the state of Virginia. Vote now!

For Jimmi Bonavita, snake collecting isn't just a hobby, it's a passion.

The 22-year-old Virginia Beach police patrolman literally lives with his snakes, nearly 100 of them, in well-to-wall cages in the bedroom of his two-bedroom apartment.

Fortunately, he adds with a grin, a friend raises mice for a hobby, and it only costs him about $60 a month to keep his reptiles well fed.

Occasionally, he'll supplement the diet of his boa constrictors with young chickens - live.

But Bonavita is more than a collector. He's something of a snake scholar, and eventually he hopes to open his snake collection, which he believes may be the second largest in Virginia, to public exhibit.

His collection includes nearly every snake that can be found on the East Coast, along with his prize pair of African Rock Pythons, which the Beach patrolman hopes will breed this spring.

He has boa constrictors from South America as well as specimens from Southeast Asia and a cobra from India, along with a smattering of snakes from the western United States.

Bonavita, who can trace his interest in reptiles back to the age of 3, says he learned to read by poring through books about snakes. He has an extensive library on the subject now, including the first book on reptiles he ever owned.

Why is he so interested in snakes that he devotes a healthy chunk of his paycheck to their support, as well as the several hours a day it takes to keep his collection in good shape?

"People ask me this all the time," the young patrolman admitted. "I love snakes' uniqueness."

Snakes in Bonavita's collection display a wide variety of colors and patterns, and he admits that he's fascinated by their olfactory sense, a combination of taste and smell which the snake uses to identify objects using raw nerves at the roof of its mouth.

"Snakes are very misunderstood," he explained, and most persons have an irrational fear of the slinky creatures.

It's for this reason that Bonavita asked The Sun not to reveal the location of his townhouse - and his reptile collection. He admits he's worried what the neighbors would say, although his snake-keeping is all perfectly legal.

"I've always been a nonconformist," the patrolman said, so the bad public image of snakes attracted him to the reptiles even more. "Everybody said don't touch, but they couldn't give me a reason."

Now, he added, "I'm definitely an authority on it, but I really don't know a drop in the bucket."

Many people are afraid of snakes, afraid that they'll be bitten or poisoned, but Bonavita explained that the reptiles are very passive and will usually only attack to defend themselves.

In fact, he added, most snake bites are what experts call "illegitimate," caused when a snake is threatened by a person handling it.

Bonavita, who has a large selection of venomous snakes, including a deadly cobra, also has a healthy respect for them - and a supply of serum in the refrigerator.

He explained that he tries not to handle his snakes. When he's cleaning their cages, he takes them out of the cage using a long stick with a hook on the end and carefully drops them into a flour sack.

Although he's never been bitten by a poisonous snake, "I've come as close as you can come," Bonavita admitted.

The patrolman also has an appreciation of snakes' usefulness, especially to farmers.

"If we didn't have reptiles," he explained, "we'd be waist-deep in rodents." A cat might catch a dozen mice or rats in a year, he said, but a snake consumes hundreds of rodents and has the advantage that it can raid underground nests.

One of the snake's biggest enemies, Bonavita added, is the automobile. "People hit them on purpose, and it drives me up the wall. It's pure hatred (of snakes) and it's unfounded."

But word about the snake's beneficial qualities is circulating, he added, and some farmers now ask snake collectors to take only the poisonous specimens because the others are needed.

Bonavita, who gives lectures to schools and organizations on his snake collection, said the reptiles are a curiosity for many people, but he's proud of the way his snakes thrive in captivity.

Snakes are temperamental, he explained, and frequently won't eat unless their living conditions are right.

To provide the best climate for his collection, Bonavita keeps the temperature and humidity of his bedroom constant, and each snake cage is equipped with its own warming light.

"If a snake is shy and likes to hide, the patrolman will add a hollowed-out log to the cage."

"But you'll never see me walking around with a snake around my neck," he asserted. "I feel more for the snake than that."

The mobile education unit, which will supplement classroom programs, has a domed projection area for studying satellites in the night sky.

Trans-Science 1 will open its doors to the public during its stop at Kempsville Elementary, but a seating schedule had not been announced in time for publication. For information, call the school at 497-1563.

"Stuart Little" is scheduled for the 50-minute film program immediately following the puppet show.

Wanted, Volunteers.

Today's Army is an Army of volunteers. The many people who are in the Army are in it because it's a good place to be in.
Partly because of the benefits. A monthly starting salary of $344 (before deductions). With a raise to $383 in just four months. Plus free housing and meals, free medical and dental care, free job training. 30 days paid vacation a year.
Partly, too, because of the personal challenge. The discipline. The mental and physical demands. The early rising, hard days, and late nights.
In the Army, we don't have time clocks. And in the Army, you don't get paid overtime. Satisfying is a full-time job.
We don't require prior experience. But we do require high standards. And if you meet them, you're the kind of volunteer we want. The kind your Country needs.

HAMPTON ROADS FORECAST

Beach holds lead as fastest-growing city

RICHMOND - Virginia Beach is expected to hold its place as the fastest-growing city in the Hampton Roads area, according to population projections just released from the Division of State Planning and Community Affairs.

According to the state projections, which will be revised again in 1977, Virginia Beach's population of 220,000 is expected to grow to 242,000 in the next five years.

In 1985, the Beach's projected population of 270,000 will trail Norfolk by only 1,000 residents, and during the five-year span to 1990, the Beach population is expected to surge to 299,500 residents, making it the largest city in Hampton Roads.

During the next five years, the projections forecast that the Beach will experience a 3.3 per cent annual increase in growth, slightly less than the years between 1970 and 1972, when Virginia Beach population swelled by 4.2 per cent each year.

In comparison, the combined annual growth rate of Norfolk, Portsmouth, Chesapeake, Suffolk and Virginia Beach is predicted to be 1.1 per cent through 1980, resulting in a total population then of 785,400 for those cities.

That growth rate is slightly less than 1.3 per cent the Virginia economic researchers forecast for the entire state, which is expected to grow from 4,765,000 in 1972 to 5,295,400 in 1980.

By the year 2000, Virginia Beach may grow to 350,000, according to the projections.

Virginia Beach's growth rate, following a trend throughout Virginia near the turn of the century, is expected to gradually decrease to an annual rate of 1.4 per cent between 1995 and 2000.

The state planning division reported that it weighs the relationship between population and employment to plot future growth patterns, in addition to an analysis of recent population patterns.

However, the planners warned that the projections "like other population projections, are characterized by differing degrees of reliability."

For example, the five-year prediction is probably more likely to be accurate than the long-range forecast, which would make 1980 projections more reliable than the projections for the year 2000.

In addition, researchers said the projections for individual cities such as Virginia Beach are less reliable than projections covering the state of Virginia and entire planning districts which encompass several cities.

Task force monitors Lynnhaven pollution

A task force appointed by Virginia Beach City Manager George Hanbury is taking daily pollution readings and using infrared photographs taken from a helicopter to determine exact sources of pollution to the Lynnhaven River Basin. The project is aimed at cleaning up enough of the contamination to allow once again the harvesting of Lynnhaven oysters and clams.

Hanbury reported to City Council Monday night that the task force, made up of employees from the city's Engineering, Health and Utilities Departments, has been making periodic tests in various locations within the basin since April 22 in an effort to pinpoint exact sources of pollution.

Health Department officials said last week that the contamination was largely a result of failing septic tanks in the area. At that time, Hanbury recommended several steps to Council including a ban on septic tank installations in densely-populated areas surrounding the Lynnhaven.

Hanbury predicted that the testing will locate the "densely populated" areas where a septic tank ban should be enforced. He said he will report on the tests by May 12.

The famous Lynnhaven oysters and clams have not been harvested from the basin's waters since March when the State Bureau of Shellfish Sanitation placed a ban on the Lynnhaven after discovering a high local coliform count which is an indication of waste contamination.

Hanbury also had recommended that the city push for a higher priority on the proposed Atlantic Sewer Treatment Plant and obtain permission from the U.S. Department of Interior to dredge the Lynnhaven.

Council acted on both those requests Monday night, passing resolutions to that effect. It was the second such resolution concerning a higher priority for the sewer treatment plant.

Regarding the plant, Councilman Dr. J. Henry McCoy remarked, "We're not getting anywhere with the Water Control Board. Let's take it to the governor."

Beach Mayor S. Curtis Payne later told The Sun that a delegation was attempting to set up a meeting with Gov. Mills Godwin within the next few weeks.

In other business Monday, Council:

• Set a public hearing for 2 p.m. May 12 on the city's proposed budget; and

• Appropriated $86,643 as the city's share of the Tidewater Transportation Commission's capital improvements program, including the purchase of additional buses.

Prior to its public meeting, Council met for 24 minutes in executive session, closed to the public and the press, to discuss what the agenda listed as "legal, real estate and personnel" matters. After its public session, Council met in a second closed session for 10 minutes to discuss the proposed tax rate ordinance.

Councilmen shut door on insistent Norfolk newsman

Saying he "respectfully disagreed" with a recent opinion of Virginia Atty. Gen. Andrew Miller, Virginia Beach City Atty. J. Dale Bimson advised City Council Monday night that it was within its rights to meet in closed session to discuss a proposed appropriations ordinance for setting tax rates.

Bimson gave his opinion after a Norfolk newspaper reporter refused to leave a scheduled closed meeting of Council.

Garland Bradshaw, a reporter for the Ledger-Star, presented Bimson and Beach Mayor J. Curtis Payne with copies of an April 21 opinion of the attorney general regarding a different case which said there is "no authority for executive or closed meetings to discuss a school board budget" regarding "overall salary levels of public employees."

Bradshaw contended that the tax rate ordinance was an important part of discussions on the city's proposed budget and the deliberations were required to be in public.

When Bradshaw refused to leave the meeting, Payne first threatened to have him evicted by police then changed his mind saying he did not want to create a sensation. The mayor said he planned to "complain strongly" to Bradshaw's supervisors at Norfolk newspapers about his conduct.

The reporter told waiting councilmen that he was acting without the authority of his newspaper and his "neck was stuck out as far as it could be."

Council continued discussion of items on its informal meeting agenda and then adjourned into executive session after Bradshaw agreed to leave when Payne promised there would be no discussion of the proposed budget.

"You may win the battle and lose the war," Vice-mayor George Ferrell told Bradshaw. "Don't call me for any more information."

At the close of its public meeting, Bimson gave his opinion that the tax rate ordinance had a legal and binding effect and was therefore among the exemptions to the Virginia Freedom of Information Act as a "legal matter." Council then reconvened in a second closed meeting to discuss the ordinance which Bradshaw did not challenge.

Badge theft dries up TCC suds

Students at Tidewater Community College's (TCC) Virginia Beach campus with a taste for a beer will have to look off-campus to quench their thirst at least for the time being.

Students who enjoy elbow-bending with associates have been forced to move beer parties off campus in the wake of a beer social last month which resulted in a suspension of beer drinking on the Virginia Beach campus grounds.

But administrators indicate that the beer ban may be lifted if they are convinced that a few rowdy party-goers who disrupted the last on-campus social March 14 will mend their ways.

The word "suspended" was used, not "terminated," reported Felix Zeisburg, student activities director who worked to convince the TCC administration to permit the students to serve beer at socials last year.

The suspension resulted after individuals "who appeared to be a little under the weather" lifted the insignia from the hat of Virginia Beach Patrolman Paul Weingarth, also a TCC student.

Weingarth had left his police hat in Zeisburg's office when it was taken, and Dr. Joe Buchanan, TCC dean of student services, reported that "there appeared to be some connection between the beer and removal of the badge."

Students have appealed to the thieves to return the badge, an act which they believe may convince administrators to reopen taps for beer socials.

Before the March social, TCC students had enjoyed beer at five parties on the Camp Pendleton campus and two more on the Green Run campus without major incidents, but cases of student misconduct were reported during parties this winter.

Council foes in the dugout

Lynnhaven won the rain-shortened game in Princess Anne Park 7-0. The Senators' pitcher George White faced only 13 batters in the four inning contest, striking out 12 and walking one. That presents a pleasant problem for Coach Griffin -- what to do when his other pitchers return from vacation.

Sun photos by Neal Sims

Zeisburg, who initiated the beer socials to build rapport with other students and faculty members, blamed part of the problem on the small student lounge where the parties were held.

"We were bursting at the seams," he reported. "We had planned to move our dancing off-campus anyway."

Zeisburg said social advisors carefully monitored parties, including checks of identifications to make sure students were old enough to drink beer.

Weingarth, who was later reprimanded by the Police Department for losing the insignia on his hat, had volunteered to check IDs for the March 14 social.

Zeisburg said he is optimistic that the administration will lift the suspension on beer at TCC socials, especially following off-campus activities such as the April 18 bi-centennial dance where beer was served without incident.

Seniors seek tax break

Almost twice the number of senior citizens applied for property tax exemptions in Virginia Beach this year than last year, according to the city's financial assistance office. An increase in the income ceiling from $4,000 to $6,000 under which senior citizens could be eligible for the exemption attracted the additional applicants.

"Response almost doubled this year," reported Jackie Bloom, social eligibility worker who said the office has processed approximately 200 applications compared to 100 last year.

In previous years, senior citizens were eligible for reduced property tax reductions if they made less than $4,000 a year, but the city increased the limit to $6,000 so more elderly citizens could qualify.

Today is the deadline for applying for the property tax relief, Mrs. Bloom said, "and so far the response has been very good."

Seniors with an income less than $6,000 and fewer than $20,000 in total financial resources qualified for the real estate property tax exemptions if they were 65 years or older and had been city residents for at least two years.

The real estate tax adjustments are based on a sliding scale. For example, a senior citizen with an income of $6,000 would receive a 20 per cent discount, while applicants making less than $2,000 annually would pay no tax.

Last year 130 senior citizens who applied for the program saved $4,740 in tax payments.

News Briefs

Voters to register

Voters who haven't bothered to make a trip to the polls during the last four years may find that they're among 17,153 Virginia Beach voters who have been purged from the list of registered voters. Citizens who lost their eligibility will not be permitted to vote in the June 10 Democratic primary unless they re-register before May 10, according to the registrar of voters.

The general registrar at Princess Anne Court-house will remain open from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. May 10, a Saturday, to assist last-minute applicants.

In January, the State Board of Elections purged the list of registered voters of names of persons who had not voted in the last four years.

Residents who are not sure if they are registered can check the purge list at the office of the clerk of the Circuit Court or they can call the general registrar's office.

The registrar advised voters uncertain of their eligibility to check the purge list before attempting to re-register because voters who register twice are automatically removed from the list of registered voters.

Hours revised

New window hours will begin at all Virginia Beach post offices Monday.

Postmaster Joseph T. Crosswhite said the postal service decided to revise hours to 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday through Friday following a survey of Beach residents.

The study included a breakdown of window transactions each hour of the day, which showed that business was heavier toward the end of the day. Post office windows presently close at 4 p.m.

The new hours will affect all post offices, except for those on military bases, Crosswhite reported.

In addition, the city's main office at 24th Street and Atlantic Avenue will continue to accept applications for passports from 8 a.m. to 3 p.m. weekdays.

Republicans meet

Del. George McMath, chairman of the Republican Party of Virginia, and Lt. Gov. John Dalton will be the Virginia Federation of Republican Women conference Friday and Saturday in Virginia Beach.

The group will meet at the Mariner Motor Inn at 58th Street and Atlantic Avenue.

McMath will be the keynote speaker for Friday's session, and Rep. G. William Whitehurst (R-Virginia Beach) will speak at the Friday evening banquet.

Saturday's session will feature Mrs. Norman C. Armistead, president of the National Federation of Republican Women.

Open house slated

The Ocean Park Volunteer Fire Department will take to the sky Sunday in a demonstration of its new 75-foot aerial ladder truck.

The open house, including refreshments, will be 1 to 6 p.m. at the station at Shore Drive and Stratford.

The $140,000 truck, partially financed by a $100,000 interest-free loan from the City of Virginia Beach, will enable firemen to reach buildings up to 7 1/2 stories high.

Ocean Park volunteers serve an area along the Chesapeake Bay including several high-rise, multi-storied condominiums.

A.R.E. slates class

A class in general semantics exploring effective communications techniques will begin Thursday at the Association for Research and Enlightenment Library, 67th Street and Atlantic Avenue, Virginia Beach.

Fee for the series of five weekly lectures, conducted by Dr. Gina Cornelia, will be $20. Individuals may sit in on a single session for $4.

The classes will be 7:30 to 10 p.m. Thursday evenings in the mini-auditorium of the library.

Topics included in the course, which ends May 29, are: "How Language Affects Others and Ourselves," "How Prejudice, Gossip and Misunderstandings Arise Because of our Misuse of Language," "How to Protect Ourselves Against Criticism," "How to Keep Poised in Arguments" and "How to Disagree Without Being Disagreeable."

Ft. Story housing draws Beach critics

By MARY RODA
Sun Staff Writer

Opponents of 600 proposed Navy housing units at Ft. Story tacitly the meat of a draft environmental statement for the project and questioned whether the Navy has explored all alternatives, including use of land in Virginia Beach's Green Run area.

Although the Army has rejected a proposed land swap for 160 acres of Ft. Story oceanfront property for an 83-acre Green Run residential site, Navy officials told Beach residents at an April 23 public hearing that construction of Navy housing at Green Run is still a possibility.

However, officials and planners from the Navy's Atlantic Division explained that they still will not decide which alternative to follow until a final environmental impact statement on the Ft. Story site is made.

The draft version of the environmental impact report left several questions unanswered, including the configuration of four and five-bedroom townhouse units.

The Navy originally proposed to wrap the housing around existing Army housing on 81 acres near the base's Atlantic Avenue gate, but research for the environmental impact statement convinced the Navy that part of the original site should be preserved for ecological reasons, according to Lt. John Collins, the Atlantic Division's environmental program officer.

Now the Navy proposes to place the bulk of its housing on 55 acres of the original site, while construction of the remaining 26 acres of housing will be spread among four other sites at Ft. Story. During the hearing Councilman Patrick Standing, a planner, remarked, "You could throw a dart and you couldn't hit a worse spot for housing" than the proposed site.

"You could throw a dart and you couldn't hit a worse spot for housing."

- Patrick Standing
Councilman

He suggested that if any housing is located at Ft. Story, which many citizens feel should be set aside as an historical landmark and recreational area, it should be placed at another location, possibly the base's old landing strip.

Some critics, including representatives of the City of Virginia Beach and the Tidewater Association of Builders, questioned whether additional Navy housing is needed while the private housing industry is in a slump.

Robert Warren, a planner with the Atlantic Division's Naval Facilities Engineering Command, said the Navy expects its manpower to grow from 80,000 to 90,000 in the next six years in the Tidewater area.

More than half of the Navy personnel are married, he reported, and presently 2,000 Navy families are involuntarily separated because there is a shortage of housing they can afford.

However, Active Beach Planning Director Robert Scott said the Navy has failed to prove the need for additional housing.

He charged that the Navy has "exaggerated its housing needs and underestimated the ability of the Navy family to financially compete in the private market."

Navy surveys themselves show a surplus of 288 three- and four-bedroom units for enlisted personnel, while another 857 three- and four-bedroom units are available for military officers.

Even if the housing is needed, Scott said, "we do not believe the Navy has adequately addressed the issue of alternative sites" or the possibility of increasing the Navy's housing allowance for military families so they can afford private housing.

Harbert L. Kramer, president of the Tidewater Association of Builders, said the environmental impact statement was not a real effort to tackle problems of the proposed Ft. Story housing.

He said the Tidewater area has a surplus of large four and five-bedroom houses which the Navy could lease for military families at less cost than building new housing.

Kramer also complained that federal construction projects are exempt from a myriad of fees, such as sewer and water taps and school site fees, which private developers must pay.

Citizen groups, including Ft. Story's Future and the North Virginia Beach Improvement League, also protested the housing development at Ft. Story.

Robert Goodman Jr., representing Ft. Story's Future, questioned whether the Navy was sincerely interested in the community's opinions about the proposed housing or whether the public hearing was held merely to comply with the law.

"Are you really going to consider what we want?" He asked a panel of Navy officers and planners. "Why aren't you exploring alternatives full-speed? Green Run is not the only alternative. Why aren't you trying to avoid doing something that is terrible for this community?"

Goodman said the environmental impact report never even considers the possibility of reserving Ft. Story and the historic Cape Henry area as a recreational site or park.

Peter Agelasto, representing the North Virginia Beach Improvement League, said, "I hope this hearing is the final demolition derby to housing in Ft. Story."

"Certainly the evidence shows that services are lacking," he said, referring to water, sewers, roads and schools, "and you gentlemen don't even know how much it will cost."

(Navy officials said they had not determined which alternatives they would use for sewers and water, but they estimated that the projects would cost about $3.3 million.)

Agelasto said the General Accounting Office (GAO) may declare Ft. Story surplus property, but he added that "the miracle of the GAO study may be a big zero for us" because the Navy would probably be first in line asking to use the property for its housing.

The study and the uncertain future of the Army base cropped up several times during the hearing.

Dr. Albert Wood of 172 Pinewood Road, reported that he drove through the base "and I did not see a soul. I'm not convinced that the Army needs it. The land ought to be turned back to the citizens of the commonwealth."

(During World War II, the federal government took part of the existing Army base from Virginia for national defense reasons.)

"This place is getting too darn crowded," Wood added. "I'm beginning to feel like the Indians when the settlers came."

Dr. Clarke Russ of 2229 Windward Shore Drive, said the proposed housing project is poorly located because of its distance from shopping areas and Navy facilities and also because Cape Henry is historically important.

"The present collection of government buildings is a shabby contrast" to historical sites in New England and in other areas, Russ remarked.

Instead of building more housing at Ft. Story, which already has 100 Army housing units, Russ urged the Navy to raise the housing allowance of servicemen "so they can live in dignity and comfort in our community."

Although he did not question the need for Navy housing, Jack Jennings, 612 Queensboro Crescent, said, "There's got to be a better place than Ft. Story."

Jennings, who said his family has lived in Virginia Beach for generations, added, "We haven't left it because we like it, and we like it because we like the water. But it's gotten so lately you can't even get to the beach to enjoy it. We've been eagerly awaiting the day when the Army would be pulling out of Ft. Story" so the area could be used for recreation.

Bob Richards, 4613 Player Lane, said he thought the Navy should not try to "separate military families from the rest of us with Cyclone fences and guards. I don't want to see another Navy ghetto in this area. I like military people in my church, my PTA, civic league and scout troops."

If housing is needed, Richards urged Navy officials to scatter units throughout the community. Two persons spoke in favor of the proposed Ft. Story housing, including Capt. Joseph Crawford Jr. (ret), representing the Retired Officers Association.

He questioned the sincerity of the Navy housing opponents because they did not speak against the sand storage at Ft. Story which resulted in some environmental damage.

"What puzzles me most," he said, "was where were these people that had such great concern for the birds, bees and trees of Ft. Story" during public hearings on the sand dredging?

(Ft. Story is presently holding stockpiled sand from dredging of the Thimble Shoals shipping lanes. The sand is being used to replenish the city's beaches.)

"I hope this hearing is the final demolition derby to housing in Ft. Story."

- Peter Agelasto,
North Virginia Beach Improvement League

Crawford said Navy families are faced with paying "10 times rental for housing during the summer or get out," and he remarked that the proposed Green Run land swap, trading 83 acres for 160 at Ft. Story "puts the great train robbery to shame."

He also observed that private builders have recently constructed 2,479 condominium units within seven miles of Ft. Story, while another 13,978 housing units have received building permits in Virginia Beach in the last three years, "and practically none of these is within the price range of the lower-rated blue jacket."

The Navy said it will make a final decision on the location of 600 units of Naval housing when the final environmental impact statement is developed.

The document will include all written comments received by the Commander, Atlantic Division Naval Facilities Engineering Command, Norfolk, 23511, Attention: Code 20 A, before May 12.

Ocean borough? Tomorrow taps imagination

Creating a new Virginia Beach borough extending three miles into the Atlantic Ocean may seem far-fetched, but it is a goal at least one member of the Tomorrow Committee feels is worth shooting for.

Under the coaching of Syracuse University urban specialist Warren Zeigler, more than 70 committee members attending the day-long Monday session put their imaginations to work on paper outlining goals they would like Virginia Beach to reach by 1990.

Zeigler urged participants in the workshop-style meeting to adopt a creative outlook and not let negative factors such as practicality, feasibility, probability, politics or cost block the way.

"Those are constraints which we place on imagination before we state our goals," Zeigler explained, and as a result "we never come to grips with the problem - what it is that we really want to bring about."

The urban specialist's exercise in goal-setting, which he described as one ingredient in determining policy, resulted in some traditional ideas, such as pollution control and an expanding tax base, to the suggestion that Virginia Beach create a new borough.

The new borough is not as outlandish an idea as it may seem on the surface, although the scheme brought a few laughs from committee members. The originator explained that an eighth borough would enable the city to govern future offshore oil wells.

Other goals set by committee members included development of a coastal land management policy, increasing tourism, construction of a convention and cultural center, increasing the Beach's non-government payroll and building more diversified housing for the elderly.

Committee members would also like to see Virginia Beach high school graduates emerge from the education process with job entry skills, while one participant opted for a mass data banking system which could save on the city's current land zoning inventory at the push of a button.

To reach goals, Zeigler told committee members that they would have to actively intervene to change the course of the future events.

"I'm not going to invent the future of this city," he said at the beginning of the meeting. "That's what you're going to do."

However, the specialist noted that most people don't think they can shape the future. "When push comes to shove," he remarked, "most people would say they really didn't have much impact on the future or even on their own lives." At the same time, Zeigler said, "there is a tremendous dissatisfaction among nearly all people, a really serious dissatisfaction with the quality of their lives that's really difficult to put a handle on. They've got their refrigerators, air conditioners and stereos, but something's a little bit wrong."

People have lost confidence in their ability to change their lives, Zeigler said, "but if anything is to be done about it, it has to be done by the citizen."

Americans must "re-learn civic competency, we have to relearn what it means to be a citizen in society," he added. "We have to relearn and discover competency to take hold of our lives, to take it and make it what you want it to be."

Before committee members drew up goals for the future, Zeigler led them through an exercise pinpointing some of the Beach's problems.

The list included lack of community services including sewers, water, drainage, schools and highways, increasing crime, inadequate coordination of human services and the high mobility of the city's population.

The work session was designed to teach committee members how to arrive at goals by examining problems and deciding what they would like to see changed in the next 15 years.

Virginia Beach Tomorrow, a city-sponsored citizens' committee made up of hand-selected Beach policy-makers, will meet monthly through December to draw up urban policy for Virginia Beach through the 1990s. The program is conducted by the Brookings Institution, a Washington, D.C., research firm.

Get to know the man behind the badge in your neighborhood and you'll probably find that he's a lot like you. He's a husband, a father, a taxpayer and a fellow human being who shares most of your concerns, dreams and ambitions. He's also a man with a tough job. He's a cop. He's working for all of us. Protecting us and our loved ones. Protecting our property and enforcing our laws and helping to assure us of living in a safe neighborhood, a wholesome and strong community we can be proud of. But to be truly effective, he needs our help. Our cooperation and our friendship.

In years past, police walked their "beats", got to know their fellow citizens, and in many cases, built lasting and important friendships. Times changed and the world of computers and high-speed radio patrol cars interrupted the direct personal contact we had with our police officers. But times are changing again. All across the nation, policemen are beginning to get back into the community. People are responding. A friendly cooperation is developing, lowering crime and building better and safer neighborhoods. People are learning about the man behind the badge and finding that he is truly one of us.

Unbeaten Kellam, Bayside set to clash today for city track title

By STEVE BIONDO
Sun Staff Writer

For Bayside and Kellam track coaches Len Greenwood and Roy Ammons, history often repeats itself.

The end of another regular season dual meet outdoor track schedule is drawing near, and so is the showdown: Bayside has slid its way through its opponents - 17 in a row over the past two years - without a loss, and the Knights are unbeaten, too.

"Till next week," said Coach Ammons pessimistically, Thursday-knocking on wood.

Ammons and Greenwood have had their friendly battle going for years now, and if the truth be known, the Marlin mentor with his apparently ceaseless wealth of track talent is winning the conflict dual meet-wise.

And today the two city track powers will lock horns once again, on the Kellam track.

"I think the first year I was here we lost just one, to Bayside," reflects Ammons. "Then we went unbeaten for two years. We won all of them except the Bayside meet last year, and Bayside beat us in indoor (track) in the dual meet this year." So the grudge match has been building to an inevitable climax once again this season, and the outcome will be decided only after the final starter's gun goes off.

For Coach Ammons, it may be now or never. "We knew we had a good group of boys to work with," says Ammons, "and we felt like we would have right much success and we knew we'd be undefeated."

Ammons, who has been coaching scholastic track in Virginia Beach longer than any coach now active with the single exception of Bayside's Greenwood-states Kellam's case matter of factly. "We've always had good teams here," he says. "Most of my kids have been with me now since the 8th or 9th grade."

But Ammons has seen changes in city track domination over the past few years, and despite Kellam's and Bayside's consistency, it was not always so. "A few years ago First Colonial seemed to dominate," the Knight coach muses, "and you can still never take them lightly. Kenny Barlo has done a real fine job over there."

Ammons, who began his coaching career in Virginia Beach in 1962, has seen a number of fine athletes come and go, and he certainly has his share of them this year. But even with a squad that's recorded a 5-0 chart in dual meets in 1975, Greenwood's Marlins loom on the horizon even stronger.

"We don't have a good boy in every event," he says. "The real leader who's going to score a lot of points. Greenwood's got two or three good boys in each event."

But the athletes that Ammons does have this year are at their peak and chances are he would not trade them for anything. "They all know what they have to do, they all pitch in and help," Ammons says, quickly shaking off any praise for his coaching. "They're all jumping 6 feet or better, so there's no need for me to go over there if they're jumping like that."

Those whom Ammons sometimes refers to as "his crew" include junior Margo Dixon, who had a banner year for the Knights on the football field last year at his halfback spot. "We consider him our star," says the Kellam mentor, noting that Dixon recently snapped a long-standing Kellam record in the 220 with a time of 22.1 seconds. He also bested Bayside sprinter Jerry Mosley's best time this year in the 440 of 50.6 seconds by better than two-tenths of a second.

In addition, Kellam was high jumpers Pete Hangan and Bruce Conley - Conley recently went 6 feet, 4 inches in that event-and David Zorin in the triple jump. Zorin made the best leap recorded in the area so far in 1975 in his event, a 44 foot, 11 inch effort.

Rounding out the jumpers is Jeff Henry, whom Ammons describes as "one of the top jumpers in the district." The coach has another top district performer in hurdler Kirk Harrington.

And besides 240-pound Danny Hill - who is the team's shot put man - and discus man Mark Delaney, Ammons has two excellent athletes in Alvin Holley and Ronald Foreman. "Foreman is in his first year out for track," commented Ammons on the man who beeps up the Knights' relay and long-distance threats. "Holley has been a real surprise for us this year. He tied the school record in the 100."

Ammons' assistant, Paul Ferris, generally handles the Knight runners while Ammons specializes in the field events and manages to keep an eye on the overall team welfare. Still, despite the experience he's gained in recent years, the talent has been increasing at Kellam, says the coach, while Bayside just seems to get stronger and stronger.

"This year I don't feel I have the rapport, the closeness, I feel I should have with them," Ammons confides. "That's very important to me. These days, it's a lot harder to sell your program. If you don't get 'em in the 8th or 9th grade you may as well forget it."

"The track kid is a different type of kid. You've got your football players, killer instinct and all that, but a track boy is different, more of an individual. You've got to have that dedication. You come out here, you've got to burn, baby, you've got to burn."

Coach Ammons has put together a simple formula to beat his Bayside rival, Coach Greenwood, today. "The 220, the 440, we have got to win these races," he emphasizes. "Greenwood will come in 1-2-3 in the mile, and probably 1-2 in pole vault so we've got to win where we have the talent."

"It ought to be an exciting meet," adds Ammons, his eye on a halfway goal that may come within reach this afternoon. He ends with on a wry note: "I hope I'll be in as good a mood then."

Kellam track coach Roy Ammons reflects on the Knight's track season so far in 1975. Ammons has never had a losing season in his eight years at Kellam.

Princess Anne basketball coach Leo Anthony is organizing his 7th annual Virginia Beach basketball camp Aug. 4-8 at the Star of the Sea Recreation Center 15th Street and Pacific Avenue.

Anthony, who is co-director of the camp with Bayside's Conrad Parker and First Colonial's Alton Hill, has contacted a number of top-notch area basketball names to assist in the five-day clinic. Players contacted include Moe Howard and Brad Davis of the University of Maryland; Oliver Purnell of Old Dominion; and Monarch assistant basketball coach Charlie Woolm; Skip Brown of Wake Forest; Charlie Carr of Elizabeth City State, chosen most valuable player in the CIAA last season; and Steeler Swift of the San Antonio Spurs.

The camp is open to all boys from the age of 8 to those in their senior year in high school. High school graduates are not eligible to attend.

Anthony's camp has each day's workout divided into three sessions: elementary, junior high and senior high. The elementary session, for 3rd grade through 7th grade students, will last from 8:30 to 11:30 a.m. The junior high session, for students in 8th and 9th grades, will last from 2:30 to 4:30 p.m. each day. Senior high students will attend in the evenings from 7 to 9 p.m.

Cost of the camp is $25 per session, with a $15 deposit required. For additional information, contact Coach Anthony at 466-4268 or 425-8767, or Coach Parker at 464-4557.

Phelps still needs pitching to round out Patriot nine

It's been a long season - so far - for First Colonial baseball coach Ted Phelps. His Patriot squad is looking at the short end of a 2-3 district record right now, though the team is 5-5 overall.

Friday, despite the run-scoring antics of Billy "Stump" Carson, who hit a home run and accounted for another FC run, First Colonial lost a 7-2 match-up with a hot Kempsville team.

"We were psychologically down for the game," says Phelps, noting that senior Carl McDonald, his starting shortstop and ace hitter, was gone for the weekend on a tour of Appalachian State. McDonald, who occasionally helps out on the mound, is currently hitting .460.

"We've lost two games that we should not have lost this year," continues Phelps. "I was playing a lot of boys to see who'd play where." The Patriot coach still was not convinced that his team was outclassed by Kempsville.

"We weren't ready to play that game," he admits, noting that an impending storm in the fifth inning nearly cancelled the game. "I was waiting for that rain. If it had come 30 minutes earlier... But then when the kids start thinking about rain you know their heads are in the wrong place."

"Personally, we kind of hurt ourselves." The Patriots committed three errors in the district loss to the unbeaten (9-0) Chiefs. But, says Phelps, the real causes lie in the early season. "I've been disappointed with the results, not with the boys, they've worked hard," he says. "In the early season we weren't getting the breaks. And we took Granby too lightly."

Still, Patriot hitting has been improving. Besides McDonald, Steve Chin, George Sadowski and Wayne Shipps are all hitting well above the .300 mark. And Carson, a senior third baseman, has been coming through with a few unexpected grandstand plays, like homer off Kempsville's Scott O'Hara Friday.

"I enjoy watching him," Phelps says. "Billy's been hitting the ball real well the last three games. (Against Kempsville) I was trying to get him to stall a few pitches, but he just got his pitch and he went for it. He's got a good baseball head on him."

For Phelps, the job his squad has to do is clearly defined. "We're going to have to improve," he says. "We can wind up 7-3 if we want to but we're going to have to get our pitching together. That's what high school ball is about. You can't keep putting a man on and putting a man on..."

As for Kempsville, the First Colonial mentor just shakes his head. "Somebody has got to stop them. They have some real talent."

The Patriots have five more district games on tap, and says Phelps, "all of them are key games." But with Ray Barlow's Chief squad knocking off the opposition like Murder, Inc., it may be that what the other Beach teams do for the remainder of the baseball season won't really matter much.

And went

The Danes came...

The Danes came with much fanfare last week, meeting with Wayne Boyd's squad of Virginians and escaping the state with a 5-5 match split, leaving behind a number of confused and frustrated Beach wrestlers and an equal number of confused fans.

The event between the Virginia grapplers and the Danish Junior Olympic wrestling team at Cox High School April 22 saw six Virginia Beach grapplers team against Danish opponents, three losing their bouts. All three losses by Beach wrestlers were matches wrestled in the Greco-Roman style.

The Danish squad, coached by Finn Mathiesen -- who also refereed all the Greco-Roman matches -- had announced the day before the meet that half of the 10 bouts would be in the Greco-Roman style. Greco-Roman wrestling penalizes a wrestler for take-downs scored by grabbing below the waist, a move traditional in American freestyle.

In addition, because of the Danish refusal to participate in an honorary weigh-in until after the mid-day meal, one of the Virginia team's strongest performers -- 1975 Eastern District and regional champion Freeman Gregg of First Colonial -- was disqualified for being above the eight-pound limit.

Beach wrestlers, however, coped well with the multitudes of problems and still managed to win three of their bouts.

In the opening match-up, First Colonial's Mike Taylor was not so lucky. Taylor was forced to wrestle in the Greco-Roman style, and his Danish opponent, 15-year-old Tommy Pederson, pinned him at 3:40 into their bout.

At 123-pounds, Princess Anne's Terry Kretz -- the district 119-pound champ last season -- successfully coped with the Greco-Roman style and won a 14-2 major decision over Denmark's Jan Sahner. Kretz's Cavalier teammate, Jimmy Rogers, scored an impressive freestyle victory over Carsten Hansen. Rogers pinned the Danish 154-pounder with a little over two minutes remaining in the match.

Cox's Graham Hudgins had a difficult time restraining himself in his 143-pound match. He lost an 8-5 decision to Lars Carlsen after being penalized several times for take-downs illegal in the Greco-Roman style.

Kempsville's Butch Kitchen had even worse luck than Hudgins. The Chief 143-pounder was pinned by Denmark's Henrik Jensen at 3:10 into their Greco-Roman match.

Kellam's Carl Brusio lived the evening for Beach grappling enthusiasts -- who paid $2.50 a head to see the show -- by adjusting his aggressive style to the Greco-Roman upper-body mode and winning a 4-2 decision over Lars Birk in the 165-pound class.

All in all, though stuck with performing in an awkward wrestling style alien to their instincts, Beach grapplers made a good showing in the event, sponsored by the American International Physical Fitness and Wrestling Club.

The frustrations in wrestling with European guests was perhaps summed up by Western Branch's Wendell Hardy, who though he won his 123-pound bout over Denmark's Mike de Brettville, fumed at the seemingly incomprehensible Danish scoring method. "How come they get all the damn say-so all the damn time? They should've had two refs."

Michael Kitchen, 6, watches enraptured as his older brother Butch wrestles on the mats during the Virginia-Danish grappling meet April 22 at Cox. Michael's older brother was pinned by his Danish opponent, Henrik Jensen, at 3:10 into their 143-pound bout. Michael is the son of Mr. and Mrs. George Kitchen, Jr., of 5104 Locke Lane.

Over First Colonial, Norvlew

Marlins, Knights keep streak going

Bayside and Kellam — coached respectively by Les Greenwood and Roy Annan — just seem to keep rolling along the track circuit, picking up wins wherever they tread. April 23 the Marlins had a relatively easy time with First Colonial, dropping the Patriots by a 40-44 score, while Kellam stepped all over previously-unbeaten Norvlew, 59-47.

Today, the two Beach track powers will collide to determine the city dual meet champion as the Knights host Bayside on their home track.

In the Norvlew meet, junior speedster Margo Dixon paced the Knights with double wins in the 220 and 440, grabbing a school record time of 1.1 seconds in the former event, then going 50.4 seconds in the 440. Dixon was equalled by teammates Mike Harrington — who went 15.2 seconds in the high hurdles — and Alvin Holley, who sprinted to a 10 second flat time in the 100. Dave Zorin recorded a 21 foot, 4 inch leap in the long jump. Teammate Brian Cooley won the 880 for the Knights by posting a 2:06 time.

Meanwhile, Bayside got record-setting performances from sprinter Rene Blasing and pole vaulter Greg Harrington en route to a 90-45 victory over First Colonial. Blasing grabbed a first place finish in the high hurdles by stopping at the clock at 14.5 seconds. Harrington valued 13 feet in his record-setting event, breaking his old mark of 12 feet, 4 inches that had been the previous best mark in the area this season.

Other Marlins' bright spots was long-distance man Alan Bufon's victory in the 880 as well as a 6 foot high jump mark set by sophomore Norman Billups. Sprinter Jerry Mosley took the 220 with a time of 23.1 seconds.

For the Patriots, sprinter Ron Zollicoffer set a school record with a 9.9 time in the 100. Zollicoffer also shined in the triple jump, which he won with a leap of 42 feet, 3 inches. Junior Jerry Onalizer and senior Russell Meyer were strong in the weight for FC. Onalizer took the shot competition with a heave of 51 feet, 1 inch. Meyer was the top thrower for the Patriots by tossing the plate 139 feet, 9 inches. Senior Tracy Moon rounded out the top finished for the Patriots by sprinting to a 52 second time in the 440, good enough for first.

In another top-sided meet, Cox put it to Booker T, 105-31, on the strength of a four-event sweep by Herman Brockett. Brockett won the triple, high and long jumps and crossed the line first in the 880 relay event to pace the Falcons in their win over the Bookers. Senior Derek Canas sprinted to a 10.3 second time in the 100 and also took first in the 200. Junior Chris Reich posted a 16.3 second time in winning the high hurdles, while teammate Eddie Bourdon won in the intermediate hurdles.

Seniors Mike Crabtree and Steve Sawyer each won two events to take Kempville to a narrow 69 1/2 to 65 1/2 dual meet win over Maury April 23. Sawyer, the Chiefs' premier long distance man, won both the mile and two-mile events. He posted a time of 9:44.2 in the latter, shaving nearly ten seconds off his previous best-in-area time of 9:57. Crabtree took the long and high jumps, and teammate Chris Trager won the discus throw with a toss recorded at 151 feet, 7 inches. Mike Sanderson equaled Trager's and Sawyer's new area records with a triple jump measured at 45 feet, 2 inches.

On Thursday, George Vespri's Princess Anne track team dropped Norvlew rival Grassy for a 95-41 track loss. Heading the list of Cavalier performers was Ronnie Spells, who topped the high and intermediate hurdle events for his team. Spells was clocked at 15 seconds flat in the former event, posting a 44.2 second time in the intermediate event. Cavalier sprinter Jesse Williams set the best time recorded in scholastic track in the 100 yard dash. Williams was timed at 9.6 seconds. Teammate Doug Long, a junior, earned first place in the triple jump with an effort of 43 feet.

ter end of the Marlins relay squad, was timed at 1:30.8 to take first in the event. Unbeaten Bayside won the meet, 90-46.

Beach athletes honored at ODU

Four Virginia Beach athletes — one man and three women — attending Old Dominion University received numerous honors at the school's annual athletic banquet April 23 in the Web Center dining hall.

Also receiving awards were Juanita Elberidge — a graduate of First Colonial High School — who played on the ODU's women's cage team last as a senior and was awarded the most outstanding women athlete award by the ODU alumni association.

All-State pick, Elberidge scored 15.8 points a game for ODU last season. Deborah Payne, of North Landing Road, was presented with a most valuable player award for her efforts on the ODU girls' field hockey squad last fall.

McClough, who registered a 3.6 academic average this year, averaged 15 points a game for the Monarchs' girls' basketball team. She is a physical education major. Eubank, who played three years on the ODU varsity cage

Chiefs blitzing their way to district title

In Beach baseball action, powerful Kempville continued to blitz past Eastern District opponents with the ease, including a big 3-0 shutout win over closest rival Bayside April 23. The Chiefs have been steamrolling all opposition this year and boast a perfect 9-0 overall mark going into the stretch of the district season.

Kempville opened the week April 22 with a 15-3 walloping of Maury on a Bobby Harrison's third homer of the season and a four-hit pitching performance by Scott O'Hara, who goes up 4-0 on the year. The team is posting the win. The next day, Ray Barlow's team stopped Terry Morton's defending district champs Bayside, 3-0, on another premier performance by the senior hurler Harrison, who matched teammate O'Hara's perfect mound record with the three-hit effort. Harrison also slugged his way around the bases, registering a home run, a single and a triple in the win over Marlins ace Marty Moore, who matched his team's district record at 2-2.

Against First Colonial Friday, the Chiefs jumped on Patriot starter Mike Curley for six runs in the first two innings to claim a 7-2 victory over slumping FC. O'Hara again turned in a brilliant game for the Chiefs, allowing just three hits -- one a round-tripper by FC's Billy Carson -- to post his fifth win of the year. Chief Kevin Smith added a two-run homer to put the game beyond the Patriots' grasp. Cox tied Phelps' team goes down to 5-5 overall, 2-3 in the conference.

The Patriots had better luck April 22 against Lake Taylor when Jim Lackey grabbed a win his first pitching start of the season, 5-2, over the Titans. Junior shortstop Carl McDonald paced the FC hitting by recording three runs-batted-in. The Patriots took advantage of four Titan errors in gaining the victory.

Except for the shutout loss to the Chiefs, Bayside had a good week with wins over Booker T. Friday and Princess Anne April 23. In the latter match-up Mike Rhodes batted a home run and gave up just two hits to the Cavaliers as the Marlins won a 12-2 decision over PA. Rhodes improved his pitching record with the win, one which saw Bayside record 13 hits and the Cavaliers, seven errors.

Against Booker T. Friday, Coach Morton's team pounded the Bookers with nine hits and scored seven runs to best the Norfolk squad, 7-3. Rhodes again posted the win, making his record 4-2, though Booker T. managed eight hits. Marty Moore and Steve Pruitt helped Rhodes out in the sixth inning with a little relief but the senior rightlander preserved the win.

Cox and Kellam found the past week rewarding as both Beach squads recorded two wins on the season. April 23, Kellam topped Princess Anne by a narrow 4-3 score despite a run-scoring single by PA junior Dave Anderson that sparked a Cavalier rally in the bottom of the seventh inning. But junior Kevin Cobb saved the day for the Knights, upping his mound record to 1-1. Friday, it was Knight ace Jim Henley who saved the day, taking a 3-1 personal record with Kellam's 6-3 victory over Grassy. The Knights scattered six hits en route to the district win behind the timing of Gene Elfrid and pitcher Cobb.

Cox clubbed Norfolk Catholic April 23, 13-7, gaining a dozen hits and taking advantage of six Crusader errors. Falcon pitcher Brad Bakelaar recorded his first mound win, after relieving teammate Jack Ferrell in the fourth inning. The Falcons are still having trouble controlling their errors -- they committed four -- but a last four-bagger by third baseman Mike Bowman helped ease the sting of the mistakes.

Friday, Cox ace Barry Noe claimed his third straight ground win as the Falcons stopped Lake Taylor, 4-3. Coach Tom Fisher's team scored all its runs in the final stanza -- sparked by second baseman Matt Payne's single -- on seven hits to take the district victory. Cox is 5-3 overall.

Handicapped olympics Saturday

Better than 1,200 mentally handicapped children from throughout Virginia will be participating in the 1975 Tidewater Special Olympics this Saturday at Ft. Bastin's Murphy Field.

The annual event, founded and organized nationally by the Joseph P. Kennedy Jr. Foundation, will feature athletic competition for mentally handicapped youngsters in track and field, swimming, gymnastics, basketball, volleyball, bowling, wheelchair events and other sports.

Competitors in the olympics are divided into separate levels according to age -- the minimum age for participants is 8 -- and athletic ability.

The event will also include various sports clinics to be conducted by both professional and amateur athletes.

Winners in the regionals will advance to competition in the Virginia state special olympics, scheduled for May 30 in Norfolk's Foreman Field.

Randle set to speak

University of Virginia head football coach Sonny Randle will be the featured speaker at the annual Virginia Student Aid Foundation smoker to be May 7 at the Lake Wright Motel on North Hampton Boulevard.

Along with Coach Randle will be Virginia's wrestling coach, George Edwards. A cocktail hour will be offered beginning at 6 p.m., and the program is scheduled to start at 7:30. The event is open to the public. Beer and snacks will be free of charge but a cash bar will be available.

Hanbury to study Rose Hall investment

By NEAL SIMS
Sun Editor

Concerned about the $735,000 asking price for Rose Hall, Virginia Beach City Council asked City Manager George Hanbury to report on ways the city could recover its investment before deciding whether to purchase the historic 245-year-old building and its 35-acre site.

Hanbury recommended Monday night that Council take an "entrepreneurial approach" and purchase Rose Hall for $735,000. He said he would turn the property over to the city's Economic Development Department to run as a business.

Council voted 7-4 to authorize Hanbury to research the possibilities and report back his findings. Councilmen Robert Crumwell, George Ferrell, John Griffin and Floyd Waterfield dissented, citing an excessive expenditure during troublesome economic times.

Rose Hall, which was placed on the Virginia Landmarks Register last week, is on a prime commercial site fronting on Virginia Beach Boulevard near Princess Anne Plaza Shopping Center. Historical groups fear that the building will be destroyed for more commercial development unless the city purchases the site or places it under the Historical and Cultural Zoning District.

The historical zoning, which prohibits changes on the site without prior approval from the city's Historical Review Board, is opposed by Rose Hall owners, Industrial Security Co., who say such action would adversely affect the price of the property.

Several councilmen believe that to impose the historical zoning over the objections of the owners would lead to a court case. Hanbury will study, among other alternatives, operating Rose Hall as a tourist attraction with craft shops and other businesses which could potentially get the city its money back.

A spokesman for Industrial Security Co. said the purchase price of $735,000 is less than the $750,000 investment it holds in Rose Hall. He said the property was valued at more than $1.2 million.

If the city decides to buy Rose Hall, Hanbury said the purchase price would be paid with four year bonds after a down payment of $250,000.

He also told councilmen that it would not be feasible to move the structure from its site. To do so would cost $400,000, he reported, and would leave us with an old building "remodeled in 1975."

Beach slates bid opening for oceanfront restroom

Virginia Beach will open bids for its first public oceanfront restroom Tuesday.

The city apparently is going ahead with plans to build the restroom at the foot of 24th Street despite threats of legal action to block the project.

If all goes well, Virginia Beach General Services Director Orin Lambert said construction of the facility could begin in May.

Once the contract is signed with the city, the contractor will have 90 days to complete the work on the facility. Bids are usually forwarded to City Council before a final agreement is signed, which means that the councilmen may approve the bids at their May 12 meeting.

An unnamed group of restroom opponents represented by Virginia Beach attorney Leigh Ansell has asked the city to consider alternatives to the project including purchase of a vacant gasoline station at 24th Street and Atlantic Avenue.

The opponents claim that building a pedestrian mall and restroom at the foot of 24th Street constitutes improper use of a public street.

Ansell, who could not be reached for comment, told The Sun in an interview earlier this month that he planned to ask for an injunction to block the project if the city decided to go ahead with construction.

The city estimates that the price tag for the restroom will be approximately $143,000. The facility would resemble a grassy mound topped by a patio, overlooking a pedestrian mall with benches, water fountains and a community bulletin board.

Youth unit to begin summer job effort

Competition for summer employment may be stiffer this year, but the Mayor's Youth Council is ready to give students a helping hand while they're job hunting through its Dialing-for-Jobs Campaign.

The program begins Thursday with the opening of the Virginia Employment Commission (VEC) summer office, 19th Street and Arctic Avenue.

Students interested in summer positions, most of which are generated by the tourist industry, can register between Thursday and May 15 by calling 422-3030. After May 15 applicants will be required to apply in person.

Willis Duffield, administrative aide to the Virginia Beach mayor, is supervising Dialing-for-Jobs for the Mayor's Youth Council.

The program placed 754 students in summer jobs last year, and Mrs. Duffield said she anticipates that approximately the same number of jobs will be available this year, but due to the economy students may find themselves competing with adults for available employment.

The program also asks employers offering summer jobs suitable for students 14 years or older to contact the VEC's summer office.

1,300 Scouts pitch tents at Ft. Story camporee

Digging a rain trench for their tent is part of the fun for Webelos cubs in Virginia Beach Pack 424 at a Boy Scout Camporee this weekend at Ft. Story. Tim Morton, 11, son of Mr. and Mrs. Willie Morton, Aragona Circle, is busy with a shovel, while Chuck Long, 10, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas E. Long, Olive Grove Lane, uses his hands to get the job done. The boys were among 1,300 at the camporee, the largest ever held by the Tidewater Council of Boy Scouts. Pack 424's camping skills paid off when the boys carried home the top award for their district.

Repertoire II tries stock theatre approach

By MARY RODA
Sun Staff Writer

A Virginia Beach theatre outfit is going to take theatre to the audience in the fashion of the old theatre stock company.

Repertoire II is ready to cast line into the water to see if the audience will bite in its May 1 debut at the Naval Air Station (NAS) Ocean's Officer's Club.

The group's opener, "The Marriage-Go-Round," will be by invitation only to 35 managers of Tidewater military and country clubs whose reaction could make or break the traveling theatre.

Cmdr. Hugh Taylor, a Virginia Beach resident who is directing the Repertoire II's first comedy and who also has an acting part in the production, has high hopes for the group's future.

The actors will adapt their blocking to stages available at various clubs, and Taylor said Repertoire II will seek out well-written comedies with small casts suited to club circuits.

"Theatre to me is a very precious thing," Taylor said. "It's something the more you know, appreciate and understand, the more you seek it out."

However, many persons who might support Tidewater theatre efforts never make that first step, he noted.

Taylor sees Repertoire II as a mode that will take theatre to audiences "especially in the military and country clubs" where members of the audience will be able to sit back "in their own comfortable places they like to go."

"We want to bring good theatre to these places," he added, and hopefully create a new class of theatre buffs.

Repertoire II will bring Tidewater a form of theatre it does not have now, Taylor said, and he does not think the comedies his actors and actresses produce will be in direct competition with other Tidewater theatrical activities.

"All theatre supports all other theatre," he asserted. "The more good shows you have, the more

Taylor also thinks Repertoire II will be able to draw out acting talent that otherwise might go untapped.

discusses the comedy script with Dee Shelton, in one of the comedy's major roles.

He cites his own experience as an example. Taylor was active in theatre in college and played summer stock in Rhode Island, "but then I spent about 14 years not doing anything."

But his interest in theatre was rejuvenated, and Taylor has appeared in "Promises, Promises" and "Catch Me If You Can" at Tidewater Dinner Theatre and "Dylan" at the Actor's Theatre in Norfolk.

Repertoire II's opening comedy also features G. Donald Brown and his wife, Mary Ellen, both actors with a long list of credits from the Norfolk Little Theatre, Cavalier Dinner Playhouse and the Actor's Theatre.

The Browns play a married couple in the "The Marriage-Go-Round," and Mrs. Brown said it is the first time they have played "against each other," although they have both had roles in the same production.

Brown plays a college professor, while Mrs. Brown is his wife, a liberated woman who is a college dean.

The couple entertains a Swedish houseguest, played by Lt. Dee Shelton of Virginia Beach, who decides she wants the professor to be the father of her child and proceeds to seduce him.

Snowy Perkinson, stage manager for the Actor's Theatre, is stage manager for "The Marriage-Go-Round," while Lee Betton, a College Park resident, is directing light and sound in the production.

Mrs. Brown believes the stock theatre approach is a good one to take. "We're definitely going to reach audiences none of the other theatres have reached," she said.

Eventually Taylor would like to see his fledgling theatre troupe grow to the point where members are involved in several different productions at one time so that club managers could book them as they do bands.

Clubs would agree to give Repertoire II a certain amount for each person attending the show, and the play would be an attraction for the club, he explained.

"There's no risk for the club manager," Taylor said. "That's the beauty of the whole thing."

Three reasons it pays to read the Classified Ads before the wedding

A happy life together gets off to a better start when a young couple has carefully planned for three vital needs:

1. Housing. Newlyweds should have their own home waiting when they return from their honeymoon... and the "housing marketplace" is the Classified Section of this newspaper. Where and how you live depends on your income, and you're sure to find what's best for you in the huge selection of apartments, mobile homes and houses listed in Classified.

2. Furnishings. Wedding gifts are a delight and a great help, but you'll discover you need certain furnishings, even if your home is "furnished". You'll find great values in the Classified Ads.

3. Transportation. One car, or two! Only you can decide. But the place to solve your particular car problems is in the Classified Section. (You'll also find motorcycles and bikes there!)

Start reading the Classified Ads now... you'll find it pays off in better living throughout your happy life together.
